ROBERT WYNNE

W

Was born ca 1685 and died 23 July 1764 and was justice, coroner, Sheriff in 1716 and Major of Militia in Surry County, Virginia, and died in Sussex Co. His father was THOMAS WYNNE who left a will in 1716 and his Grandfather was also ROBERT WYNNE who left a will dated 1678 mentioning Captain Francis Poythress as his stepson and THOMAS WYNNE as his oldest son.

from R. W Jucker Look Ruston, La Jea Mildred S. Wenn James, Sa,

rOBERT WYNNE, born 1685, also left a will in 1754, in which he mentions his wife, MARY, and indicating that she was his second wife, saying "Upon condition that she discharge all debts she was under before our intermarriage" I give and bequeath unto her one Bayhorse branded with an Heart, ten pounds in cash and two Wheel Chairs, et al. He also mentions his daughter, LUCRETIA and her husband Joseph Tucker and son Joel Tucker; his daughter MARTHA and her husband Matthew Parham; his daughter ANGELICA and her husband William Raines; and several grandchildren. He appoints Joseph Tucker and Matthew Parham as executors of his will

ROBERT WYNNE born 1685 evidently married ANNE BOLLING because, in the "REGISTRAR OF ALBEMARLE PARISH, SURRY AND SUSSEX COS, VA" page 63, MAJOR ROBERT WYNNE and ANNE WYNNE were shown as Godparents of Robert Tucker and wife Lucretia Tucker, and Lucretia Tucker was the daughter of ROBERT WYNNE born 1685.

Other Winn, Wynn, Wynne, Gwynn, Wyn found in Virginia

For many years several persons interested in the History of the Winn Families of Va. have searched available records for a connecting link between the four men who founded families bearing the name of Winn or Wynne and their immigrant ancestors.

As far as the writer knows no connection has yet been discovered. But much data has been gathered and for the sake of sizer clarifying it and preserving it in connected form, a brief summery is given here of material gathered from various sources.

The earliest ancestors of these four families mentioned above are as follows:

Captain Robert Wynn of Charles City County who died in 1678; Minor Winn of Caroline and Fauquier Counties, who died in 1771-2 and whose descendants lived in South Caroline; Jesse Durrett Winn of Caroline County, whose descendants are to be found in Kentucky; and John Winn as of Hanover County from whom David Watson Winn is descended.

The Record books in the Land Office in Richard Richmond, Va. show that not less than 37 men named Wynn patented land in the Virginia Colony before 1750, although many more of that name immigrated to the new Country. In only two cases of these early patentees is the name spelled Winn, the rest are Wyn, Wynn, Wynne, Gwynn in which form it is common in Wales. Up to the last hundered years the names have been interchangeable, especially in Court and Government records, and even to this day the different spelling is no proof of a lack of relationship since it is seen in the foregoing records at that some members of the present generation spell their names Wynne, altho for seven generations or more it has been spelled Winn.

The earliest mention of the name is in Smith's History of Virginia, where we find that in 1606 Captain Peter Wynne came to the Colony with Lord de la War on the ship "Mary & Margaret", and is spoken of as a very brave smit soldier. He was a member of the Va. Council that crowned Powhatan and was very active in the establishment of Jamestown. he died in 1609, and there is no mention of his wife or children, so that if he left descendants in Va. they must have come over after his death, but of this there is no record.

York County from which Gloucester was taken shows the presence of Wynn or Gwynn families among its earliest records. Capt. Owen Gwynn came to the Colony in 1611 under the third Charter. He became Proprietor of what was known as Gwynn Island, and married Grace, dau. of Hugh Williams. Their son Colonel Hugh Gwynn represented Gloucester County in the House of Burgesses in 1652-60, and was connected by marriage with the Tayloe family of Mt. Airy, and many prominent early Maryland families. As far as is known however there are none of his descendants named Gy Gwynn or Winn now existing in Va.

The third outstanding figure in the life of the early settlement bearing this name and one of the four progenitors of the Wynn families in Va. was Capt. Robert Wynn, whose will recorded in Charles City County is dated 1675.

> Sincerely Mis Abice A. Wynn

Thomas Peery and Dr. Jos. Fielding Peery, went to Missouri in 1852, after the death of his wife. She is buried in the Peery graveyard in Tazewell. John Wynne sold the Locust Hill Tract to Squire Thomas Peery who gave it to his son William Edward. This property stills remains in the hands of the Peery descendants. James Wynne, son of William II, also went to Missouri

William Wynne II gave lands in Burkes Garden to his sons Oliver and Minor. He also owner 660 acres in Powell's Valley, Lee Co., Va, which he willed to his sons Samuel, Robert, Henry, Peter and James, sons of his second wife, Phillis Marrs. Elkhannah and Josiah, sons of his first wife, also went to Lee County, Virginia. The Wynnes now living in Lee County are descendants of William Wynne II, the Clinch Valley Pioneer.

Although William Wynne II was a Quaker and took no part in fighting, he is called a "patron" of the Revolution because of the Fort which he built. Many of his descendants are members of the DAR; SAR and Daughters of American Colonists. His son Oliver was a spy in the Frontier Wars. These spies patrolled the great trails leading into the settlements to warn the people of impending attacks, thus giving time to reach the protection of the Forsts. The best men were chosen because of the great danger. Samuel and Peter B. Wynne fought in the War of 1812, James Wynne fought in the Mexican War. A great many of the descendants of William II served in the Civil War and a still great number in World Wars I and II.

On a later page is shown the names of the children of William Wynne II, dates of birth and available death dates, and in some instances who they married. He was the father of 26 children. It will be noted that he has two sons named Peter, two named William and two named John. At this time it was not unusual, and often the custom, to name another son the same name as a deceased son.

Evidently William Wynne II was a thrifty and industrous man because he left a large estate. He provided well for his large number of children by deeds before his death or bequests in his will. At the time of his death it is probablethat he was the wealthiest man in Tazewell County. His will showed that he owned several thousand acres of choice land, and his personal estate amounted to $2,603.29, a large sum in 1808. He made "e" the last letter of his name — it is not known why his descendants dropped the "e"

The foregoing data is fairly conclusive that William Wynne II the Tazewell pioneer, was descended from Capt. (Sir) Thomas Wynne. This is also the opinion of Dr. Walter Smith, mentioned above, and of Mrs. Mary Pitzgerald Green who has professional genealogists working on this line. Clement "History of Pittsylvania County" states, however, that William Wynne II is thought to be a descendant of Robert Wynne, Speaker of the Virginia House of Burgesses. Furthermore, research by the brother of Miss Sue Wygal of Dryden, LeeCo, Va, indicates that this may be true. But, as Dr. Smith has said: "No one knows for certain about these people as many records have been destroyed in the Wirginia Counties. Some of the Counties where the Wynnes lived have suffered badly and I do not know that we can ever document all our Wynne lineages, but in spite of this loss much has been saved to us and with some careful comparisons and from some private records from Bibles and other sources much of the Wynne Genealogy has been recovered. However, some of it remains with little more than conjecture for a basis".

Kentucky. We have with Dr. Wayne Smithe of Honolulu whose wife is descended from Jesse of this family. Jesse was the ancestor of the Wynne in Carolina Co, Val, and later many of them went to Kentucky. This leaves one son, William I, and research indicates that he was, no doubt William Wynne of Brunswick County and later Pittsylvania Co., and the father of William Wynne I the Tazewell Pioneer.

There are at least two reasons for the belief that William Wynne II of Tazewell is a descendant of the Wynnes mentioned above. First, he named one of his sons "Minor" as shown later on attached chart. Secondly, his son, William III indicated on an application for pension that he was born Feb 25, 1762, in Pittsylvania County, Virginia. Another indication that William Wynne II came from Pittsylvania County is found in a Court Record of 1752 appointing Justices of the Peace for Pittsylvania which was formed from the original Brunswick County. Among the Justices named are William Wynne (probably Wm. I) and Nathaniel Edwards. A daughter of William Wynne II, named Orphy married Peter Belwards, which would indicate that these families were connected. The fact that William Wynne was a Quaker does not prove that he came from Pennsylvania, for there were many Quakers in Southern Virginia at this time and our William Wynne may have joined them.

Thomas Wynne, Sr., mentioned in a list of tithables of Pittsylvania County in 1767 had a son, Thomas B. who moved to Green County, Georgia with his father. Thomas E. had correspondence with the Wynnes of Tazewell Co. and spoke of his grandfather, William Wynne of Pittsylvania County, and called the Wynnes of Tazewell County "cousins".

The grave of William Wynne II is in the Peery graveyard in Tazet well County, near where his Fort stood, and the tombstone bears the following inscription:

William Wynne Born: Aug 10, 1729 Died: July 8, 1808

There is no positive proof of the name of the first wife of William Wynne II. Pendleton, in his "History of Tazewell County, states that she may have been a Harmon since he bought the Locust Hill Tract from the Harmons. However, he was married and had several children before he came to Tazewell County. His son, William III, stated in his application for pension that he was born in Pittsylvania Co., Va., in 1762. Mrs. Mary Fitzgerak Green of Independence, Missouri, who has professional genealogists working on this line has advised that his first wife was Cynthia Harmon, and that she was born in North Carolina. An old family bible in possession of a Texas descendant of James Wynne, a son of William II, states that his first wife was named Mary. A further search of the marriage records of Brunswick and Pittsylvania County may reveal the name of his first wife. The Will of William Wynne II is recorded in Will Book 1 of Tazewell County and indicates that the name of his second wife was "Phillis". She was Phillis Marrs and became the mother of 15 children. She went to Missouri with her eldest son, John, and is buried at Chillicothe, Missouri.

Two sons of William Wynne II, namely, Oliver and Josiah married Sarah and Mary Whitley, daughters of Robert Whitley of Tazewell County, thought to be a brother of Col. William Whitley, builder of Pord William Whitley in Kentucky, and who is credited with killing the Indian Chief, Tecumseh. Three sons of William Wynne II, namely, John, James, and Minor married Perry sisters. John, who married Olivia Peery, sister of Squire

MRS. C. E. BRAMWELL ROUTE 3 — BOX 819 STOCKTON, CALIFORNIA

The following was compiled by Mrs. Frances H. Whitman, 803 Maple Road, Charleston 2, West Virginia - July 30, 1956. This data was mailed to various relatives and finally was sent to Mrs. Iva Orr Bramwell. Mrs. Whitman is descended from Oliver Wynne and Sarah Whitley. Mrs. Bramwell is descended from a brother of Oliver Wynne, i.e. Josiah who married Mary Whitley. Both Oliver and Josiah Wynne are sons of William Wynne of Tazewell Co, Va. by his 1st wife, believed to be Cynthia Harmon.

THE WYNNE FAMILY OF TAZEWELL COUNTY, VIRGINIA

In 1772 there was living at a place called Locust Hill, one and a half miles east of the present town of Tazewell, Tazewell Co., Virginia, a Quaker by the name of William Wynne, (hereafter called William Wynne II because he is believed to be the son of William Wynne I of Pittsylvania County Virginia). He was one of the earliest pioneers of the Clinch Valley Section having purchased the Locust Hill tract from the Harmons who were also early settlers. The Forst which William Wynne II built on Wynne Branch was used as refuge for his family and neighboring families when threatened by Indians. The site was well suited for defensive purposes as there was a good supply of water which came from a spring in a cave within the enclosure of the fort. William WynneII, being a Quaker, took no part in offensive movements against the Indians. It has been supposed, since he was a Quaker, that he probably came from Pennsylvania by way of the Shenandoah Valley. However, there are other facts which support the theory that he came from Pittsylvania Co., Va. and was a descendant of Sir Thomas Wynne, who came to Jamestown, Va. in 1620, twelve years after it was founded.

Capt. (Sir) Thomas Wynne (born abt. 1500) was the son of Thomas Wynne and Ellen Thomas of Conway, Wales; the parents of this Thomas were Sir Robert Wynne and Lady Dymake of Conway, Wales. Sir Robert Wynne was a notable soldier and son of John Gwydir House, whose sons assumed the name Wynne for a surname. Wynne is Welsh for white and was assumed by John because was blond in complexion. This family is descended from the Kings of Wales.

The same Year (1620) that Capt. (Sir) Thomas Wynne received a land grant in Virginia from James I for service to the crown, he married Dorothy Hines of York Co., Va. To them were born four sons, John, Thomas, Obadiah, and Richard. Richard b. abt 1636 was the ancestor of the Middlesex County Wynnes. Capt. John Wynne who married Elizabeth Minor, received a land grant in Westmoreland Co., Va. in 1654. Their children were John II, Minor I, William, Richard, Owen and several daughters. Minor I was born about 1660 and died in 1730. He was living at Eden Plantation in what was then Westmoreland but became Prince William County in 1710 with the following children: Thomas, Jesse, William I, Minor II, Susan and Elizabeth. Of these children, Minor II has been well accounted for—he acquired large tracts of land from the Colony of Virginia located in what is now Fayette and Bourbon Counties of Kentucky. He married Margaret O'Connor of Ireland. He died in Fauquier Co, in 1771. His sons went to South Carolina and later to Tennessee, Kentucky and Missouri. The oldest son Thomas settled in Cameron Parish, Loudon Co, Va.

THE ANCESTORS OF THE WYNNES

Mankind is divided into three different types or races. They are the white or Caucasian, the Turanian or Mongolian known as the yellow, and the Ethiopian or Negro making up the black. The white race itself is divided into at least three divisions. The Hamitic family is composed of the Egyptians, Lybians, and Cushites. The Semitic is made up of the Chaldeans, Assyrians, Babylonians, Canaanites, Phoenicians, Hebrews, and Arabs. The remaining family of the white race is the Aryan or Indo-European, sometimes called the Japhetic. It is with this family that most American and British people are concerned in that we are descended from two of its branches. The five branches of the Aryan family are as follows:

- . 1- Indo-Iranic Branch Hindoos Medes Persians
- 2- Graeco-Italic Branch Greeks Romans or Latins
- 3- Slavonic Branch
  Russians
  Poles
  Etc.

- 4- Celtic Branch Gauls Britons Scots (Irish) Picts
- 5- Teutonic Branch
  High Germans
  Low Germans
  Scandanavians

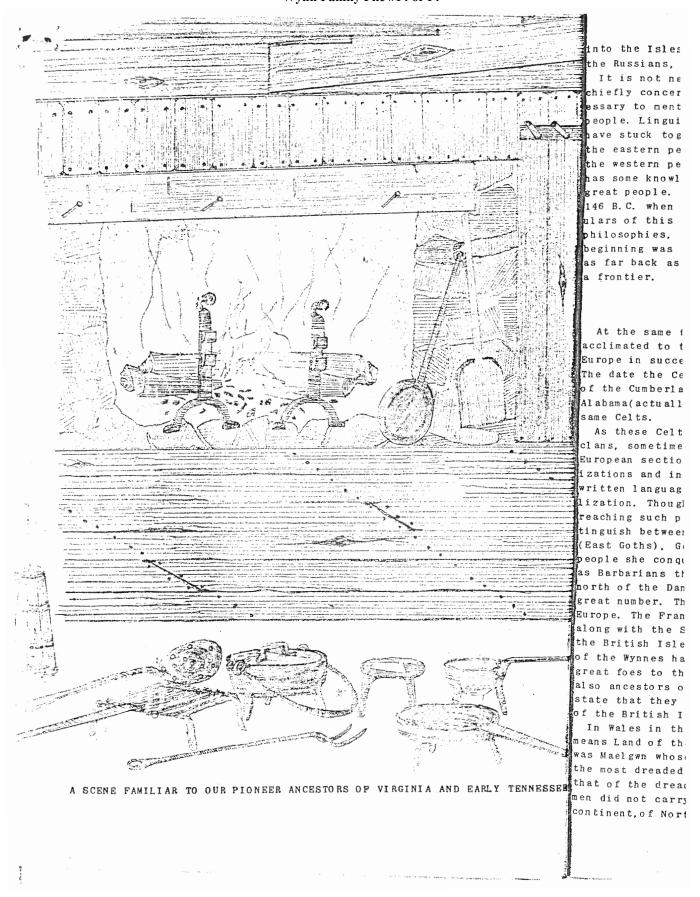

NOTE: The Welch, Scotch Highlanders, Irish, and the Eretons of Brittany are all of this Celtic branch. The English are a mixture of Angle, Saxon, and Jute blood with some mixture of Danish and Norman.

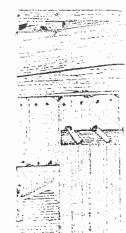

> Spanish, Portuguese, and Italians are a blend of Celts, ancient Romans and Germanic tribes. Our modernday Germans are a blend of the old Germanic tribes.

The old Germanic tribes were the Angles, Saxons, Jutes, Franks, Burgundians, Alemanni, Lombards, Vandals, Goths.

ARYAN MIGRATIONS

Authorities seem agreed upon the ancient seat of the Aryan family as being n the highlands of Central Asia east of the Caspian Sea and north of the Hindu. ush Mountains. The times of their migrations from this place concurs with that of the Bible, namely about 3000-5000 B.C., according to which chronology one ight be using. The migrations were begun in clans. The Indo-Iranic branch of the family is thought to be the first ones to leave the primitive home. Moving southward they went through the snowy passes of the Hindu-Cush on to the plains beyond, and from these the Hindus descended. The other branch of this same group :urned to the southwest and peopled the tablelands of Iran, and became the anestors of the Medes and Persians. About 2000 B.C. the ancestors of the Greeks .nd Romans, the Graeco-Italic clans, set out for Europe settling the Mediterr-.nian peninsulas. These went by the southern shore of the Black Sea into Europe y the Hellespoint. However, some of this same original group parted at the lack Sea going to the north of it on into Central Europe, then Western Europe, ind finally to the British Isles. These were the Celtic clans. Hard on the heels f the Celts were the Teutonic clans which forced the Celts ever westward and on into the Isles. Behind the Teutonic clans were the Slavonic clans who became the Russians, Poles, etc.

It is not necessary to give the details of the Indo-Iranic family, as we are chiefly concerned with the Celtic and Teutonic branches, but it will be necessary to mention the Graeco-Italic branch because of its connection with our people. Linguistics prove that this group that split at the Black Sea must have stuck together for a long time before they parted. The group settling the eastern peninsula appears in history as the Greeks, while those going to the western peninsula became the Romans. Even the casual student of history has some knowledge of the brilliant civilization and culture of these once great people. Greecian history begins about 1100 B.C.,, and lasted till about 146 B.C. when she became a province of her successor Rome. Of all the particulars of this civilization such as her politics, literature, arts, and her philosophies, the same is too lengthy to be included in a genealogy. Rome's beginning was about 27 B.C., but finds her roots in this western peninsula as far back as 753 B.C. when the Latins of Alba Longa supposedly founded here a frontier.

THE CELTS AND TEUTONS

At the same time the Aryan ancestors of the Greeks and Romans were becoming acclimated to the Mediterranian world our Celtic ancestors had reached Western Europe in successive waves and were beginning to pour into the British Isles. The date the Celts reached the Isles has been put at about 600 B.C. The people of the Cumberland Mountain range of Marion County, Tennessee and Jackson County Alabama(actually all the Southeast of U.S.A.) are mostly descendants of these same Celts.

As these Celts were taking the Isles from the natives, in Europe the Teutonic clans, sometimes called Germanic tribes, were becoming a vast population in all European sections. The Greeks and Romans had developed into highly social organizations and in Europe were the only ones who had developed themselves with written languages and the other fine arts that go to make up culture and civilization. Though there were several tribes making up the Teutonic power that was reaching such proportions the leading tribes were known as the Goths. To distinguish between them history divides them as Visigoths (West Goths), Ostrogoths (East Goths), Gepidae(Laggards). Before her fall Rome Christianized most of the people she conquered, even to the British Isles. Though considered by the Romans as Barbarians the Teutons made up an extensive kingdom in the Black Forest area north of the Danube, and the Romans knew that they were fierce worriors and of great number. They did eventually overrun the Roman Empire and went into all Europe. The Franks possessed Gaul, today called France. The Vandals took Spain along with the Sueves another Teutonic tribe. The Angles and Saxons went into the British Isles after the Romans left and settled there. The Celtic ancestors of the Wynnes had already settled in Wales around 600 B.C. and proved to be great foes to the two invading tribes. These same ancestors of the Wynnes were also ancestors of the Jones and Griffith families of America. Welsh historians state that they were fierce warriors and proved great opposition to the invaders of the British Isles.

In Wales in the extreme northern part was that section called Gwennedd which means Land of the Wynnes. The oldest Wynne ancestor of the authentic Wynne line was Maelgwn whose seat of power was in Deganwy. It was also at this time that the most dreaded of all plunder and ravage began in Western Europe and the Isles, EARLY TENNESSEE that of the dreaded Norsemen or Vikings. There was no limit to which these North men did not carry their destruction and cruelty. Their raids carried them to the continent of North America, Russia, British Isles, Iceland, Western Europe.

and by sailing around the coast of southwestern Europe they entered the Mediterranian Sea to the countries of Italy and Sicily. After settling here the generations of their offspring were employed by several of the Christian nations to fight the aggressive Turks, Moslems, and Greeks. They were greatly used in the Crusades. Many of these Nordics settled northwestern France which they called Mormandy. It will be very important to remember these Vikings who settled Normandy, because the Norman ancestors of the Wynnes descend from these. In 1066 A.D. under the leadership of William the Conqueror our Norman Wynne ancestors took the British Isles, met, fought, conquered, and married our Celtic-Welsh Wynne ancestors. The Wynne, Loyd, Fitzgerald, Rogers, Jones, Lewis, Vaughn, Yale, and Morgan families descend from the same Welsh-Norman ancestors. Some of these families went from Wales to Ireland then to America. They went to Ireland around the 1100's. Some of the families returned from Ireland then came to America from England and Wales.

Though the Celts had been in the British Isles a long time they could not repel the attacks of the Romans who came there during Rome's power. When the Romans left the Isles in 400's several of the Celtic chiefs began to seek power. One of these chiefs was the old, Wynne ancestor Maelgwn of the family of Cunedda. Maelgwn was a heathen, and some of the censure of the Roman priest great proble against him has been quoted. He died of the yellow plague about 550 A.D. It was promised to in his declining years that the two Teutonic tribes the Saxons and Angles beganthe Devil, their invasion of the British Isles. His heir Cadwaklon died fighting these invaders near the Great Wall in 625. Cadwaladr was next in line. Then his son Idwall 1 was the father of Rhodri Malwyndd who according to history was quite successful in his fight against the Saxons. At his death in 755 he left two son Conan and Howell. It was during their day that the old Wynne stronghold and see of power was destroyed by the Scandinavians, and also that the terrible Norseme began their raids upon the Isles. Conan died in 815. He left a daughter whose husband was also Wynne kin. Their son was Rhodri the Great. He was a contemporary of Alfred the Great, the Saxon king who rul ed England. All Wynnes from their former antiquity have prided themselves in being descended from this man. In fact, wi him historians and genealogists alike connect our later Wynne kin of the Britis Isles. He killed the Danish leader Horm and defeated them. In 876 he had to fl Wales, but returned and died at Mons with his brother fighting the Danes in 87 He left three sons, Cadell, Merown, and Anarwd who drove out the enemy.

Cadell's son was Howell the great lawgiver of Wales. From research it will been an offi found that our ancestors fought the Danes, the Saxons, and the Vikings, but spent just about as much time fighting one another, or among themselves. But if Ireland 1 will be found that this was one of the peculiarities of that day.

As mentioned William the Conqueror came from Normandy in 1066 and took England Ireland) His conquest advanced on into the Western part of the Isles and Wales. These events helped form the destiny of many families. Hostilities might still be we homas, and it not for the fairer sex, but feminine charms being what they are resulted in son John, several unions between the Welsh and Normans. It came about on this order. When ales about the invading Norsemen plundered the kingdom of the West Franks in Northern Franceon the coast the Norsemen were given the Duchy of Normandy. A few general Osborn well ions later in the 1000's we find a Norman of great size and stature by the namewen, and The of Sieur Tancred de Hauteville. This man had several sons known for their partthe Col. Robe in the Greek and Turk wars. One of his sons was Gerard who became the father of ublication | Engarrita who married Walter Fitz Other of Spain. (Fitz is from French Fils, andre also lis always denotes Norman Origin) At the time of the marriage they both lived in Italy, but moved back to Normandy. across the channel to Normandy. They returned in about three years and remained. However, to understand why they fled, then returned with honors, one will have to to understand English history. It has always been one of disturbance and conquest. The natives had to give way to the Celtic invaders, who in turn were conquered by the Angles and Saxons. Then came the Danes and the Norse. The last and final invaders were the Normans. When the Angles and Saxons came to the Isles they tried to destroy all Celtic influence there. In the 800's the Saxon King Ethelwulf was made ruler in Wessex and fought the newest enemy invaders the Danes. His son Alfred the Great was a great hero in Saxonized England. Struggling for supremacy here for a hundred and fifty years the Danes finally prevailed over the easy successors of Alfred. Ethelred who was king at this time fled to Normandy where he remained. In the meantime the Danish rulers became weak and through Saxon influence the son of Ethelred, Edward, was made king of England. Being brought up in Normandy it is stated that he was more Norman than Saxon, a thing which irritated the Saxons greatly. It is stated that he so favored the Normans that they swarmed over to England and did well for themselves on Edward's generosity. In Wessex was the Earl Godwin and his sons of great influence among the Saxon element. At the death of King Edward Harold the son of Godwin in 1063 was appointed King. This occasioned Roman priests great problems indeed for both English and Normans as the throne had been O A.D. It was promised to William by Edward before Edward died. William's father was Robert Angles began the Devil, the son of Richard, both of whom were in their day the Dukes of Normandy. Vikings they were, and regardles of environment change, they changed not. elves. But it of Ireland later on. His great, great grandsons William, David, and Maurice, the sons of Gerald(from whom descends the Fitzgeralds and many prominent families ed took Englar of Ireland) were the leaders of the Norman conquest of Ireland in 1170. By les. These consulting the chart it will be noticed that Maurice had three sons, John, still be wer Thomas, and Gerald. Thomas had a son John of Callan of Ireland who also had ; resulted in a son John, sometimes called Osborn. This Osborn returned from Ireland to s order. When wales about 1250-60, probably following the death of his father John of Callan who was alle gedly killed by the McCarthy-Mor in 1261. A few genera: Osborn we know for certain is the ancestor of Dr. Thomas, Watkin William, re by the nam Owen, and Thomas Wynne lines in America, and attendant circumstances point to or their part the Col. Robert Wynne line of Virginia as also descending from him. In the the father o'publication Browning's '' Americans of Royal Descent'' the following families rench Fils, and are also listed as descendants of Osborn in addition to the Wynnes: Vaughns th lived in of Cors-y-gedol, Yales, Lloyds, Rogers, Wynns (or Gwyns), Morgans, Lewises, where accord-Jones, etc. Back in the old country the Williams of Wales were also closely f Windsor. He related to the Wynnes. Descending from Other and Engarrita are the following d to flee back rish families in addition to the Fitzgeralds: Carews, Barrys, Stephens, Henrys, Cogans, etc. In the 1600's these families began their migrations to England and America.

As previously mentioned the term 'Fitz' is from French 'Fils' and denotes a Norman origin. The term carries with it the idea of descent such as 'Mac' and "O' in Scotch and Irish, or 'Bar' in Hebrew. The prefix 'Mac' is suggestive of 'son of 'whereas 'O 'suggests names derived from some ancestor down the line. We might say descendant of. 'All these terms suggest that the surname was formed from the personal name. For a good example we find that Maurice who was Gerald's son is called 'Maurice Fitz Gerald Fitz Walter. 'The meaning is that Maurice was the son of Gerald, the son of Walter. In Welsh it is 'ap.' The writer is not a student of Dutch or German names but risks saying that perhaps the foregoing is true of 'Van ' and ' Von ' in these languages. It must be remembered that surnames did not become hereditary till after the 1000's in England, and not until after 1160 when Henry 11 enfranchised the land did they become common. Most of the Wynne names are till this very generation Norman names, such as Robert, William, etc. Due to the Norman invasion of I tel and in-1169-1172-we find many Irish families bearing Norman names. However, due to use over the centuries are exclusively Irish today. It is true that many of the prefixes so common to Irish names have been dropped, but this was caused by military and religious persecutions in that country. No doubt, in this country they have been dropped for convenience sake. The writer's grandmother was Lucille McKnight or MacKnight, but the Mac was dropped leaving it Knight. Another thing that has added to the complexity of our names was the translating of these Gaelic names into English. As mentioned the ancestors of the Irish and Scotch the Celts, came to the British Isles from Europe, and spoke Gaelic. But in an effort to wipe out all Celtic influence by those who came later on the names also suffered. Some Gaelic names that ring back to the ancient Celts are found in Jackson and Marion Counties today.

We shall conclude this division of our work by showing how the Wynnes and the Norman invaders met and married. In the southwestern part of Wales was a Norman castle called Pembroke. Other and Engarrita's grandson Gerald was in charge of Pembroke. He married Nesta who was a Wynne descended through Rhodri's son Cadell. But Gerald's mother was also a Wynne. She was Gladys, a descendant of Rhodri the Great.

THE AMERICAN WYNNES

The writer makes no claims whatever of having exhausted the research material on the Wynnes of America. But contrary to this feels very inadequate in writing on the subject. It is hoped that this material will fall into the hands of one or more who will in future generations be able to enlarge upon it.

It appears that most of the Wynnes, Wynns, Winns of our country descend from one of the following emigrants:

Captain Owen Wynne
Dr. Thomas Wynne
Thomas Wynne of Maryland
Col. Robert Wynne of Virginia

The descendonts of these men are scattered all over the U.S.A. Histories of each of the states and territories will reveal that these early Wynnes were on every frontier. In Yardly's 'Before the Mayflower' we find among the grantees of James 1 on May 23 of 1609 Peter Wynne, Capt. Thomas Wynne, and Edmund Wynne. Edmund Wynne could be the ancestor of the Watkin Wynne Line of North Carolina. The William and Mary Quarterly states that Watkin William Was called Prince of North Wales from his wealth and the number of his retainers and Chirk Castle the old embattled mansion. This is Winstaye, and is still in the hands of the family

The historian Clements in discussing the Col. Robert Wynne family of Virginia stated that he was one of the most influential men of the state. His family will be dealt with more fully in that all evidence points to his being the ancestor of the Marion and Jackson County Wynnes.

Dr. Thomas Wynne came to America on the Ship 'Welcome' which left Bristol the Country of September 1682 with one hundred passengers for Penn's Colony. They arrived at New Castle, Penn. the 24th of October. Dr Wynne was William Penn'own personal physician. His grandson Dr. John Jones was during the campaigns of New York and Pennsylvania the personal physician of General George Washington. It cannot be found where any of Dr. Wynne's descendants ever came to the southern states.

Thomas Wynne of Maryland came to this country in 1671; was Sub-Sheriff and a member of the Colonial Assembly of Maryland in 1678. Through his son Dr. John Winn many of the South Carolina and Georgia Winns descend.

NOTE: This Thomas Wynne line is said to be of the Gwydir or old Welsh line. In fact it is believed that the Richard inthe Thomas Wynne line of ancestors is the Richard who was son of John Wynne (Sir John). This was Richard brother to Owen Wynne who came to America in 1611. Sir John's son Richard was groom of the chamber to the king, and accompanied the Duke of Buckingham to Spain for a bride for Henry 8th in the year 1620.

As stated Thomas Wynne came to this country in 1671. He was born in the year 1620, Died 1692. He came to St. Mary's Co. Md. in 1678. His wife was Elizabeth. They were married about 1643. She died about 1675 in America.

His second marriage was to Letitia McFarland, who died in 1824. Their children were Letitia, born 1784, died about 1827. Robert, born 1791, died unmarried.

These are the Wynnes settling in Gwinnet Co. Ga. at an early date. They lived near Lawrenceville. James Cochran Winn, son of Elisha Winnwas shot to death in cold blood by Santa Anna with four hundred other young men near Goliad, Texas on Palm Sunday March 27th, 1836 in Texas-Mexican War. In the Creek uprising of 1836 in Georgia William S. Winn and Thomas M. Winn, both privates and serving in Capt. Jame's Garmany's company, met four hundred Indians on the 9th of June in which a bloody battle was fought. The Creeks were defeated. Thomas E. Winn was County School Superintendant for three years, and served as Congressman for the district for one term. Major Richard D. Winn served as Judge of the Inferior Court, and also wrote biographical sketches of about fifty men of Gwinnet Co. His picture is in the County History by Flanigan. His house served as courthouse. The first elections also were held here. The first Superior Court was held in his barn. Among the first county officers elected in the county was John Winn, Coroner. When the Indian territory of North Georgia was first opened up several of these Gwinnet Co. Winns went there. Though the Cherokees did not leave till 1838 some of these Winns are found there in the early 1830's around the edges of the Blue Ridge Mountains.

The only living descendants known to the writer are those of the family of Mrs. C.E. Monfort of Lawrenceville. Her Winn line has been proven and she is in several organizations on it.

CAPTAIN OWEN WYNNE

Several prominent families of the Southeast find close connection with this man's family. By consulting the chart it will be seen that 0 wen was the son of Sir John Wynne who was created Baronet of Gwydir, Wales by James 1 of Englandin 1611. Owen came to America that same year. See Encyclopedia Brittanica, the eleventh edition. See also for an interesting coverage of the fortunes of his family the 'Virginia Historical Magazine' by J.L.M. Curry. √Owen was born 1586 and died 1660. His wife was Grace Williams. Upon coming to this country he settled in Glouchester County, Virginia. As mentioned this was in 1611. In 1648 he returned to Wales to assume the title and estate of his family, being the third Baronet of Gwydir, Wales. Owen had a son John who married Elizabeth Minor. John and Elizabeth had a son born about 1665, died in 1710, whose name was Minor. He was of Eden Plantation, Prince William County, Virginia. This Minor Wynne had a son also named Minor born 1709 died 1779. He was of Caroline and Fauquier Counties, Virginia. He married Margaret O'Connor. They had five sons and three daughters. This Minor Wynne accumulated a fortune and owned much and valuable lands in Virginia.

One of their five sons they also named Minor. He married and remained in the state of Virginia. One of this man's daughters married a Neal. Stonewall Jackson came from this family. Another of his daughters married a Neal from which came Gen. Lucius Fairchild who was Minister to Spain. From another of his daughters descended the Hon. Otho R. Singleton of Mississippi. Another daughter of the family married another Singleton from whom came the Hon. Washington G. Singleton who was U.S. District Attorney for some time. Another daughter married an O'Bannon of Kentucky who had a son who married a Todd, the first cousin to Mrs. Abraham Lincoln. Mrs. Lincoln resided with this family till about two weeks before her marriage to the President.

Minor and Margaret had four other sons. John was the oldest, then William, James, and Richard. All these sons except Minor settled in Fairfield District of South Carolina. The name of the town is now Winnsboro. It was here that the Brit ish Cornwallis stayed in 1782, and also that John's first wife Dorthea Wright died. John Wynne made an attempt to ambush Cornwallis and was captured and sentenced to death, but through a Col. Phillips was released. His second wife was Penelope Kirkland. By his first wife John had seven children, by the latter ten. Issue by first wife: Anna md. Samuel McKenney, Minor md. Mary Evans (their children were: Louisa, md. John Lamar, Emily md. A. R. Tennessee where he died about 1816, as his will was written that year. The will was written on a piece of brown paper now preserved in the courthouse at Murphreesboro.

I have been corresponding with the Edwards and Hudgins families of Gwynn's Island Virginia at length with regard to Edwards genealogy on which I am working. I have much information with regard to them, however, this genealogy is not completed yet. I have found nothing to connect this Owen Gwynn with our Wynnes. Ehe Edwards and Hudgins families with whom I have been corresponding all trace their ancestry back to thesowen Gwynn. RMEXERY One of his descendants married a Wynne (see other Wynne genealogy by unknown author), but I don't know whether It was a descendant of this Wynne or one of Col. Robert Wynne's Descendants. Another Edwards descendant,

where to in

As the following pages are pursued our enthusiasm will perhaps be somewhat greater as all attendant circumstances and evidence points to Col. Robert Wynne as being the ancestor of the Marion and Jackson County Wynnes and Wynne kin. The information on this family has been secured from several different sources.

In 1929 Prof. William T. Wynn of the College of Arts and Sciences, and head of the department of English at the Georgia State College for Women at Milledgeville made a visit to Wales to investigate the ancestral home of our Col. Robert Wynne in Carmen, Wales. The tenor of Prof. Wynn's notes suggests that Robert Wynne was of the Gwydir branch of Wynnes.

Robert Wynne's family moved to Canterbury, England around the 1300's. In one history John Wynne is mentioned as member of Parliment around 1356. In 1599 Robert Wynne was Mayor of Canterbury. His son Peter Wynne married Martha Coppin at St. Martins August 12, 1620. Their son Robert Wynne was born about 1622. He came to America in the early 1650's. He was justice in Charles City Court Oct. 3, 1656. Not only did he represent Charles City in the House of Burgesses in 1657-8, but was Speaker of the House 1661 through 1674, the longest of any man in its entire history. In 1673 he was Colonel and a member of a Court Martial sitting at James City. He died in 1675. His wife was Mary Poythress.

The following official records will give the reader some knowledge of the prominence of Robert Wynne, his sons, and grandsons.

WILL OF ROBERT WYNNE

Ventered into

From The Virginia Magazine of History and Biography Vol. X1V, page 173 the will of Robert Wynne is given. He was of Jordan's Parish of Charles City Co., Virginia. The will was dated July 1,1675; was proved August 15,1678. His oldest son Thomas Wynne was to receive a farm in White Staple Parish in Kent near Canterbury, England commonly called Linbett Banckes. Thomas was also to receive two houses in Canterbury in St. Mildred's Parish. Joshua Wynne, the youngest son of Robert, was to receive one house and 'oatmeale mill' lying in Dover Lane without St. Georges in Canterbury, and two other houses adjoining. Thomas was also to receive in Virginia all the cattle with his mark except one cow specified. Joshua was to receive in Virginia Robert's plantation called 'Georges. 'His daughter Woodlief was to receive a servant of 'fower yeares. 'The rest of Robert's estate both in Virginia and England was to go to his wife Mary Wynne. At the time of the writing of the will Robert Wynne, the son of Col. Robert, was dead. Col. Robert mentioned in his will his Godson George Woodlief. His daughter's name was Woodlief, as stated in the will. One authority states that the Woodliefs are thought to be descended from Captain John Woodlief of Virginia who came there in 1620 to take charge of the famous Berkeley Plantation. Robert Wynne's daughter who married John Woodlief was Mary Wynne. Mr. John Boddie wrote several volumes on Historical Southern Families, some of which cover the sons and family of Col. Robert mentioned in the will.

A thing of interest to some of the family today is that the descendants of Col. Robert Wynne are mentioned as paying taxes as late as the late 1790's on property in England. No doubt, this is the property mentioned in Robert's will.

ROBERT WYNNE'S CHILDREN

The children of Robert Wynne are listed in the chart. Thomas was his oldest son. He was born 1657, died 1716-18. His wife was Agnes. Like his father, Thomas appears to have been one of Virginia's wealthy Planters. Thomas was also an Indian interpreter to the three Indian tribes, the Nottoway, Meherrin, and the Nansemond. He replaced Thomas Blunt in this capacity. Several of this man's descendants went to Georgia shortly following the Revolutionary War.

Joshua Wynne was the youngest son of Col. Robert Wynne. He was born 1660, died 1715. He was a Justice Feb. 23, 1698 in Charles City; a member of the House of Burgess 1702-1704. He served also as Sheriff of Prince George from 1705-1711. He was Major. This was, no doubt of the Militia. Joshua's wife was Mary Jones. Her father was Captain, then Major, in command of the fort at the Falls of the Appamattox in 1674. The city of Petersburg is named for his grandson. It will be interesting to note that Mary Jones' grandmother was Margaret Wood, daughter of the eminent Abraham Wood who held a commission from Berkley during Bacon's rebellion. He was Justice in Charles City in 1655, Colonel of a regiment from that same city, entering the Governor's Council from 1657 till 1671.

Joshua Wynne was also an Indian interpreter. At one time he played a great part in bringing about peace between the Nottoway, Meherrin, Nansemond, Pamunkey, Chickahominy tribes and the Seneca Indians. One authority states that the above tribes refused even to consider negotiations unless the Wynne brothers, Joshua and Thomas were present. Clements in his history of Pittsylvania County, Virginia states that Major Joshua Wynne was killed by the Saphony Indians. The Major Joshua was either the Joshua being discussed, or his son Joshua.

John & Peggy Nyme.

Most of Joshua's descendants went to North Carolina, Georgia, and Tennessee.

Col. Robert Wynne's other two children were Robert and Mary already mentioned. Robert died before 1675. Mary married John Woodlief.

AN OBSERVATION

At this moment conclusive evidence is lacking to connect us with Major Joshua Wynne. Note that we say conclusive evidence. All circumstantial evidence without exception points to him as our ancestor. Hundreds upon hundreds of volumes have been gone over studiously. Libraries and individuals of several states have been visited. Since this research began correspondence has not ceased with some of the most conscientious students of Wynne genealogy. For some time now the question is not whether we are of Col. Robert and his son Major Joshua, but through which of Major Joshua's sons do we descend?

Thomas Buckner was somehow connected with Joshua's wife Mary Jones. We find descendants of Joshua and Mary bearing as their given name 'Buckner' or 'Buck' Wynne. Joshua's descendants who migrated to Tennessee in the 1790's named their children 'Buck' Wynne. This was in Wilson County. The writer's gr.gr. grandfather was 'Buck' Wynne. He named his son 'Jim Buck.' The Marion County ancestor of the Wynnes was married in Wilson County.

Joshua Wynne's gr.grandson Sloman Wynne had as test to his will a 'John Berry.' This suggests a family connection. There are at least a dozen Wynnes of our line named John Berry.' Our Marion County ancestor named his second son 'Little Berry' or Littleberry' Wynne. Several Tennessee Wynnes, all known descendants of Major Joshua, were named 'Little Berry' or sometimes 'Littleberry' The writer's gr.grandfather was 'John Berry' Wynn.

_ The Wynne-Bean connections are also not to be overlooked. Major Joshua wynne's son William Wynne and William Bean, the father of Capt. Robert, Russell, and Jesse, were the first to settle what is now Pittsylvania County, Virginia. William Bean came there from Augusta Co., Virginia. William Wynne came there from Brunswick County, Virginia where he was Justice in 1732 and settled about the middle 1730's. In 1745 Wynne and two other men had orders for a grant of 36,000 acres. In 1753 he was granted 2,000 acres, and in 1738 an order for 4,000 acres, and one for 5,000 acres. Wynne's Falls and Wynne's Creek now stand in his honor. Clements states that William Wynne and William Bean were surveyers; both living on Dan's River. Bean's house was a sort of crossroads. Neighbors to these two men were: Peter Wilson, John Russell, Robert Payne, David Layne, Sweetings (Sweedens), Lambeth Dodson, John Railey, Terrys, Andersons, Berrys, etc. Several of these families had been friends, neighbors, or related by marriage, and eventually ended up one or two generations later in Sweeden's Cove still neighbors and kin. William Bean's son Captain Robert Bean came and settled in Sweeden's Cove. Here he died in 1824. His son was Robert. Our ancestor John Wynne moved to Sweeden's Cove that same year and was closely connected with Robert Bean, Jr. They bought land together here and in Arkansas, John Wynn bought part of Captain Robert Bean's land given him for Revolutionary War services.

Robert Bean was given land also in Franklin Co., Georgia for his War services. His youngest son Jesse Beene was born 1800 in Georgia. A John G. Wynne lived in the same County at the same time, and was clerk there. Our John Wynne who came to Sweeden's Cove with the Beans (Reenes) was also born in Georgia the year 1800. One of his gr. grandsons was John G. Wynne, son of John Berry or Jux Wynne. Robert Bean, Sr. had a son Obediah Bean, born 1785, whose daughter Nancy Rean Married Matthew Wynne, probable brother of our John. Our John Wynne had a twin brother

WILLIAM WYNNE

On the preceding page it will be observed that Major Joshua Wynne's descendants occupied most of the chart. Major Joshua's youngest son was William Wynne, born in 1705, died 1774, md. Frances. Most of his descendants moved to middle Tenn-Sumner County was established by act of the North Carolina Legislature on November 17, 1785. In the early 1790's the Wynnes and several of their kin began their journey from North Carolina through Indian territory to Sumner County Tennessee. Much has been written about the Wynnes in Tennessee's history. They first settled around Bledsoe's Lick and Hickory Ridge near Lebanon. The lick today is in hands of the Wynnes, descendants of William Wynne. Several of these Wynnes were close friends of Andrew Jackson, and are mentioned in some of his letters. Royal Wynne built one of the finest log structures, and of the most immense size known to the writer. This was an Inn, and is well known to historians of Tennessee. Col. Alfred R. Wynne married Almira Winchester, daughter of General James Winchester. Mr. John Boddie the genealogist who completed several volumes on Historical Southern Families is related to these Wynnes through the Winchesters. This material could not be completed in time to be included in his latest and last volume, otherwise it William Wynne b. 1705 d. 1774 would have been.

JOHN WYNN OF MARION COUNTY

The first thing we know of John Wynn is that he bought land in Sweeden's Cove in 1824 from Thomas and John Maxwell. One of his neighbors Obediah Beene was witness. He bought land from one Edward Pankey, Samuel Beene, Wiley J. Bargee, Mark Tollet, Jones McMahon, Benjamin Selman, C. Rodenbaugh, J. B. Rogers and others. He got land and slaves from Willis Champion. His name is found not less than two dozen times in the courthouse records at Jasper in connection with land purchases. It is not known for certain the exact location of John's homeplace in the Cove. We know it joined that of Robert Beene, Sr., and touched on Ballard Point. The deed states that it was a part of one hundred and thirty acres of land originally belo nging to Captain Robert Beene, given to him by the state of Tennessee. Robert Beene, Sr. had a son Robert who witnessed another deed of John Wynn's. Also Robert, Jr. and John Wynn bought land in Union County, Arkansas jointly. They made two joint entries each of 5,000 acres in 1844 and 1849. The second 5,000 acres were on the mountain top, with a pond as part of boundry. This was probably the

The 1830 census records lists John Wynn as having two males under 5 years of age, two under 10 years of age. One female under 10, over 5 years. His wife is listed as being under 30, over 20 years. The two males over 5 and under 10 were William Buck and Little Berry. The two males under 5 were Thomas and Pleasant. John's sons John and George were not born at this time. The female under 10 years must have been a daughter who died before the next census of 1850.

John Wynn's wife was Peggy. According to one of the family they were the John Wynn and Peggy Kennedy married in Wilson County, Tennessee April 23, 1823. John was born in Georgia Oct. 9, 1800. Peggy was born in Tennessee in 1808.

By the time of the 1850 census all of the older sons had married. John and Peggy now had John, born about 1833, George born about 1834 Martha, born 1836, and Nancy, born 1839.

John and wife were members of the Primitive Baptist Church of Sweeden's Cove. It went by the name of The Union Church in the beginning. It began the second Saturday of October 1821. The building was built in 1822. The Wynn members of the church were: Mary, Nancy, Fanny, Mary, Mary, John, Sarah E., Nancy (received in 1825) Margueretta. Supposedly the land where the church is built belonged to John Wynn, and was bought from William Tollet.

When the Civil War broke out John was sixty one years of age. Judge Dave Tate said that John Wynn sold his land for Confederate money, and lost it all, of course. Judge Tate was John Wynn's son-in-law. He also stated that John owned more slaves than all other slave holders combined in Sweeden's Cove. But his loss in the War was even greater than his loss of land, as his son George was killed at Pt. Donelson, William Buck was sent home to die of jaundice. It is possible his son John also died as we know nothing of him following the War. It was during this nation's darkest gloom that our beloved ancestor closed his eyes for the last time and made his peaceful exit from this life. His body was laid at rest in a limestone tomb nestled between two mountains in King's Cove. Another son of the old pioneers, another adopted son of the great Cumberlands had bowed his head and gone to be with his fathers.

JOHN AND PEGGY WYNN'S CHILDREN

This section deals with the children of John and Peggy Wynn. Their first two sons, it is assumed, were twins. They were William Buck and L.B. Wynne.

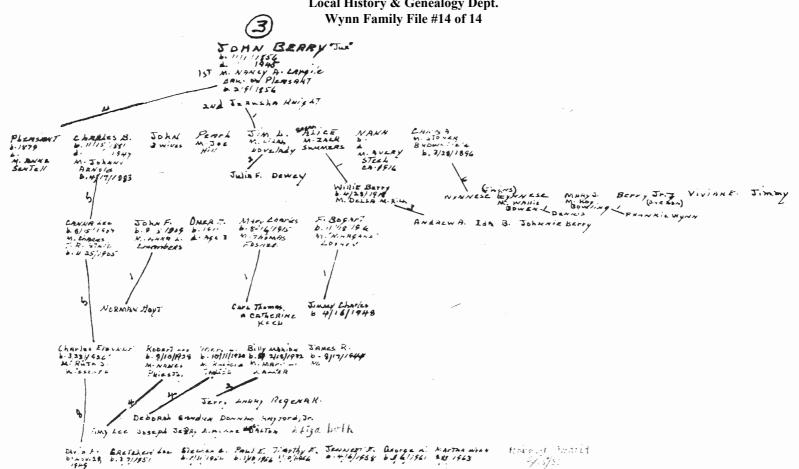

William Buck Wynne was born about 1823 in Tennessee. His wife was Martha Cowan. The 1860 Jackson County census records show William Buck and family in that county. They moved there about 1851-52. His children are listed in this order: Margaret, age 12, born Tenn., Mary, age 10, born Tenn., Nancy, age 8, born in Tenn., William, age 6, born in Tenn., John, age 3, born Ala., Martha, age 2/12 mos., born Ala. Missing from the record was the birth and name of James M., born the 4/10/1858. This was Jim Buck.

William Wynne was a successful farmer. His farm is now the Allen farm on Big Coon. His house was at the foot of the mountain on the old road. The new road cuts his farm through the middle. A part of his barn, and chimney to his house are still standing. His graveyard is near the new road. He is buried here. In fact several of the old Wynnes are buried there. Who they were we do not know. According to family tradition died as a Confederate soldier. His wife Martha followed shortly, about the end of the Civil War. Their will is at Scottsboro, and covers about fifteen pages.

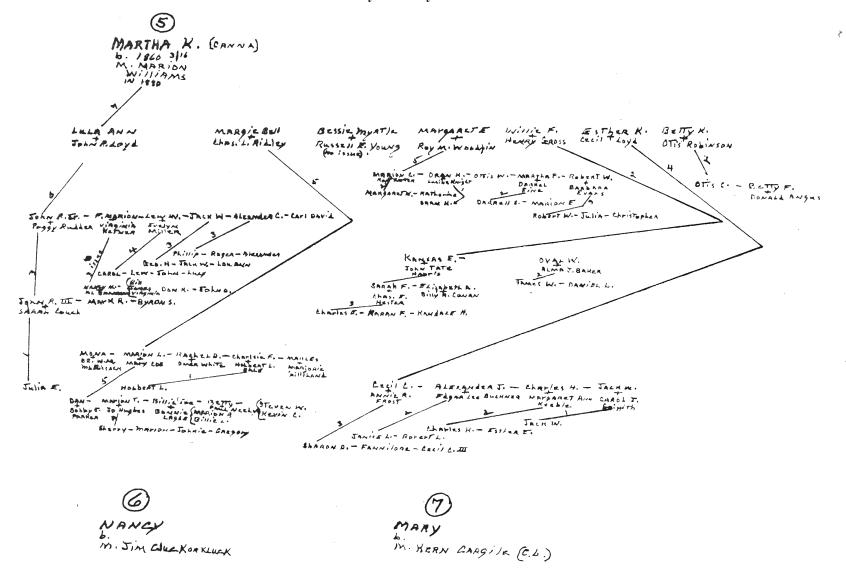

Martha Cowan had a sister Rebecca who married Thomas Wynne, brother to William Buck. They, Judge and Martha Tate, Lee Gentry, and Little Berry Wynne of King's Cove took the children of William and Martha and reared them. The Gentry and Wynne kin bought most of the estate. William and Martha's children:

L. B. WYNNE

L.B. Wynne was a probable twin brother to William Buck as their ages appear to e the same. His date of birth was 3/29/1823-24 in Tennessee. His first wife was iziah Long who was born 1822-23. She is believed to be the daughter of Arthur ong. When L.B. Wynne's first wife died he married Abigale Tate, whose probable ather was the old John K. Tate. Her brother Judge Dave Tate married Martha Wynne ister to William Buck and L.B. Wynne. L.B. Wynne's will was in 1880. His children re all listed who are covered on the following pages. See Will book Vol.5,p.208. everal of the older Wynnes today refer to him as 'Old Berry' in contrast to his on John Berry. Some even refer to him as John Berry, but this is incorrect, for is name was 'L.B.' or 'Little Berry' Wynne.

L.B. bought the King's Cove farm July 4th, 1861 from Samuel Raulston. He also bount 20 acres from S.W. Raulston the same day. This farm was the old home of Colames Raulston, the ancestor of all the Raulstons of this area, built about the ear 1817. It still stands today.

This farm stayed in the hands of the Wynnes for about a century. Here the gr. randfather of the writer was reared, being one of the orphans of William Buck, hose name was John Berry Wynne. L.B. went to Big Coon and got John Berry following is parent's death. John was twelve years old. Here John Berry was reared with the ons of L.B. who all later moved to Texas. John Berry visited his Texas cousins in 902 near Fort Worth. By Abigale Tate L.B. had a son named John Berry. This was the baby son of L.B.

THOMAS WYNNE

Thomas Wynne was the third son of John and Peggy Wynne. He was born 12/20/1827 in Tennessee. In the 1860 census we find Thomas Wynne and family listed as the following: Thomas Wynne, age 33, born in Tenn., Rebecca Wynne, age 33, born in Ky., John Wynne, age10, born Tenn., Margaret Wynne, age 8, born in Tenn., William Wynne, age 6, born Ala., Pleasant Wynne, age 4, born Ala., James, age 8/12 mos., born Ala. The younger children of Thomas Wynne had not yet been born.

Thomas Wynne's wife was Rebecca Cowan, sister to Martha Cowan. They lived on Big Coon Creek with Thomas' brothers William Buck and Pleasant, and their sister Martha Wynne Tate. Thomas Wynne, like his brother seems to have been quite an industrius farmer. It is stated that he always had enough money to buy a farm or two if he needed it. 'Uncle Tom' as the younger Wynnes call him was slender, and apparently a vigorous man. It appears that he was buried in the Shipp graveyard at his death in 7/8/1894. 'Aunt Beccy' died 12/9/1894. It is stated that at the time of their death they lived behind the Long Acre graveyard near Stevenson.

GEORGE WYNNE

George Wynne was the youngest son of John Wynne. The census records state that he was born about 1834. He died at Ft. Donelson during the Civil War..He married Nancy Payne, daughter of the old Payne ancestor Robert. Nancy married

George Wynne's farm is now the Ellis farm, across from Smithtown where the

PLEASANT WYNNE

Pleasant Wynne was the fourth son of John and Peggy Wynne. The information received on Pleasant and his family is not as great as that of the others of John's family. He was born in Tennessee in about 1829. His wife was Anna Ballard. At least all indications seem to suggest that his wife was a Ballard. Pleasant lived on Big Coon Creek below Stevenson with his brothers. He sold out to Dave Tate, his brother-in-law, and moved to Missouri in the late 1800's. He moved from Big Coon in two red wagons tradition states.

His oldest son was George Wynne, born 1849 according to the census records. He had another son named William Wynne. Some say his name was William Berry Wynne. Another son was Pleasant or 'Bud' Wynne who also moved to Missouri with his father. He had a large family of children, and returned living a few years at Rash, Alabama near Big Coon Creek, but left again(Tradition says that Bud had at least four sons: William, James, Thomas, and Paul). Pleasant and Anna Wynne had at least one daughter we know of whose name 'Shug.' She married John Floyd who lived on William Buck's farm for a while and made spinning wheels, shuttles, spools, etc.

JOHN WYNNE

John Wynne was the fifth son of John and Peggy Wynne. He was born in 1833 in Tennessee. Absolutely nothing is known of him. Martha Wynne Tate was quite fond of a brother called 'Jack.' He could have moved to Missouri, Arkansas or Texas. It is possible he was killed during the Civil War.

MARTHA A. WYNNE.

Martha A. Wynne was the oldest daughter of John and Peggy Wynne. It is possible they had another daughter, but we are not certain. She was born May 7, 1836, and died April 22, 1886. She married David Tate whose father is thought to be the old John K. Tate. David Tate had at least three sisters the writer knows of: Comfort, Abigale, and Margaret Tate. Their brother was possibly John K. Tate. David was born December 5, 1824, died April 24, 1908. They lived on Big Coon Creek near Martha's brothers William, Thomas and Pleasant. They are both buried in the Dave Tate family graveyard near the homeplace.

Of course, Judge Dave Tate is well remembered in Jackson County, Alabama till this day. He was a prominent man in his day. He was known for his hog drives from North Alabama, Paint Rock Valley, etc to Georgia.

The following covers their children as is known of and about them: Margaret or 'Maggie' was the oldest child. She married Robert Williams and moved to Texas. Her second marriage was to a Patterson. (Margaret's children were Albert, Dave, Robbie, Ethel, and Tennessee.) The second child was Tennessee. She married her first cousin David Tate. (Their issue: Martha, Maggie, Kate, Clarence, John K., Milton A., Euna, and Dave.) The third child was John Knox who married Callie Devers. (Their issue: Leona, Milton, Ethel, and Sam.) Their fourth child was Edward. He married a Williams. (Their issue: Dave, John Berry, Eddie, and Bill.) The fifth child was Milton who died young. Their sixth child was Sam who married a Williams. (Their children were Wyness and Ilva.) Comfort was the seventh. She married G.W. Allison. (Their issue: May, Tom D., John, Sam, George, Roy, Edd, and Amanda.) Mack was the last child. He married Tennie McCrary. (Their issueComfort, Martha, Esther, and John D.)

NANCY WYNNE

There is something very tender and affectionate about the baby of any family. Not only was this one the baby, but the baby daughter of John and Peggy Wynne. Nancy was born 1839 in Tennessee. She married Pearl Drain, and they moved to Sand Mountain. She is buried at the Piney Grove Baptist Church graveyard. She and her husband lived at Grove Oak for some time, then to Tinbrook where they ran a store. Her son-in-law Mack Bethune in 1963 was between eighty and ninety years of age, and told the writer that Nancy Wynne was very pretty woman; always wore a bonnet. During the Civil War she lost two horses given to her by her father, to Union soldiers. At one stage of the War she rode one of her horses over dead and dying soldiers. As the skirmish in Sweeden's Cove was the only battle ever fought in this area she must have witnessed it. Her side saddle is at Valley Head in the Saddlery there on display.

We knew nothing of Nancy Wynne until one of Martha Tate's grandsons, now near ninety, mentioned an aunt Nancy living on Sand Mountain in the 1890's; that he and some of the young Tate boys were crossing the mountain at that time and spent the night in her home. Mack Bethune mentioned that his wife, Dora Drain Bethune, as a girl spent a great deal of time with her Tate cousins on Coon. Nancy Wynne Drain's children were as follows: John Drain, md. Mary Richie. He moved to Pickens County, Alabama. (Their issue: John, Arthur, Maggie, Dora, and Martha.) The second child was Arthur Drain, md. Phoebe Richie. His descendants live at Roadentown near Crossville, Alabama. (Their issue: One son Gurlie, 5 daughters.) Their third child was Maggie, md. Cub Berry. A picture of Maggie is a true likeness of the Wynnes. (Her son was Pearly Berry.) The fourth child was Dora, md Mack Bethune. (Their issue: Claude, md. Winnie McGuire. They live near Hennegar, Ala., Eunice, md a Ray, Clarence, Malcomb, Floyd D., md a Stone, Estelle, Nettie, Bertha, and Lella.) The last child of of Nancy Drain's was Josie who married John Tucker, and lived near Grove Oak.

OTHER WYNNES OF MARION COUNTY

Living in Marion County with John Wynne and the other early settlers were other Wynne families. John had a brother who was his twin living in Sweeden's Cove. The Jasper courthouse contains some information on this Thomas Wynne and his children. Thomas bought land in the Cove and on Battle Creek, and on the mountain. He died in the 1840's leaving a wife and eleven children. His wife was Nancy Sweeden Wynne. When Thomas Wynne died she married Jesse Beene, the youngest son of Captain Robert Beene. They moved to Itawamba County, Miss. Upon the death of Thomas Wynne, John his brother became guardian to some of the children for a while John Wynne bought most of Thomas' state from the children, who had moved either to Arkansas or Mississippi. The children were John, born 1827, , md. Martha Beene, born 1821. Both are buried at the Wynne Cemtary near Dierks, Arkansas. Mrs. Savannah Wynne Beane of 2505 W. 17th St. Little Llushe Co Book, Arkansas is an authority on this family. The second child was Rachel, born 1830, md. William W. Beene, born 1827, died 1872. Rachel died in 1906. Both are buried near Haynesville, La. Rear the Ramah Cemetary. Mrs. Vera Beene Looney of 711 Macæy St., Camden, Arkansas is an authority on this line . #### MATTHEW WYNNE

It is possible that Matthew Wynne was brother to John and Thomas. He was born around 1800. His wife was Nancy Beene, daughter of Obediah Beene, Matthew and his family moved up above Chattanooga near Tyner, Tennessee. There they both died. They had four daughters. Mary Ann Wynne was born June 6, 1828. She married John S. Raulston, one of the sons of Col. James Raulston. John was born August 15, 1824, died November 25, 1906. Mary died October 11, 1871. (Their issue: Millie, born April 25, 1853, died September 1913. Md. Sam M. Beene. Martha Raulston. Jane Raulston, md. Tom Henson. Sallie Raulston, md. Tom Gilliam. Riley Raulston md. Nervie Decherd. Matthew's next daughter was Mildred or Millie who md. Bryce Byrn Raulston in 1847. She was born 12/7/1830, died 8/1/1894. Bryce was born 1/6/1826, died 4/4/1913. Bryce Byrn Raulston, according to tradition, in the old house built by his father Col. James Raulston around 1817-20 in King's Cove. Matthew Wynne had another daughter named Sarah who married Hugh White Raulston, the son of Robert S. Raulston. Hugh and Sarah had 10 children. Another daughter of Matthew Wynne was Elizabeth, who in the 1850 census was living with one Joseph Raul-ston and wife Barberry.

Mr. J.Leonard Raulston of South Pittsburg, Tennessee is contemplating a historical work on Marion County and some of her early pioneers. Much credit on the Raulstons and Beans goes to him found in connection with this material.

ANDERSON WYNNE

In the 1850's an Anderson Wynne also lived with the other Wynnes of Marion County, Tennessee. He was of the same age level as John, Thomas, and Matthew. His name might suggest an Anderson-Wynne connection. In fact in the early part of the 1700's a Wynne married an Anderson. This was Col. Joshua's grandson, who lived with the Wynnes and Beans in Pittsylvania County, Virginia.

The Wynnes married into the Maybury family back in the 1600's in Virginia.

Mr. Robert L. Landrum II P.O. Box 577 Abita Springs, Louisiana 70420

_Dear Bob,

We might as well be informal, so will call you by your first name. We received your letter and enclosures today, and can see no link yet, but may-be if we can trace back farther, it will show up.

If you will look at the pedigree chart, you will see that my husband's maternal and paternal grandfathers were both Giuseppe Tarantino's. His maternal grandfather (No. 6) was the man that visited New Orleans in 1889. He then went to New York, back to Sicily to marry and then came to Milwaudee. My inlaws are second cousins, as they had the same great-grandfather. My father-inlaw said there is a lot of inter-marriage in the small villages in Sicily and that is why all the Tarantino maiden names. If you look at a map of Sicily and locate Palermo, to the right of Palermo (few miles) St. Elia is located and then a few miles to the left of Palermo is Arenella (at rhe base of Mt. Pelegrino). There are many small towns within a few block radius. You will not be able to find St. Elia and Arenella on the map. Palermo is the big town near them. Many years ago St. Elia and Arenella did not have churches and all the records were sent to St. Flavia.

It may be a few weeks or a month before we hear from the aunts, but will let you know when we do. It is like pulling teeth to get any information out of Italy.

I have already written to the Mormon Church in Utah and they sent back the reply that to do a Reasearch Survey in their Index Bureau and Archives would cost $10.00 and that will just let you know if someone else is working on the same family line as you are. We didn't think it was worth it because we know they have done no microfilming in Sicily, as they haven't been allowed into the churches yet. We have a branch library in Milwaukee and looked through their index of microfilms and the only area of Italy they have filmed is the Piedmont region in northern Italy. I also asked them for the names of any accredited researchers that do Italian research and they have only two. Their names are: Hugh T. Law

1216 Lillie Circle
Salt Lake City, Utah
84121

See 5:

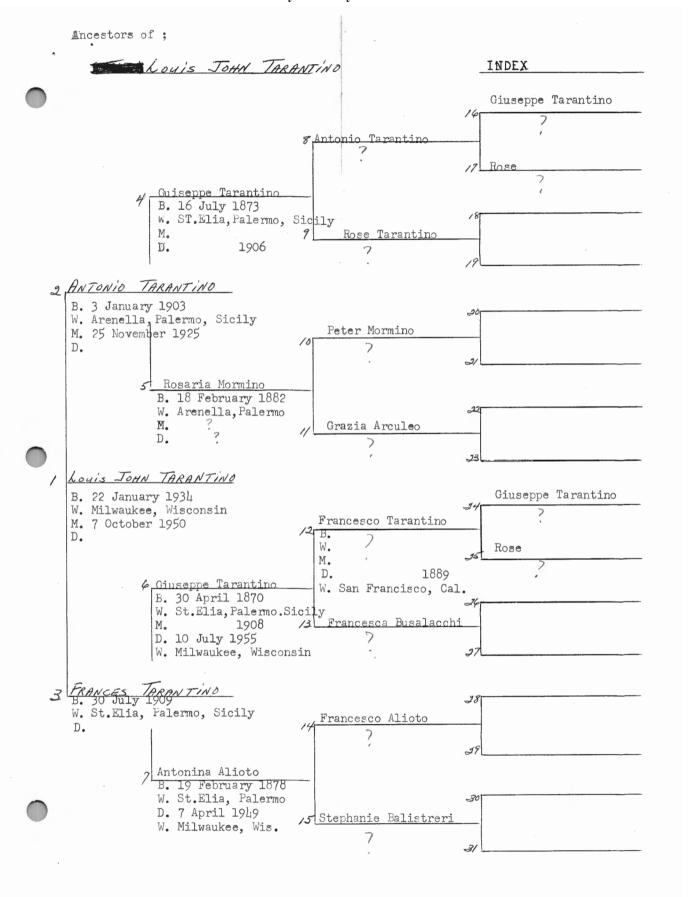

Norbert LaFranca 261 East 1200 South Bountiful, Utah 84010

I have not written to them yet, but was going to, just to see what they would charge. Would you like to write or should I? The January 1973 issue of the Helper is where I had taken the address of the Istituto Genealogico Italiano from and they are the ones that want $400 to do the research and it would take them a year to do it. If you want it translated into English, it would cost another $45.00 and then if you want a coat of arms, that would be another $60.00. I would really like to have it, but that is way too much money, even if the cost were divided. The idea of sharing the cost of a research is good providing it isn't an extreme amount, which I'm sure you don't want to do either. We would like to see what we get from the aunts first, because we could have them get records right there. We are having a little trouble getting them to understand what we want it for and they are also getting old.

I also had sent for a coat-of-arms to Halbert's in Ohio, but they said they did not have one at the present time for the Tarantino name. The ones from there don't necessarily apply to your own family. I haven't heard of the place in Boston.

-3-Spoke to my father-in-law tonight about the Nicolo Tarantino and as he said he has a cousin by that name, whose father was Giuseppe Tarantino and mother was Maria Mormino, but said your Nicolo is too old to be his cousin. If tradition was followed and your Nicolo was named after his grandfather and our Nicolo was named after his grandfather, they could be cousins somewhere far down the line. This sounds so jumbled when I read it over, I hope you can understand it. I am enclosing a pedigree chart and some family group sheets that you can keep and we will let you know when we hear from Sicily. If there is anything else you want to know, just write. Write anyway. Sincerely, Leona Tarantino Louis and Leona Tarantino

Mr. Robert L. Landrum II, President The Wynne Family and Kinsmen Association P. O. Box 577 Abita Springs, La. 70420

Dear Mr. Landrum:

I recently learned that my grandmother Marinda Elizabeth Winn was a double Winn: her parents, Clayton Winn and Marinda Winn, were apparently first cousins. Grandmother is in the 1870 Washington County, Arkansas, census, listed as M. E. Winn in household 192, page 192, West Fork, headed by Z. C. Winn and Marinda. Her marriage record to my grandfather John Pendergraft, 11 April 1880, is on file in the Washington Co., Ark., Court House.

I would like to inquire about joining the Winne (etc.) Family Association and to ask how I can learn more about the family. Are there any publications available concerning the history of the family?

My special interest is Indians as I make my living painting them. Grandmother Winn claimed to be part Indian. Can you tell me of any traditions in the family of Indian blood?

Fraternal regards,

Sincerely,

Allen Prudrigraft

Dear Mr. Pendergraft:

Would you be so kind as to forgive me for not answering your letter sooner than now. The reason being is that I have moved twice since I received your letter. And I am just getting settled for good I hope. All this was due to my work.

I note their is only 1 year 5 days difference in your birthday and my Fathers he is a year older than you. I myself was born July 4,1941. And also I might add that I also paint and do metal sculpture, an have had several shows. But I do it as a extra hobby.

You are correct about your Grandmother, that she was a double WINN, as you stated.

I have filled out the lineage part of the Application. Please fill out the rest of it and return it to me. We would welcome you as a member of The Wynne Family And Kinsmen Association. We do put out a Newsletter it is put out by The President of the Association , Carolyn de Vries of Cupertino, Calif. Dues are $ 5.00 (five dollar) per year due in October of each year.

In your chart you sent to me , you had Ann Nancy BLOYD s Father as John of S.C. According to the information I have from Dr. W.W. Smith (now dead) He has her Father as being Eli BLOYD of Ky. and her Mother as Mary GRAHAM. ------Also the Father of Rosemond HAMPTON is John HAMPTON, Jr. and her Mother is Margaret WADE.

HAMPTON, Jr. and her Mother is Margaret WADE.

Now as for Capt. John WINN who married Elizabeth MINOR (Her Father is thought to be? John MINOR) WE also think but cant prove that Capt. John WINN is the son of Capt. Thomas WINN (WYNNE) and his wife Dorothy HINES. If this is so this Capt. Thomas WYNNE comes through the Gwydir WYNN Branch of Wales.

If you have any questions or ideas please let me know of them. Hope to hear from you soon.

Sincerely.

Dear Mr. Landrum 11;

Here is part one of the information I have on the different spellings on the Wynne families. I have a great deal more information from different parts of the world, also from the United States that I will send to you when you send me some information I can use on my husband's Wynn line. We are blocked on his great grandfather J Wynn who married a Daniels lady & had a son by the name of William Jennings Wynn who married Caroline Girton who was the dau. of Elijah Girton & Phebe Gard who was the dau. of Benjamin Gard & Eliza Adams.

I am inclesing a Pedigree Chart en all ef my husbands lines, se you can see just hew far we have gone en all his lines, but the line we are most interested in at present is the Wynn line, giving the full name of J Wynn and the first name of the Daniels lady that he married, also where they were born, and how many children they had besides William Jennings Wynn.& all dates of birth, marriage & death.

It is said that William Webb Wynn and William Jennings Wynn are first Cousins, so the father of William Webb Wynn & the father of William Jennings Wynn are brothers & William Webb Wynn was bern I think in Sciete County, Ohie While William Jennings Wynn was bern in Harrison which is right on the line between Ohio and Indiana, in fact part of Harrison is in Indiana and part in Ohio.

Will really appreciate what ever help you can give us on my husbands Wynn line. William Jennings Wynn was born in 1832 in Harrison, Ohio.

Hepeing to hear from you whenever you can.

Sincerely Mrs. Earl P. Wynn

Dear Mr. Landrum,

When I joined the Wynne Family and Kinsmen Association my oldest record was a will recorded in 1826 in Wilson County, TN in which Rebecca Wynns listed her children: (The name of her husband is unknown.)

Elizabeth Polly
Ridley Rebecca
James Judy
Frances Joseph B.

The 1850 Census shows Ridley Buncombe (above) was born in 1799 in North Carolina.

Joshua Hooker was a witness when Ridley Wynn married in 1816. He also witnessed land transactions with Ridley and his mother Rebecca. In some notes I made while talking with my grandmother she said her husband (son of Ridley) had a cousin named Tom Hooker, so I have assumed Joshua Hooker married one of the girls listed above.

See the attached DAR record. Sometime ago I explained the probability of Rebecca's husband being named Thomas and you checked your records. Since then I have obtained two other DAR records on persons I am almost certain belong to my line who claim to be descendants of Lt. Thomas Wynn. I feel there is a connection but have not been able to figure it out. The husband of my Rebecca would be about the age of the Thomas who married Elizabeth Reese. It seems to me that too many generations were included in the DAR record.

I now know that Lt. Thomas Wynn was a descendant of Dr. Thomas Wynn who came to Pennsylvania with William Penn. See the attached material on WYNNSTAY. With this additional information, I wonder if you could check what you have on Dr. Thomas Wynn to see if you can find any connection to my Rebecca (maiden name Ridley, I think.) Could it be that Thomas Wynn - born 1762 - died 1810 - had two wives, and someone got mixed up on what was included in the DAR record? Or are there any others who could have married Rebecca?

Anything you might come up with will be appreciated so very much. As you can see if I could find the right connection with this line, I would have my line pretty well figured out back to Wales.

Thank you very much.

Sincerely,

Pett Wynn

Mr. Robert L. Landrum P.O. Box 577 Abita Springs, Louisiana 70420

Dear Mr. Landrum:

Your name has been given to me by Dennis Ray Wynn, who says that you collect Winn data and are interested in starting a Winn/Wynn association. I would be most interested in joining the latter, if it is organized. With regard to the former, I have been searching for James Allen Winn, born July 8, 1806, in Maine. Although I have come so close I thought I had him, I have not been able to find him. However, in the course of searching through New England records for him, I have collected a respectable amount of material on the descendants of Edward and Johanna Winn, immigrated from Ipswich, Suffolk, England, to Woburn (at that time Charlestown), Middlesex, Massachusetts, in 1639. Their grandson, Josiah Winn, migrated to Wells, York County, Maine, around 1690, and proliferated Maine with his descendants.

James Allen Winn, my great grandfather, left his home in Maine, in the company of unnamed relatives or friends, at the age of 14 years and came to Louisiana. I do not know how long he stayed in Louisiana, but because of later events believe it may have in the St. Landry (later Calcasieu) Parish; possibly as early as 1826 but certainly by 1829 he was in East Texas (1st Liberty District, then Jefferson County, and finally in adjoining Jasper County). He came to Texas in the company of James and Elizabeth (McCoy) McFadden, having become separated (probably not by accident) from his Maine traveling companions. He was married to Queen Elizabeth Hart, daughter of Thomas Warren and Olive (Barlow) Hart, in the St Landry Catholic Church December 10, 1836. This is not inconsistent with his having been in East Texas earlier since the McFaddens were cattle raisers and he would have driven cattle between Texas and Louisiana. In late 1842 or early 1843, James Allen Winn was shot from ambush while riding double with his 4-year old son in Jasper County, Texas.

All that has come down to me of his family in Maine was that he had a stepmother and brothers named Rufus, Joseph, and Otis. I found the family of Benjamin and Sarah (Allen) Winn, which fits this description exactly. However, my James Allen Winn (shown on the enclosed pedigree) simply is not in this family. All that I am sure of at this point is that he must be descended from Edward through Josiah for the simple reason that all the Winns in Maine sprang from Josiah—at least each and every one that I have traced.

Although I haven't found James Allen Winn (haven't given up, am still looking), I hate to have the material I have accumulated lost. I have therefore offered to work it up for a number of serious researchers, including Dennis Ray Wynn. If you would like to have a copy, I will be happy to include you. Please do not expect it overnight. I estimate it will require at least six months to complete. There isn't really that much to record but I have to allot my time among other things, including a fulltime job!

Robert L. Landrum WINN data

Among the names on Mr. Wynn's list of interested researchers, I recommend to you Mrs. Benjamin F. Winn of California (the name of the town is misspelled on the list). She also is collecting Winns everywhere although her particular branch originated in Virginia. She has access to good records and is generous in sharing.

I enclose a stamped addressed envelope and would greatly appreciate your checking your records for Maine Winns in general and James Allen Winn in particular.

Sincerely,

Daughan Jinn

Dear Bob,

Mildred S. Winn of Homer, La, offered to give me much information that I don*t have, but we apparently have a discrepancy which should be cleared up.

She suggested I purchase (which I did) the book "Memoirs and History of the Peyton Tucker Family" by Reuel Walter Tucker, which includes much information on the Wynnes, and takes my Ephraim Jackson and Lucretia Tucker on back several generations.

The Tucker Book and Mildred S. Winn, who also got her information from the "Papers of Mrs. Lucille Pleasants" lists:

ROBERT WYNNE of the 1754 WILL, Sussex Co, Va. married 1st Anne Bolling, dau of Robert Bolling & Anne Stith, had issue married 2nd Mary Phillipson 9 Aug 1753, Brunswick Co, Va.

In your letter dated 1 Oct 1975 to me you wrote:

ROBERT WYNNE m 1st Martha Johnson, and 2nd (my ancestor) Mary Hewitt whom her married in 1753, Brunswick Co, dau of William Hewitt and Mary Hansford. Mary Hewitt was born ca 1695 in York Co, Va, died 1788, Greens-ville Co, Va, and her WILL was recorded in Orange Co, Va.

Was the above Robert Wynne who m 1st Martha Johnson and 2nd Mary Hewitt the same Robert Wynne who left the 1754 WILL in Sussex?

In other words, I am very confused, and please, if you are not too busy, straighten me out on this one generation. I think I have everything else in its' proper place.

The Wynne-Tucker line gets more complex and interesting as time goes on, and I shall always be thankful for learning of the WYNNE Family Assn.

Sincerely, Sorathy -

P.S. I have corresponded with Mrs. Earl B. Short of Dinwiddie, as you suggested.

Dear Mrs. de Vries:

Thank you for your letter of April 26th, requesting that I help with the financial committee of the Wynne Association. I shall be happy to serve, but would like to know more of the organizational structure and plans, especially relating to financing and research. I have met Robert Landrum and think very highly of him. My Winn line is one of my secondary lines, but would like very much to get proof of its Welsh origin.

I shall be happy to hear from you.

Gentlemen:

For genealogical purposes I am trying to trace my family back to Dr. Thomas Nynne, who I am told was physician to William Penn and came over with him on the WELCOME. Would you, by any chance, have any information on this or on any of the later Wynnes? Somewhere in the mid-1800's my great-grandfather changed theaspelling to Wiam but my father later changed it back again. Letept for the dector's only son, Johnathan, I believe the oldest son was always named Thomas until my father who was named Coleman (born 1888).

Any information with which you can provide me will be gratefully appreciated.

THE WYNNE FAMILY AND KINSMEN ASSOCIATION

ROBERT L. LANDRUM II, PRESIDENT 6416 PONTCHARTRAIN BOULEVARD NEW ORLEANS, LOUISIANA 70124

Dear Cousin,

It is the purpose of THE WYNNE FAMILY AND KINSMEN ASSOCIATION to preserve the records of those persons bearing the name of Wynne (Wynn, Winn, Winne, etc.) and to make available those records for our descendants. Much information has been gathered on our family and plans for the publication of the first book have been formulated. We would like, however, to be able to include in our first publication as many lines as possible. Knowing your interest in this family we wonder if you wouldn't like to send all information you have on your Wynne (Wynn, Winn, Winne, etc.) lines to us. Even if you do not know much about your ancestors we may be able to connect them with the tremendous volume (approximately 13, 489 names) of material already collected. We are also interested in copies of old wills, photocopies of Bible records, and pictures of your Wynne (Wynn, Winn, Winne, etc.) ancestors.

As a researcher you know that research and genealogical publications are expensive and time consuming. How wonderful it will be to pool our resources, our time, and our individual research in a series of publications which will preserve those difficult-to-obtain records for our descendants.

Yearly dues in THE WYNNE FAMILY AND KINSMEN ASSOCIATION are $5.00. If you would like to share in this project, please send your application and remittance along with your Wynne (Wynn, Winn, Winne, etc.) line to us at your very earliest convenience.

Sincerely yours,

Yes, I will be happy to join your Wynne Ass. As you page 49 can see by the enclosed Pedigree Charts/my one and only Wynn to date is Margaret Meredydd Wynn born about 1530. With a name like that she must have been important enough to have some ancestors which I do hope you will be able to help me locate. I have many family group sheets on the other members of the family. These I obtained at the Salt Lake Gen. Soc. but I am not sending any of them at this time because I did not know if you need them.

Mrs. Robert L. Wynne 7126 Walkway Houston, Texas 77036

Dear Mrs. Wynne:

Thank you for your letter and Wynne line. The line you sent me is written up in Boddie's "Virginia Historical Genealogies". Chapter entitled "Wynne of Prince George and Sussex." It goes back two generations further than you sent me; Robert Wynne, Mayor of Canterbury England in 1599 died 6 August 1609. His son Peter Wynne died 30 May 1638 and was married to Martha Coppin dau. of William

Peter Wynne and Martha Coppin were the parents of Col. Robert Wynne who was born in Canterbury England 28 December 1622 and died in 1675 in Virginia. He was Speaker of the House of Burgresses in Virginia during the long Parliament, 1661-74. His will was probated in England since he owned property there. He married Mary Poythress (a widow who had a son Frances) apparently. Their children were Thomas, Robert, Mary who married John Woodlief and had a son George Woodlief) and our ancestor Major Joshaa Wynne who died 1715. (below)

m. Mary Jones dau. of Capt. Peter Jones & wife Margaret dau. of Maj. Gen. Abraham Wood children: 1 Peter Wynne m. Frances Cau. of John Anderson and widow of John Herbert. 2. Joshua Wynne m. Mary? In 1724 he was residing near Stony Creek Bridge in Prince George and in 1738 he was militia officer in Prince George.

Children: (a) Robert m. Frances?

(b) Martha b. April 6, 1720

Joshua b. November 26, 1722, m. Lucretia ? and had (1) Soloman b. October 13, 1745; (2) Joshua, living in Dinwiddle 1782; (3) Robert, b. 1749, died Dec. 21, 1824 aged 75.

(d) Thomas b. April 6, 1726

(e) Solman lived in Sussex where his will was probated in 1760

- 3. Robert Wynne m. Frances?
- 4. Frances Wynne
- 5. William Wynne m. Frances ?

(This is my ancestor and I have his descendants on down to me)

There is some discrepancies between my records, your records and Boddies. I don't know which is right, but I may have a geneologist from Virginia work on parts of it. (Mainly from my William directly above (5) to son William and his children coming on down.) I see that above (c) Joshua's descendants don't correspond with yours

I believe Boddies writings are generally accepted and quite accurate, but still there are no doubt some errors.

For instance, it seems very unlikely that Joshua Wynne and Mary Jones's children all married girls named Frances (except Joshua who married Mary), and there was also a son (or dau? named Frances ) See Nos. 1.3.4.5. on first page?? Strange. And then Joshua's (2) son (a) Robert also married Frances. Possible I guess, but seems likely that some records were probably mistaken.

I also have Boddie's "Historical Southern Families Vol. II" in which there are two Wynne chapters. One is Wynne of Tazwell County, Va." which brings on my Williams line. And the other is "Wynn - Wynne of North Carolina" but neither of these families have any names of Appling, Magruder or Giesler.

I am sure of my Wynne line back to a William Wynne b. August 10, 1729, d. 1808 in Tazwell co., Va. Married Cythia Mary Harmon first and Phylis Marr second. This far I had before I found Boddies book. Then I ran across Vol It "Historical Southern Families" and the Wynne family was taken back to this William Wynne born 1729 died 1808 etc. Then there was a note saying "continued from Va. Hist. Gen. page 183" so I sent for that beok and that is where the information I gave you beginning this letter was taken from.

I am not sure these two are the same Wynnes however. This William Wynne is supposed to be the son of the William Wynne m. Frances ? (5) on my first page. That is the link that joins the two chapters, but my William Wynne had 13 children by 1782 (26 altogether ugh!) and The first chapter of Boddies ending with him says he was head of a family of three in 1782. So there is something wrong someplace. (I wouldn't doubt if there were at least a hundred William Wynnes and just as many Joshua Wynnes back in those times. My William Wynne named a son Joshua and he is my ancestor (b. Sept. 9, 1765 m. Mary Whitley)

I don't know if this is any help to you. "Historical Southern Families" Vol V. has a chapter "Wynne-Tucker-Bell of Va., S.C. and La." and Vol VI has a chapter "Winn-Wynne and Stone of Va. and Tenn." I have not seen either of these. These books are $10.00 apiece (also Vol.II previously mentioned) And"Virginia Historica Genealogies" is $15.00 from the Genealogical Publishing Company, 521-23 St. Paul Place, Baltimore, Maryland 21202. Or most Genealogical Libraries have them.

Dear Mrs. De Vries:

I had a letter from Dr. Paul Gray suggesting I join the Winn Family Association. I enclose $5. I descend from Zadock "Zedick" Winn son of Col. William Winn of Fairfield District, S. C. I enclose a chart back to him and on back to Capt. Owen Winn, to Va. 1610, though that second page is mostly unproved, based on second-hand material from other researchers and from THE COMP ENDIUM OF AMERICAN GENEALOGY. I understand there is some question about the first two or three generations shown on my chart and that a purpose of the family association is to do further research in this area. My family tradition is that the real name of my ancestor was Zadok or Zadock and that his nickname was "Zedick."

I hope I am writing to the right person. If not, please forward this. I wrote to Mr. Landrum first, whose address was also given me by Dr. Gray, but I have received no response. Maybe he is in Wales doing some first-hand research.

Fraternal regards.

27 August, 1973.

Dear Sir,

I write in reply to your letter of 10 August.

The possibility that a member of the Wynn of Gwydir family emigrated to America has exercised the minds of more than one Welsh-American would-be descendant. So far, we have been quite unable to establish the truth of this tradition, and I am of the view that in your case you are not likely to achieve any positive results by pursuing this line of research.

The difficulty of course/that one cannot with certainty suggest any other alternative line of descent. I have noted that the surname occurs in the index to J. C. Hotten: The Original Lists of Persons of Quality; Emigrants; ... who went from Great Britain to the American Plantations 1600-1700, but this work provides no more than personal names, and lacks any evidence of place-name identification.

I am not unmindful too that one of the principal Quaker emigrants from Wales in the late 17th century was Dr. Thomas Wynne from Flintshire. His descent is discussed in detail in T. Allen Glenn: Welsh Founders of Pennsylvania Vol. I (Oxford, 1911) and I am enclosing herewith part of a chart from this work which may possibly be of some help to you. If you think you can profitably follow this line of descent, are you in a position to consult Glenn's work? It is a most authoritative and well documented piece of research, but may well be entirely outside your field of study. I am in fact clutching at the proverbial straws, and would be glad to know your reaction.

Yours faithfully,

B. G. Owens.

Re: Wynn of Gwydir

Dear Sir:

This past October you were kind enough to send to me in care of my friend in Poole, Dorset "Calender of Wynn Papers". I had been in Llanwrst because of my WINN ancestors, but after reading and investigating further, it appeared to me that Sir Owen Wynne of Gwydir did not come to America as some genealogists assert. Apparently one Owen Wynne, Thomas and Peter Wynne did come to Virginia with the II and III Virginia Charters, and we are attempting to ascertain correct origin of our Winn (Wynne) ancestors. I descend from Minor Winn, 1690-1779.

Do you have anyone on your staff, or do you have knowledge of anyone that might check records on Wynne as to who came to Virginia in the early 17th century? "Calender of Wynn Papers" has many references to several Owen Wynns and Gwyns, but no references to America. Could it be that it was Thomas or Owen Wynn referred to in letter #302, dated September 14, 1604, that came to America and not Sir Owen Wynne who is reputed to have emmigrated to the Virginia colony under the III Charter? To your knowledge, are there any Wynne descendents presently in Wales that have an interest or information of family history with whom I might correspond?

If material is present in your library relative to my questions and someone is available to report to me, I would not expect such work to be done without proper compensation. I shall be glad to hear from you and if work has been or can be done on Wynne (Gwyn) an estimate of charges will be welcomed.

Thank you for your consideration and your past favor.

Sincerely,

Paul M. Gray, M.D.

Abita Springs, LA 70420

Dear Mr. Landrum,

I recently got your name as having WINN records from Mr. Southerland of Ala. I hope you don't mind my writing to you for help.

My 3 gg father was James Wynne, born 1800 in Ga. I first located him in Laurens Co., Ga. where he married Winney Lassater, born 1805, on 3 Jun 1821. I next found them in Wilkinson Co., Ga. in the 1850 Census. I have been trying to locate his parents, and have come across several Wynne families, but have been unable to connect him with any of them.

James and Winney had the following children:

Aremia Hudley, 1831 Union L., 1833 Willis Wiley, 1836 Mary Christiana, 1840 (my 2 gg mother) Jasper Lafayette, 1843 Ames Calvin, 1849

There were a few other Wynne marriages in Laurens Co., at the time I found the marriage of James and Winney, but mone of the couples were old enough to be his parents. I found a family there in the 1850 Census which must be connect with James's family because of the similarity of names:

John H. Wynne, 38 Elizabeth A., 34 Marion, 13 Mandy, 11 Elizabeth, 8 Franklin, 7

*Willis, 5 *Jasper, 4 *Lafayette, 2 Washington, 6/12

If you have anything about this branch of the Wynne family, I would greatly appreciate hearing from you.

Sincerely,

MRS. C. WAYNE SHORE 10203 Tioga Dr.

Dear Mrs. Wynne:

I don't know very much about the Wynne; actually I am seeking information to clarify the question of whether James Kite and his wife Martha (Wynne) Kite stayed in the Philadelphia area or moved to Virginia, as some as inclined to think.

The Wynnes I am interested in were Quaker. Probably the first one in the Philadelphia area was a Dr. Thomas Wynne, physician to William Penn, who came to America with Penn in 1682. Somehow Martha Wynne was related to him. Your Wynne line seems to be earlier than this, so I can't, at the moment, see a connection.

Best of luck in your Wynne search.

So to Stewar Wyne Vola

MERION or BLOCKLEY MEETING.

West of the Schuylkill River, within the present limits of the city and county of Philadelphia, there was in very early times, a Meeting of the Society of Friends. Mary J. Walker, in her sketch of Merion Friends' Meeting, written in 1895, states: - "The first Monthly Meeting recorded in the minutes, still preserved, was held 10th of Second Month, 1684, at Thomas Duckett's house in Schuylkill, then followed one at John Bevan's house in Haverford, and Hugh Roberts' house in Merion. Soon after the first meeting a committee was appointed to select suitable grounds for burial-places near the three meetings. Of the three grounds selected, those of Haverford and Merion, with additions are still used; that of Schuylkill has long ago been overrun and occupied by Philadelphia's increasing business. It was on the Schuylkill front of Thomas Duckett's farm, at what is now Thirty-second and Market streets, and after some time passed from the Society of Friends into the possession of strangers. The street at the west end of Market street bridge passes through it, all traces of it having now disappeared. We have no knowledge of any meeting-house ever being built at that place."

The meeting here referred to was called "Schuylkill". Doubtless Mary J. Walker obtained some of her information from an earlier written assertion of Dr. George Smith, who, in 1872, was quoted by the Friends' Intelligencer as seying:- "Although some portions of the early minutes of 'Haverford monthly meeting' of which Merion meeting was a constituent part, have heen lost, still there are enough of those minutes and early records remaining to show conclusively that the present (Merion) meeting house was erected much later than 1695. At first this first Monthly Meeting comprised three particular meetings— 'Haverford', 'Merion', and 'Schuylkill'— the latter being generally held west of the Schuylkill river and near the present Pennsylvania Railroad depot. All were held in private houses— the first on record being held at the house of Thomas Duckett, (the Schuylkill meeting) on the 10th of the Second month, 1684."

Thomas Duckett, at whose residence the Schuylkill Meeting was held, was the clerk of the meeting. He is supposed to have arrived in the colony of Pennsylvania even before William Penn himself came, and later became a member of the First Pennsylvania Assembly. His death occurred in 1699 being caused by a fever. In respect to the early established burial grounds, Dr. George Smith gives us the following information:-

"Suitable burial-places for the dead, unfortunately, were among the earliest necessities of the first English settlers. Accordingly, it is recorded, that 'att our monethly meeting held at John Bevan's house at Haverford, the 9th of the 8th moneth (October) 1684, it was ordered as followeth; quarterly Meeting Friends are generally accompodated with Meeting Houses: At Radnor, & Haverford, the meetings are held in dwelling houses, the latter is not, however, occupied by any family. Merion meeting is held in a small house provided for the purpose."

Here are some notes which throw an interesting light upon the name of Blockley, as it is concerned with West Philadelphia. In the "Historic Lower Merion and Blockley," a work written by Dora Harvey Develin A.M., 1922, is the following note regarding the name of the township:-"When we say 'Blockley' most people think of the Almshouse, by 'Blockley' as applied to the Almahouse is simply a survive of the name.... The Old Lancaster Road was called for many years the 'Blockley and Merion Turnpike, or Flank Road,' a portion of what is now Sixty-third Street, West Philadelphia, was called 'Blockley Avenue.' 'The Blockley Library' was in the old Hestonville Hell, Fifty-second and Lancaster Avenue......The first settler who 'penetrated the wilds of Blockley' was William Warner, of Blockley, England. He was a resident as early as 1677, having arrived before the great influx of either Welsh or English colonists. William Warner built his house on what afterwards was Forty-fifth and Westminster Avenue. He named his plantation 'Blockley' efter his home in England .... The names of Duckett, Warner, Kite, and others, all early members of the Schuylkill Friends' Meeting, appear on the records at the Friends' Meeting House, Fifteenth and Rece Streets, Philadelphia. Mary Werner, daughter of William Warner, married Thomas Wynne, grandson of Dr. Thomas Wynne.... The Blockley Baptist Church was founded in 1804..... For many years this was the only church of any denomination (except the Friends) in all Blockley Township. The church is situate on what is now Fifty-third street, being a part of the old-time 'Meeting House Lane' which extended from Luncaster Pike to the West Chester Road (now Market Street)."

Blockley or Merion Meeting of Orthodox Friends, was most likely organized at the time of the Separation and was not discontinued until about 1987. For many the separation mean it was named in the City Directory, thus:- "Herion, a matrice a many control with meetings on First and Fifth-days at 11 A.M. the last entry of this conting in the City Directory was in 1887.

Blockley or Merion Meeting House was situated near Fifty-fourth Street. Detween the present 52nd Street Station of the Fennsylvania Railroad and Overbrook. After the meeting ceased it was used as a school-house, so Mr. Alfred Justice asserts, and he photographed it a few years before the building was demolished. We seemed to think it was built of loss and rough-cast with plaster, in later years. The property was ultimately sold to the Pennsylvania Railroad and was demolished in 1918. Just previous to its disappearance, it was photographed by Watson W. Dewees of Haverford, Pa., who called it Blockley. On the 17th of June, 1897, it was photographed by Gilbert Cope of West Chester, who called it Merion Orthodox Meeting House. Whereas some have thought the Blockley Meeting House and the Merion Meeting House were different buildings, a comparison of the two photographs show the buildings to be one and the same structure.

The Merica Meeting House stood on a little eminence and it with the surrounding ground became absorbed by the Fennsylvania Railroad Company.

quiry into the conduct of the fallen minister, but the proposal was defeated by large num-English troops in Flanders for that year, saying that he agreed with the court for the first time in his life, his object probably being to secure their absence from England in case a Jacobite rising were decided upon. For this apparent inconsistency Wynn was attacked in 'An Expostulatory Epistle to the Welsh Knight on the late Revolution in Politics and the Extraordinary Conduct of himself and his Associates, which was immediately answered in 'An Apology for the Welsh Knight.' Soon after Prince Charles had landed in Scotland, Wynn put himself in communication with the leading citizens of London, and received their promises of support (EWALD, i. 302; MAHON, iii. 413). A letter, written by Charles from Preston, conveying information of his entry into England, is supposed to have been addressed to Wynn (EWALD, i. 277; cf. Hist. MSS. Comm. 3rd Rep. p. 255); but, owing to the rapid marches of the highlanders, it was not till two days after their retreat had commenced that a messenger from Wynn and Lord Barrymore arrived at Derby to assure the prince 'in the name of many friends that they were ready to join in what manner he pleased, either in the capital or every one in his own country' (Mahon, iii. 415; Chambers, Hist. of the Rebellion, Pop. edit. p. 197).

The complicity of Wynn and his associates in the matter of the rebellion was disclosed by Murray of Broughton in his evidence both against Lord Lovat (State Trials, loc. cit.) and before the secret committee of the House of Commons (Маном, iii. 478, and App. pp. lxxii et seq.), and 'the tories seemed very angry' with the court 'for letting the names of Sir Watkin, &c., slip out of Murray's mouth; ' but the government showed no wish for their impeach-

After this Wynn took a much less active part in politics, though he was elected a steward of the anniversary dinner for 1746 of the Westminster electors. He was a trustee under the will of John Radcliffe (1650-1714) [q. v.], and as such was present at the opening of the Radcliffe Library at Oxford on 15 April 1749. He died on 26 Sept. 1749 in consequence of a fall from his horse while returning from hunting, and was buried on 3 Oct. at Ruabon church, where a monument by Rysbrack, with a Latin inscription by William King (1685– 1763) [q.v.], was erected to his memory. An elegy to him by Richard Rolt [q.v.] was published in 1749, and reprinted in 'Bye-Gones' for 3 July 1889. He was also culogised in a bers (ib. p. 214; Coxe, Memoirs of Walpot, poem written in 1751 by the first Lord Ken-1816, iv. 322). On 23 Jan. 1745 Wynn yon, who was then a clerk in a solicitor's office supported the motion for continuing the at Nantwich (see Cambrian Quarterly Magazine, ii. 223-5; CAMPBELL, Chief Justices, iii.

4). The publication of an elegy in Welsh is also recorded (Bye-Gones, 1899-1900, p. 39). The only blot on his memory among Welshmen was that he took part in the persecution of the North Wales methodists about 1748, and once caused the pious Peter Williams [q.v.] to be imprisoned in his dog-kennel [q.v.] to be imprisoned in the Color (WILLIAMS, Welsh Calvinistic Methodism, pp. 47, 86; HUGHES, Methodistiaeth Cymru, i. 149). His death was regarded by a few as an act of divine interposition for the protection of the persecuted.

Wynn was twice married. His first wife (who died without issue on 24 May 1748) was Ann, heiress of Edward Vaughan, M.P. for Montgomeryshire from 1678-9 till his death in 1718, and owner of the Glanllyn, Llwydiarth, and Llangedwin estates, which ever since his daughter's marriage have formed part of the Wynnstay estate. His second wife, whom he married on 16 July 1748, 'at the request of his late lady under her hand' (Gent. Mag.), was Frances (d. 19 April 1803), daughter of George Shakerley of Hulme, Cheshire. By her he had two sons, of whom the eldest, Sir Watkin Williams Wynn (1749-1789), succeeded his father as fourth baronet. He in turn became the father of Sir Watkin Williams Wynn, the fifth baronet (1772-1840), of Charles Watkin hith baronet (1772-1840), of Charles Watkin Williams Wynn [q. v.], and of Sir Henry Watkin Williams Wynn [q. v.]

There are two portraits of Wynn at Wynnstay, one of them being by Allan Ramssy. There is another portrait of him, by Hudson, preserved at Peniarth (Bye-Gones, October 1876, p. 181). There are also at Wynnstay two rings which, according to family tradition, were given to him by Prince Charles (ib. p. 145). In a picture at Badminton Wynn and the fourth Duke of Beaufort are represented as inspecting a racehorse (Baily's Magazine, 1863).

WYNN, SIR JOHN (1558-1626), antiquary, born in 1553 at Gwydir in Carnarvonshire, was the eldest son of Maurice (or Morris) Wynn (son of John Wynn ap Meredith ap Leuan), by his first wife, Jane, daughter of Sir Richard Bulkeley of Beaumaris. He was thirteenth in direct lineal descent from Owen Gwynedd, son of Gruffydd ap Cynan (who was the founder of the chief royal tribe of Wales), and his ancestors had been for generations notorious for the number of their progeny, both legitimate and illegitimate. The first to settle at Gwydir was Meredith, to whose sons the surname of Gwyn or Wynn (Anglicè White) appears to have been first commonly attached, presumably because of their fair complexions.

Meredith's great-grandson, (Sir) John Wynn, became a student of the Inner Temple in October 1576, and probably supplicated for B.A. at Oxford on 10 June 1578. He is supposed to have also travelled abroad in his youth, as he is referred to by his kinsman and neighbour, Archbishop Williams, as having seen 'multorum mores hominum et urbes,' On the death of his father on 10 Aug. 1580 he succeeded to the Gwydir estate, to the development of which and the advance ment of his own family he thereafter devoted himself almost exclusively. He served as sheriff for Carnarvonshire in 1589 and 1603, and for Merionethshire in 1589 and 1601, and was M.P. for the former county from October 1586 to the following March. He was bnighted on 14 May 1606, and created baronet (on the introduction of that dignity) on 29 June 1611. He was sworn in as member of the council of the marches at Ludlow in 1608 (CLIVE, Ludlov, p. 278).

In 1609 Wynn was involved in a dispute with his tenants at Dolwyddelan, refusing to renew the twenty-one years' leases which he had been ordered to grant them, and evicting those who petitioned the crown for evicting those who petitioned the crown for protection (Cal. State Papers, Dom. 1603–1610, pp. 588, 640, 643; cf. Yorke, p. 6, n. 2). The exchequer eventually decided in the tenants' favour (Exchequer Decrees, 11 James I, 4th ser. i. fol. 278; Welsh Land Commission, 1896, Evidence, v. 383–5, 391, Report, p. 140), but Wynn did not change his treatment of them. Some time after, the president and council of the marches were requested by the crown to proceed against Wynn for 'various flagrant acts of oppression.' In December 1615 they fined him a thousand marks, imprisoned some of his servants, and recommended that he might be dismissed from their body and from the lieutenancy of Carnarvonshire. Wynn himself had gone to London, instead of appearing before the council, and there he petitioned the king (Cal. State Papers, Dom. 1611-18, pp. 336, 353). A bribe of 350l. to a groom of the bedchamber appears to have procured him both remission of his fines and pardon for his offences (YORKE, pp. 7, 154), to facilitate the granting of which he also made a voluntary 'submission to the censure of the court' (Hist. MSS. Comm. 13th Rep. App. pp. 14, 85 b).

Wynn did not, however, neglect less questionable means of advancing his own interests. He purchased from the crown lands, with coal mines, in North Wales (Cal. State Papers, 1611-18, p. 241); he worked a lead mine near Gwydir, and appears to have been interested in the copper mines of Anglesey. He suggested and perhaps attempted the introduction of Irishmen for the manufacture of Welsh friezes in the vale of Conway. He urged Sir Hugh Myddelton [q. v.] to undertake (along with himself) the reclamation of the extensive sands between the counties of Carnarvon and Merioneth, a work which Myddelton declined, but which was carried out nearly two hundred years later by William Alexander Madocks [q. v.]

Wynn

Wynn was also a general collector of Welsh antiquities, especially such as related to his own family. Partly with the object of showing his descent from Owen Gwynedd, and partly to serve as an abstract of title to his property, he wrote a 'History of the Gwydir Family,' the manuscript of which was so prized in North Wales during the next 150 years that 'many in those parts thought it worth while to make fair and complete transcripts of it.' It was at last published by Daines Barrington in 1770 (cf. NICHOLS, Lit. Illustrations, v. 582-3; Lit. Anecdotes, iii. 5), and reprinted with additional notes in his 'Miscellanies' in 1781. For these editions Dr. Thomas Percy (1768-1808) [q.v.] contributed genealogical tables and notes. A third edition by Angharad Llwyd appeared in 1827, and another, for which William Watkin Edward Wynne [q.v.] contributed numerous notes, was published in 1878 (Oswestry, 4to). Its chief interest is that it is the only work extant which gives an account of the state of society in North Walcs in the fifteenth and the earlier part of the sixteenth centuries. A transcript of the 'Record of Caernarvon,' with Wynn's notes thereon, forms volume No. 4776 in the Harleian collection at the British Museum. He also made a survey of Penmaenmawr, and his manuscript was quoted by Gibson in his additions (under quoted by Gibson in his additions (under Carnarvonshire) to Camden's 'Britannia'. It subsequently came into the possession of Thomas Wright (1810-1877) [q. v.], and thirty copies of it, edited by J. O. Halliwell, were privately printed in 1859.

Besides being himself a good scholar, Wynn, like his father, was a generous patron of learning. In 1594 he joined several of the gentry of North Wales in petitioning for a royal commission to hold an eisteddfod similar to that held in 1568 at Caerwys (Gwenogwenn Evans, Report on Welsh MSS. i. 293). To his encouragement was due much of the literary work of his kinsman, Thomas Williams (1550?-1620?) [q. v.], whose Latin-Welsh dictionary he sought to get published during the author's lifetime. Another work, a collection of Welsh proverbs, being Mostyn manuscript No. 204 (op. cit. p. 276), Williams dedicated to Wynn.

Wynn died at Gwydir on 1 March 1626-1627, and was buried at Llanrwst on the night of the day following (Peter Roberts, Cwtta Cufarwydd, p. 117). His portrait engraved by Robert Vaughan is now extremely rare. There are prints of it at Peniarth and Wynnstay, and there was another formerly in the possession of James West. It is also reproduced in the third and fourth editions of the 'History,' and in the first edition of Pennant's 'Tours in Wales' (1781), ii. 140. Another engraving by Vertuo is mentioned by Grunger (Biogr. Hist.) Wynn's memory is proserved at Llanrwst by the fact that in 1610 he founded a hospital and endowed a school there. Owing to what was regarded as much sharp practice on his part, or, according to another version, his persecution of Roman catholics, his spirit is believed to lie under the waterfall of Rhaiadr y Wennol, there to be purged of all his offences (cf. Watts-Dunton, Aylwin, 186).

his ofteness (cf. Walls-Darker), 280, P. 86).

Wynn married Sidney, daughter of Sir William Gerard [q. v.], chancellor of Ireland. She died on 8 June 1632, and was buried at Llanrwst. By her Wynn had eleven sons and two daughters. The eldest son, John, died without surviving issue at Lucca in 1614 (cf. Pennant, Tours in Wales, ed. Rhys, iii. 373), and Wynn was succeeded in the baronetex by his next surviving son.

in the baronetcy by his next surviving son,
SIR RICHARD WYNN (d. 1649), groom of the chamber to Charles I while Prince of Wales, in which capacity he accompanied bim to Spain in 1623. An account of the expedition written by him for Charles I was expention written by him for Charles I was published by Hearne in the same volume as 'Historia Vitæ et Regni Ricardi II' (pp. 297-341). He subsequently became treasurer to Queen Henrietta. From designs by Inigo Jones he built in 1633 the beautiful Gwydir chapel in Llanrwst church, and also in 1636 the bridge over the Conway close by. His portrait by Jansen is preserved at Wynnstay, and an engraving of it by Bartolozzi was given in Pennant's 'Tours in Wales' and the last edition (1878) of 'The Gwydir Family.' He married Anne, daughter of Sir Francis D'Arcie of Isleworth, but died without issue on 19 July 1649, and was buried in Wimbledon church, leaving the title and estate to his next surviving brother, Owen (15927-1660), third baronet, whose son Richard, fourth baronet, died without male issue. The baronetcy then passed to Si John Wynn, whose father/Henry (younger brother of Owen) had been judge of the Marshalsea, steward of the Virge, solicitorgeneral to Queen Henrietta, secretary to the court of the marches, prothonotary of North Wales, and M.P. for Merionethshire. / John, the fifth baronet, married the heiress of Watstay, near Ruabon, and changed its name into Wynnstay, but died without issue on 11 Jan. 1718-19 (in his ninety-first year), when the baronetcy became extinct. He left the Wynnstay estate to his kinsman, Sir Watkin Williams, who adopted the additional surname of Wynn, and is separately noticed [see WYNN, SIR WATKIN WILLIAMS]. The house and estate of Gwydir remained, however, in the descendants of the fourth baronet, Sir Richard Wynn, whose only daughter, Mary (d. 1689), married at West-minster, on 30 July 1678, Robert, sixteenth baron Willoughby de Éresby (afterwards created Marquis of Lindsey and Duke of Ancaster), and so conveyed the estates into that family, in which they remained until 1895, when the present Earl of Ancaster disposed of the whole property. The mansion, some heirlooms, and a small portion of the estate were purchased by his kinsman, Earl Carrington, who through his mother (the daughter and coheiress of the twenty-second baron Willoughby) is a direct descendant of Sir John Wynn.

[Most of the materials for a biography of Wynn are to be found, though badly arranged, in the last edition of his Hist, of the Gwydir Family. Neither the State Papers nor the Phillipps MSS. (now at Cardiff) were, however, consulted by the editor. The latter comprise a suited by the editor. The latter comprise a large collection of letters and other papers made by Sir Thomas Phillipps relating to Wynn and his family, including letters addressed to him by Archbishop Williams, Bishop Parry of St. As:ph. and the Earls of Sulisbury, Leicester, and Bridgwater. Some memoranda by Wynn, and Bridgwater. Some memoranda by Wynn, the correspondence relating to his dispute with Bishop Morgan, and four letters sent to him from Cambridge by John Williams (afterwards archbishop), are printed from other sources in Yorke's Royal Tribes of Wales (ed. 1887, pp. 134-54). Other authorities are Beaufort Progress, ed. 1838, pp. 138-47; Yorke's Royal Tribes of Wales, ed. 1887, pp. 5-12, and 134-54 ut supra; Pennant's Tours in Wales, 1st edit. 1781, ii. 137-45, 453-64; Breese's Kalendars of Gwynedd; Williams's Parl. WYNN, SIR WATKIN WILLIAMS third baronet (1692-1749), whose original surname was Williams, was the grandson of SirWilliam Williams [q. v.], being the eldest son of Sir William Williams, the second baronet, of Llanforda, near Oswestry, by his first wife, Jane, daughter and sole heiress of Edward Thelwall of Plasyward, near Ruthin, Denbighshire. This lady, his mother, twist and even after the earlier attempts to was a great-granddaughter of Sir John Impeach Walpole had failed, Wynn seconded Wynn [q.v.] of Gwydir, whose grandson, a motion on 1 Dec. 1743 to renew the in-also named Sir John Wynn, of Watstay (which he changed into Wynnstay), died without issue on 7 Jan. 1719, leaving his estates to his kinsman, Watkin Williams, who thereupon assumed the arms and the additional name of Wynn, and became the real founder of the great house of Wynn, stay. Wynn (as he therefore came to be called) was born in 1692, and was educated at Oxford, where he matriculated as a fellowcommoner of Jesus College on 18 Dec. 1710, and was created D.C.L. on 17 Aug. 1732 (FOSTER, Alumni Oxon.) He was mayor of Oswestry for 1728, and of Chester for 1732: he was also M.P. for Denbighshire from 1716 till his death, though in the election of 1741, which was one of the great contests of the county,' John Myddelton was first declared elected, but Wynn regained the seat on peti-tion. In the House of Commons, where he was regarded as 'a brave open hospitable gentlenon' (SMOLLETT, Hist. of England, ed. 1793, ii. 505), he was a frequent debater. He voted for the reduction of the standing army in 1731, and against the excise bill, the Septennial Act in 1734, and the convention in 1739. Speaker Onslow referred to him as 'a man of great note among the most disaffected to the present government, and much known upon that account' (note to Burner, Hist. of his own Time, ed. 1823, iii. 222). Next to Sir John Hynde Cotton [q. v.] and Sir William Wyndham [q. v.], he was probably the most active and influential Jacobite in parliament, while owing to his large estates he was at the head of all the tory squires of North Wales, where he was long known as 'the Great Sir Watkin.' He was one of the original members of a Jacobite club, called the Cycle, founded at Wrexham in 1723 (Cambrian Quarterly Magazine, 1829, i. 212-13; Cambrian Journal, viii. 304-309). In March 1740 he was described by Lord Temple as 'hearty' in his support of the Pretender, and 'certainly to be depended upon' (Manon, Hist. of England, 2nd edit. iii. 43, cf. App. pp. lxxv and lxxvi), and, together with Cotton and Lord Barrymore, he appears to have repeated his assurances of support to Lord Traquair during the latter's visit to London in the summer of 1743 (Howell, State Trials, vol. xviii. cols. 655-656; EWALD, Life of Prince Charles Stuart, i. 80).

Meanwhile Wynn and his associates lost no opportunity for harassing the government and attacking Walpole in the House of Commons (Mahon, vol. iii. App. p. v, cf. pp. 108, 172); and even after the earlier attempts to impeach Walpole had failed, Wynn seconded

*The will of John Minor, of Westmoreland, was dated March 30th, 1698, and proved in that county February 22d, 1698. His legatees were his eldest son Nicholas, sons William and John; eldest daughter Frances, youngest daughter Elizabeth and wife Eleanor. A Nicholas Minor was appointed a justice of Westmoreland 1680-'95; another in 1745, and still another of the same name, together with John Minor, was a justice of Loudoun in 1770. Of this family was probably Col. John West Minor, member of the House of Delegates from Loudoun, who died about 1879, and Col. George Minor, of Fairfax, who commanded a regiment of militia in War of 1812 in defence of Washington and Baltimore, and who, in 1861, when 84 years old, was imprisoned by the Federal authorities on a charge of disloyalty. Another Nicholas Minor, of Fairfax, was Captain of Virginia Militia in service in 1758, and George Minor was justice of the same county in 1784, &c.

"A Genealogical & Heraldie Dictionary of the Peerage and Baronetage of the British Empire" by John Bernard Burke, 15th Edition, London, 1853

EDITUR'S PAGE

The Bulletin of the Maryland Genealogical Society (213 S. Rolling Dr., Catonsville, Md. 21228) for May 1969 carries installments of obituaries of Revolutionary soldiers from Maryland newspapers, in which several Virginians are mentioned, and Baltimore Methodist Church marriages, which include a number performed in Virginia.

The Yakima Valley Genealogical Society, 924 South 16th Ave., Yakima, Wash. 98902, began publishing a Sulletin in Jan. 1969.

The Happy Hunter, the publication of the Cumberland Co., Ill., Genealogical Society, Toledo, Ill. 62468, has a much improved format and is now printing excellent material relating to the locality. The earliest birth and death records and cemetery inscriptions are among the contents of the Spring 1969 issue.

The Virginia Magazine of History and Biography for Jan. 1969 contains "The Origin of the Family of Taliaferro" by Sir Anthony Wagner and F. S. Andrus which identifies the grandfather of Robert Taliaferro of Virginia as Bartholomew Taliaferro, a Venetian who settled in London. A copy of the pedigree prepared by the College of Arms is reproduced.

The Virginia Genealogical Society has changed the name of its periodical to Virginia Genealogical Society Guarterly. The magazine continues to print exceptionally fine articles presenting source material, among them "Marriage and Death Notices Printed in 'The Visitor' (Richmond) 1809-1810", compiled by Anne Bryant Arritt, and "Cemeteries in and Around Hampton, Virginia", copied by Miss Thelma Savage.

The Editor is solely responsible for the general policies, printing, distribution and sale of this periodical. Neither the Editor nor The Virginia Genealogist assumes responsibility for errors of fact or opinion expressed by contributors.

The Virginia Genealogist will publish source material and accounts of the early generations of families of Virginia and West Virginia. Manuscripts which are submitted should be thoroughly documented and should be accompanied by return postage. Contributions of both compiled genealogies and abstracts of records are welcomed.

Report of non-delivery of magazines must be made within one month after the quarter they are dated if the magazine is to be replaced free of charge.

THE MALONE FAMILY OF SOUTHSIDE VIRGINIA

By Stith Malone Cain 775 W Main 4th Whitewater, Wisconsin 53/90

Nathaniel Malone arrived in Surry Co., Va., sometime before 1707. This Nathaniel Malone and his wife Mary Wynne are said to be the ancestors of a large majority of the Virginia Malones.

Mary Wynne's grandfather was Col. Robert Wynne who died in 1678. He was, in his day, one of the most influential men in Virginia. He began his career as a representative from Charles City County at the sessions of March 1657/8 and March 1659/60 and served during the entire existence of Virginia's "Long Parliament" from 1661 to 1674 as Speaker of the House of Burgesses. Robert Wynne of Jordan's Parish, Charles City County, married/Mary, widow of Capt. Francis Poythress and had sons Thomas and Joshua and daughter Woodlief Wynne.

Capt. Thomas Wynne, who was Col. Robert Wynne's son, was born in 1657,5 and his will was probated on 21 May 1718.6 He was the official interpreter for the Indians and justice of the peace in Surry County in the early 1700.7 He and his wife Agnes had children Thomas, Lucy, Mary and Robert Wynne.

Mary Wynne married Aathaniel Malone. In 1707 Capt.

Thomas Wynne and his wife Wgnes deeded land in Surry County to his daughter Mary Malone. 10

Nathaniel Malone and his wife Mary Wynne had the followin, children: Nathaniel, William, Daniel Drury, Inomas Amey and Courtney Malone. I The date of writing of his will is partially obliterated; it was probated on 21 March 1732. The names of other daughters are too faded to read.

O / THE VIRGINIA GENEALOGIST

II. William Malone, son of Nathaniel and Mary, was born ca. 1096 and died in 1745. Several professional genealogists (Mrs. A. D. Pierpoint, Mrs. Lewis L. Chapman and Lee Nicholson) have studied the description of the land left to the various sons of Nathaniel Malone who died in 1752; they state that the land of Daniel Malone and Nathaniel Malone, Jr., was not in Surry and Sussex counties but in Prince George County, in the part which later became Brunswick County, which in the early days extended to the Blue Ridge Mountains. They think that William and Thomas Malone were the only two sons who inherited land in what is now Sussex County.

William Malone and his wife Anne had children John, William Jr., Agnes, Amy, Nelly Anne, Hannah and Elizabeth Malone. William Malone wrote his will on 3 May 1736 and it was probated 10 Oct. 1745. He and his family lived in that part of Surry County which became Sussex County in 1752.

III. William Malone, Jr., son of William and Anne, was born ea.1718 and died in 1774. He lived in the part of Surry County which became Sussex County in 1752. Mrs. Lucile /Fleasants wrote:

John and William both had plantations of their own at the time of their father's writing of his will for the father mentions the fact and also mentions that his land adjoins that of Nathaniel Robertson (also spelled Robinson, and Robbinsons in other records).

In the old days, the same family spelled their names three ways. Often brothers living in the same county with large families of children all bearing the same Christian names, agreed to vary the spelling of the surname, in order not to mix up land transactions. ... We find Malone spelled many ways, Melone, Mallone, Melon, etc. 15

√William Malone, Jr., named in his will his daughters ✓Frances Oliver, √Lucy (Lucretia) Mahany, Mary Malone; granddaughter Mary Chappell who married her double-first cousin√Thomas Chappell Malone; sons Nathaniel, William, Michael, √Daniel; and wife Mary Malone. This will was dated 5 Feb. 1773 and probated 17 Aug. 1774. Genealogists think that the date 1773 is wrong and that the will was written 5 Feb. 1774.

The birth dates of some of the children of William Malone, Jr., are: 17

√Nathaniel Malone, born 24 Jan. 1739; godparents William Green, John Smith and Anne Malone.

William Malone III, born 29 Jan. 1744; godparents William Wellborn, John Oliver and Anne Paterson.

∠ Daniel Malone, born 13 Feb. 1750; godparents Michael Hill Jr., William Wellborn and Frances Hill.

Elizabeth Tucker Malone, born 1755. She married
Thomas Chappell, the bond being dated 20 Aug. 1772 with Daniel Malone, her brother as security. 18 He had come from Lunenburg County to visit kinspeople and persuaded Elizabeth to marry him and return to Lunenburg County.
William Mulone, Jr., gave consent for his daughter's marriage: "I do hereby condescend to a marriage between my daughter, Elizabeth Malone, an infant under age and Thomas Chappel."

IV. William Malone III was born 24 Jan. 1744 and died in 1°11. He and his family moved from Sussex County to Dinwiddle County when he was a young man. James H. Malone, his great-grandson, wrote the following statement about him in 1892:

I was in his homestead in 1889, and went to see, on Aug. 10, 1889, an old negro woman named Lydia A. Moss, who was a slave of the son of said William; so the being 98 years old, having been born in 1701 and she remembered William Malone, saying he came originally from Sussex County. She further said that he was an old man when she knew him, she being at that time very young, but as she expressed it, "big enough to carry in dinner from the kitchen to the dining room", that he wore knee breeches, was a low "chunky" man ... a very pious man always holding prayers when he came to visit his son, who was named for him; that he was a man of wealth, owning several places and many slaves who were divided among his children at his death in 1811.

This old negress said she often heard her mother and "Old Miss" (Johana, the wife of William) speak of the Revolutionary War, and spoke particularly of a raid made by the British when they confiscated everything they could seize. This corresponds with what my uncle, Joseph H. Malone of Waco, Texas, wrote in 1885, to the effect that William Malone was a soldier in the Revolutionary War on the American side, the details of which he wrote me dovetailing with the statements of the old negress.

According to Mrs. B. R. Wofford and Mrs. Lucile Pleasants, the names of the children of William Malone III are:

William Malone IV, born 6 Feb. 1771, died 1850. VBooth Malone, born 6 June 1779, died 1849. //George Malone, born 13 Oct. 1781, died 16 Aug. 1847. Robert Malone, born 1784, died 7 July 1825. √IV. Daniel Malone, son of William Malone, Jr., married
√Amey Chappell on 10 Dec. 1772.<sup>27</sup>

Her father, Thomas Chappell of Lunenburg Co., Va., left a will dated 18 Feb. 1788 and probated 14 Oct. 1790. in which he gave to his wiferMary Chappell the use of his estate during her life and provided that it should then be divided it among his children and grandchildren. he mentioned his sons James, Thomas, William and John to whom he left land and slaves, his daughters Mary Clay and Amie (Amey) Robertson, and grandchildren Thomas Chappell Clay, William Malone, Thomas Malone, Mary Malone and Rebecca Malone. He also provided that his Negro girl Araia should be hired out by the year by his executors during the life of his daughter, Amie Robertson and the money arising therefrom should be paid to Amie Robertson during her life; after her decease the Negro was to be sord and the money arising from the sale divided equally among his four grandchildren his daughter had by Daniel Malone, William, Thomas, Mary and Kebecca. 28

Unaniel Malone wrote his will on 6 Jan. 1781 and it was proved 19 April 1781.30 He appointed his wife Amey and brother Wathaniel Malone executors and mentioned his two sons, William and Thomas. He spoke of William as being the eldest son and mentioned his two daughters.

1 This pedigree is brought down to 1623, in Vincent's Collections, in the College of Arms, No. 136, page 1001. Sir John Gwyn, of Gwidir, Bart., the author of the interesting Memoirs, being then living. The baronetcy became extinct in 1719. Some of the descendants of his grandfather, Morice Wynne, by Katherine, daughter and heiress of Tudor ab Robert, have lately been recorded in the College of Arms.—ED.

Arms,—ED.

In the Park pedigree Morvydd is called ferch Ierwerth goch. It should, however, be as here. The will of Morvydd was proved in 1416.

Robert ap Mredydd was implicated in the rebellion of Glyndwr, but pardoned in the 9th of Henry IV. The pardon, granted to him by Henry, Prince of Wales, bears date the 20th of September, 9th Henry IV. (1409.) He was living in 1442. The latter is proved by some letters patent from the crown, addressed to him and other gentlemen in Carnarvonshire, on the 28th of August in that year, relative to arresting certain ontlaws in the commot of Evionedd.

He was living on the 4th of November, 8th of Edward IV. (1468). His descendant, Sir John Wynn, in the history of the house of Gwydir, observes of Ifan ap Robert,—

"In the wars between the houses of Yorke and Lancaster he (as all his), were Lan-castrians, and he was one of the Captaines, who laid waste the Duke of Yorko's estate in Denbigh land." He died, "being but one and thirtie yeares of age."

<sup>6</sup> Mredydd ap Ifan ap Robert removed from Evionedd, the ancient locality of his tribe, and settled in Nanteonway. He took up his residence, first, in the Castle of Dolwyddelan, and afterwards at Penammen, a house he had erected in that neighbourhood. Gwydir was purchased by him; and the greater portion of the old mansion, now standing there, was probably erected by his son. Meredith had three wives and twenty-one legitimate children, besides several illegitimate ones. Upon his monument, in Llanrwst church, is the following inscription. It will be observed, that on the monument he is styled "Meredith Wyn." His son, however, was the first of the family who adopted that surname. The monument is supposed to have been erected by his great-grandson, Sir Richard Wynn. He was buried at Dolwyddelan.—"Meredith Wyn, Ar. Owini Gwynedd quondam Cambriae Principis progenies: felicibus auspiciis fundavit donum Gwyder: fanā Sti Gwyddelan transtulit et re-edificavit: in expeditione Tornatensi 5. ¹ John (Wynn) ap Mredydd was Sheriff for Carnarvonshire in 1545 and 1557. He died on the 9th of July, 1559; and his will was proved at Doctors' Comfnons. On his monument at Llanrwst he is stated to have had five sons and two daughters. He also was buried at Dolwyddelan. Besides the children of John Wynn ap Meredith, given by Lewis Dwnn, he had another son, John, the youngest, who founded two fellowships and three scholarships at St. John's College, Cambridge. A Memoir of this John Wynn, by his great nephew, Sir John, is extant.

2 Morys Wyn represented the county of Carnarvon, in the Parliaments which commenced on October 5th, 1553; April 5th, 1554; January 236, 1558-9; and January 11th, 1562-3. He was Sheriff of Carnarvonshire in 1555, 1570, and 1578. He died on the 10th of August, 1580, and was buried at Dolwyddelan. He had been thrice married: first, to Jane Bulkeley; secondly, to Ann, daughter of Edward Greville, Esq. of Milcote, county of Warwick, and, thirdly, to Catherine, daughter and heiress of Tudor ap Robert, of Berain, the celebrated Catherine of Berain,—See Pennant.

3 Sir John Wynn, Knight, represented the county of Carnarvon in the Parliament which nuct on the 29th October, 1586; was Sheriff for that county in 1588 and 1603; for Merionethshire in 1589 and 1601; and was created a Baronet in 1611. He was also one of the Council in the Marches of Wales. He died on the 1st March, 1626 (probably 1626-7), aged 73, and was buried at Llanrwst. Sir John was author of the History of the Gwedir Family, edited by the Hon. Daines Barrington, and published in 1770. His widow, Sydney, died on the 8th June, 1632, and was also buried at Llanrwst. "Dawnser" signifies Downshire.

4 John Wynn, the eldest son of Sir John, died before his father, at Lucea, in 1614, in his thirtieth year. Catherine, the daughter of John Wynn, probably died young, for in no other place than in this pedigree have I seen her mentioned.

6 Richard Wynn, the second son, succeeded his father in the Baronetey. He was Gentleman of the Privy Ch

Lord Lieutenant of Carnaryonshire, through his mother, eldest sister and heiress to the last Duke of Ancaster.

<sup>7</sup> Robert Wynn, fifth son, entered into holy orders, and died in 1617, in his twenty-found, year.

last Duke of Aneaster.

7 Robert Wynn, fifth son, entered into holy orders, and died in 1617, in his twenty-fourth year.

8 She died about the year 1657, and was buried at Llanrwst.

9 Elsbeth was married to Sir John Bodvel, Knight, of Bodvel, in Carnarvonshire.

10 William Wynn was Prothenotary of North Wales. (See another page). He married Jane, daughter and heiress of Thomas Lloyd, of Gwern-y-breehdyn and Garthgynan, and by her had issue. His male descendants became extinct in the second generation. His eldest surviving daughter, Sydney, was married to Edward Thelwall, Esq. of Plas-y-ward, in Denbighshire; their eldest daughter and heiress, Jane, to Sir William Williams, Bart. of Llanvorda, in Shropshire; and the eldest son of this marriage was Watkin Williams, Esq., to whom Sir John Wynn of Wynnstay, the last inheritor of the Baronetcy, conferred upon Sir John Wynn in 1611, bequeathed his estates. Mr. Williams assumed the additional surname of Wynn, and, succeeding to his father's title, was the first Sir Watkyn Williams Wynn, Bart. He was killed by a fall from his horse in 1749.

11 The first Roger was senior to William, and the second, the youngest son, as is shown by the inscription on their father's monument. They were both buried at Llanrwst, and both probably died in infancy.

12 Ellis is buried at Whitford, in the county of Flint.

13 He married Catherine, daughter and heiress of Ellis Lloyd, Esq. of Rhiwgoch, in Merionethshire; and, dying on the 27th July, 1671, was buried in the Temple Church, London. Sir John Wynn, the last Baronet of this family, was the son of Harri and Catherine Lloyd. He married Jane, daughter and heiress of Eyton Evans, Esq., of Watstay, the name of which place he changed to Wynnstay, but by her had no issue. He died in 1718, at the age of 91, and bequeathed all his property, acquired both by inheritance and through his marriage, to his kinsman, Watkin Williams, Esq., as is before mentioned.

inheritance and through his marriage, as the before mentioned.

<sup>10</sup> Hugh appears to have been Sheriif for Denbighshire in 1609, and is styled of Berth Ddu. His wife was heiress of Bodysgallen, in Carnarvonshire. Her father was Sheriif for that county in 1572. He was a younger son of the house of Mostyn.

WHO WERE THE ORPHANS? - Mrs. Howard J. Jordan, 2402 College Park Dr., Denton, TX 76201 asks how to find the names of these orphans: Land Lottery of 1827, in Franklin County, Capt. Blankenship's District the ORPHANS OF T.D.JORDAN won land lot 233, District 9, Section 5.

EDITOR'S NOTE: The grant made by the state MAY show the names of the individual Jordan children, or it may not. The Surveyor General Department, Georgia Archives, Atlanta, GA 30334 could furnish a copy of the grant and any other information in their hands. If the children disposed of the land, even to one of themselves, there should be a deed in which each child (or the girl's husband) signed away their right to the property. This is generally where you find the surviving children, or their heirs, named specifically for the deed to be valid all had to sign. Look both in Franklin County deeds, and in the county in which the granted land lay, to see if the Jordan heirs are named in a transfer of this property.

JAMES - SANDLIN - Mrs. J.M.Julich, 1022 Appalachee Dr., SE, Huntsville, AL 35801 seeks the parents of JOHN JAMES whose will was proved 11-12-1850 in York District, SC. He m. ELIZABETH SANDLIN, b. 5-9-1784, d. 2-7-1875, dau. of WILLIAM SANDLIN and MASSEY ?

FALL - MOORE - Miss May Nelson Kelly, 171 Seminole, Stephenville, TX 76401 descends from DR. JOHN NEWTON FALL, son of DR. JOHN STRADER FALL [PUZZLERS 8-12-1976 issue]. J.N.Fall's dau. was LIZA E.F.FALL, b. 1833 in GA, who came with her father when she was only 4 years old to Chireno, Nacogdoches Co., TX in 1837. Liza married WILLIAM BAILEY MOORE, b. 1823 in GA, shown in the household of Dr. J.N.Fall as a blacksmith in 1850. From other records it appears that Moore arrived in Chireno in 1846. He married Liza 4-2-1857. At that time she was a widow with two small children, JOHN and AUGUSTA GILBERT. The Moores moved to Kaufman, TX between 1867-70, and he died there about 1879. Any information would be appreciated.

Miss Kelly also wrote that she had "a straight line back 8 generations on the FAHL-FALL line." [which is considerably more than I have, and J.S.Fall is my ancestor, too. MBW]

MILLS - Mrs. Ralph B. Klintworth, 1805 Mt.Royal Blvd., Glenshaw,PA 15116 needs information on ALEXANDER MILLS and his wife ALIAS or ALLACE? He had a land grant in Granville Parish [County], SC in 1765, and came in 1773 to Georgia where he had 150 acres on Pistol Creek, dying testate in Wilkes County, GA 1777. Children were:

Gilbert Alexander
John William
James Absalom
Jesse David Alexander

Agnes Mills THOMPSON Jane
Margaret Mills BAKER Abigail

Sarah

Several Mills sons went to Posey Co., IN early 1800s. Who were the parents of Alias and Alexander? When did they come to SC? From where? Have information on the descendants of DAVID ALEXANDER MILLS to share.

EDITOR'S NOTE: The only way Alexander Mills could have had so little land with so many children when he came to Georgia was to have had adult sons and daughters, which was apparently the case. His headright at that time amounted to 100 acres for himself, and 50 acres for wife Alias, to make that total of 150 acres. The rest of the family would have been entitled to their own headrights. Have you located these? Or perhaps they didn't come into Georgia with their parents.

ALLEN - TAYLOR - Mrs. J.C.Knierim, Rt.1, Box 402-E, Baytown, TX 77521 needs information on JAMES M. ALLEN who m. JANE TAYLOR 1-6-1820 in Madison Co., AL. Who were their parents? Was ELIZA JANE

ALLEN b. 1821 TN, d. 1857 MO, m. ISAAC ARON COTTRELL, b. 1818 TN, d. 1873 MO one of their children?

EDITOR'S NOTE: You apparently wondered why Allen married in AL. Marriage licenses were to be issued by the county in which the bride was a resident; perhaps Madison County had been Jane's home at the time they married.

NALL - NEILL - Mrs. C.L.Neill, Box 103, Pharr, TX 78577 asks to hear from descendants of ROBERT NALL/NEILL, JOSHUA BAILEY, and WILLIAM B. ADAMS families who appeared in 1840 Robertson Co., TN census. Where were they in 1850?

Where was GUILFORD P. CHILDRESS buried in Fayette Co., AL? He was thrown from a horse 1860-70 and killed, leaving 2nd wife DOROTHEA and several children.

GRAVES - Mrs. Blanche D. Nelson, 160-D Lakeview Drive, MFL, Leesburg, FL 32748 asks where Revolutionary War records are preserved in NC? Can she obtain items on LT. FRANCIS GRAVES, 1746-1845, who was drafted from Halifax Dist., NC 9-1-1777, served 84 months. His Washington, DC War record was destroyed in the 1800 War Dept. fire. Need personal information which surely would be shown on a draft form.

EDITOR'S NOTE: While North Carolina Archives, 106 E. Jones St., Raleigh, NC may have some records of Lt. Francis Graves from the Revolutionary period, to my knowledge there is no such thing as "draft forms."

The Revolution was more of a guerilla war than a well-organized, record keeping campaign such as the British records show us. For this reason we have much more information on the Loyalists than on local militiamen.

Since Orlando library is nearest you, ask if they have NORTH CAROLINA COLONIAL RECORDS (10 vols) and NORTH CAROLINA STATE RECORDS (20 volumes). There is an index,volumes 27-30, which might show some printed reference to Graves. This should be examined before you write N.C.Archives for help.

It is well known that only a FEW of the thousands of pages of original records were published in this 30 volume set. It makes a good beginning for research, however.

If Graves lived to 1845 there may be a Revolutionary pension record which has survived the 1800 fire. It would be in the hands of the National Archives, Washington, DC 20408. Had Graves been wounded in battle and unable to provide for himself and family, he would also be eligible for a N.C. State Revolutionary Pension. This series of records is in the N.C.Archives, and available on microfilm. We are publishing the index to veterans in THE CAROLINA GENEALOGIST 25-26.

In addition if you know where Graves died, seek an obituary in the local or regional newspapers. Revolutionary soldiers' obituaries were news of widespread interest, and editors gave lavish space to the veteran's military service, and personal history most of the time.

EDITOR'S NOTE: "Threads of Ancestors - Telford, Ritchie, Mize" by Leila Ritchie and Jessie Julia Mize contains extensive notes on the Mize families of Virginia, the Carolinas, and Franklin-Banks Co., GA, but I was unable to locate your John J. Mize among them. They follow only the descendants of one HENRY MIZE who came into SC from VA and finally into Georgia, with migrations and ages of children about that of your John J. Mize.

If you have not already seen this information, you could borrow this out-of-print book through inter-library loan from the University of Georgia Library, Athens, GA 30602.

JACKSON - Mrs. Mary W. Jackson, 3120-A Napoleon Court, Birmingham, AL 35243 asks data on LOWE JACKSON, b. 1796 NC, m. SARAH PACE in Henry Co., GA 1825. They lived in Troup Co., GA 1836, in Barbour Co., AL 1840, and in Muscogee Co., GA in 1850. They are frequently associated with A. BATTLE in Harris Co., GA and in Barbour Co., AL.

EDITOR'S NOTE: Miss Alice Lee, can you help on the Pace side? Your Birmingham Public Library may have a copy of a large family history "The Battle Book" published years ago. Since there may be a Battle connection, why not see if you can identify the A. Battle and see if Lowe or Sarah are also mentioned.

John's naming of the two children he had by Patty Walton Mosby does prove that my Littleberry was NOT one of them! I question the apparent conflict of dates - John's remarriage in 1791, when wife Patty, by his statement was alive until 1794. Is one date mis-read? Or was his memory faulty?

GEORGE BONDURANT, named as son of John P. and Patty Walton Bondurant, made his will 10-18-1803, naming "my two brothers THOMAS MOSBY and WILLIAM BONDURANT" as executors. William was to "have the care and bringing up of my son [CHARLES PALMORE BONDURANT] until he comes to age 21 year or marries." Everything is given to the son Charles as "he had never received MY part of the estate of CHARLES PALMORE, dec'd. "and George thinks that what will come to SALLY from this estate will be sufficient for her support. [Is Sally his wife?] [Was Charles Palmore, the grandfather, and perhaps Sally's father?]

There had to be SEVERAL John or John P. Bondurants who were contemporaries! The John Peter of Kentucky, who appears there in several instruments, and likely in tax lists if they are extant, at the same time a John, Sr. is returning lands in Buckingham Co., VA, and apparently another John appears in Bedford County 1782-1812.

So the search-and-sift process must continue. The Walton line is NOT mine; but happily there is no doubt  $\underline{\text{which}}$  Bondurant children were Patty's.

MARTIN - COOK - Major Ralph C. Howes, Box 1813, APO New York, 09826 needs the date and place of marriage of LITTLE BERRY or LITTLEBERRY MARTIN, son of WILLIAM MARTIN of GA and SC to DEBORAH COOK, dau. of THOMAS COOK and ELIZABETH? of SC. Their marriage took place in GA sometime prior to 1815. Littleberry and Deborah moved to Vanderburg and Warrick Cos., IN where he died ca. 1846.
Their place of marriage was stated in the Coles County, IL history.

EDITOR'S NOTE: I don't find Littleberry in either the enrollment for the 1805 Land Lottery or the 1830 Census Index for Georgia. Nor does he appear in the exensive annotation of GONE TO GEORGIA, by Stewart. This suggests that he belonged to a family who lived farther south than the Franklin-Jackson-Wilkes region.

THOMPSON - Mr. Joe W. Hughes, Apt. 2, 3548 Old Chamblee-Tucker Rd., Atlanta, GA 30340 seeks information on JOHN THOMPSON who m. KEZIA WILLIAMS. Their son BENJAMIN FRANKLIN THOMPSON b. 1832 in Robeson Co., NC m. ca. 1856-7 to ELIZABETH SNYDER, b. 1826. Ben and Elizabeth lived in Orangeburg Co., SC where John is said to have removed about 1833. John had either a sister or a dau. JANE THOMPSON who m. HUGH McCASKILL and lived and died without issue, in North Carolina.

WATKINS - Mrs. N.D.Huneycutt, 316 N. Pierce St., Little Rock, AR 72205 needs the parents of WILLIAM I. WATKINS, b. 4-30-1826, d. 12-11-1852. He m. MARTHA ROGERS 1846 in Hamilton Co., TN and had these children:

John Allen
Charles Jeremiah

Elijah Ross

Sun City, AZ 85351 wants to know the names of parents of SARAH (Sallie) HICKS b. ca. 1773, Virginia?, but family rumor says on the Pedee River of South Carolina. She m. DRURY MELONE, b. 1763, in 1792, where? She was Drury's third wife, and the mother of 13 children.

Their 5th child was LUCINDA MELONE, his ggm.

Drury and Sallie lived and died in Shelby Co., KY. She had a sister NANCY HICKS who m. NATHAN CRAWFORD 11-3-1797 in Shelby Co. A JOHN HICKS, who may have been their brother, m. SARAH ROBERSON 9-16-1768 also in Shelby Co.

Who were the parents of Drury Melone? He died 4-13-1837.

In the Melone family the given name "Lewis" has been used since Drury named his 13th child Lewis Melone. There was a LEWIS MELONE/MALONE who served in 5th and 9th Virginia Regiments during the Revolution. But is he connected with Drury?

MELONE is said to be derived from the Huguenot surname LA MELONIERE. There were also many Irish MALONES, and the surname is found spelled both ways in Lewis Malone/Melone's service record.

EDITOR'S NOTE: There were French Huguenots who settled in South Carolina, and some on Pedee River, Mr. Nelson. The 1778 Jury List for Spartan District [Spartanburg area] showed a Thomas Melone. There may be colonial land grants to Melones, as well as Revolutionary Audited Accounts in South Carolina. Both of these records have been indexed and are in the hands of the S.C.Archives, Box 11,669, Columbia, SC 29211.

Hicks there were in South Carolina, plentifully. Lists of lands granted to Hicks might be useful, looking for one located in the vicinity of the Pedee. But you cannot be sure that where Sallie was born was property obtained by her family by grant. They may have been granted land earlier in some other area, and bought the Pedee property from another man.

Since Drury had two wives before Sallie, was he much older than she, and possibly had seen some military service during the Revolution? If Drury was a veteran, did he obtain a Revolutionary pension or bounty land in his old age?

LOVELESS - Mrs. Emily D. Park, 705A East 45th, Austin, TX 78751 asks data on BARTON LOVELESS, b. ca. 1800, d. before 3-24-1849 in Cherokee Co., GA, now Pickens Co. His wife was IBBY LOVELESS. Their children:

Abner Mickey
Philip Benjamin
Peggy Alfred
Cynthia Samuel

The 1840 census of Cherokee Co. shows Barton aged 40/50. His estate was offered for probate in March 1849, when he died intestate. Sale of the property of the estate of ABNER CROSBY, 1-4-1836 in Pickens Co., SC. included a note given by Barton Loveless. Who were Barton's parents? What is the county seat of Pickens Co.? [Pickens]

SIMPSON - Mrs. R.E.O'Donnell, 5154 Winsanker Way, Ft.Worth, TX 76133 will exchange data on JOHN SIMPSON of Wilkes County, North Carolina. There is no apparent relation to REV. JOHN SIMPSON whose ancestry and family charts were published 1976 in FAMILY PUZZLERS, or work done by Mr. Max Perry on his Simpson family.

FAMILY PUZZLERS 14 January 6,1976,No.481

At the death of John Simpson, SAMUEL SIMPSON of Union Co., SC was the administrator in 1788. He sold land of John's in Burke Co., NC with WILLIAM WOOLBANKS as a witness.

This Samuel Simpson died in Union Co., SC. There is a record of an ELIZABETH SIMPSON and son CRAWFORD SIMPSON who moved to Spartanburg Co., SC. Was she a HARLEE or HARLESS? A widow ELIZABETH HARLEE SIMPSON had a daughter who married a Mr. EATON.

Eaton's will in 96 District, SC named his daughter ELIZABETH HARLEE SIMPSON EATON, and a son JOHN SIMPSON EATON, and gave to his wife the land her mother Elizabeth Simpson had given her. A John Simpson lived in Pendleton District, SC, and a REUBIN SIMPSON lived there in 1790.

ELIZABETH SMITH, wife of JOHN SMITH, SR. of Pendleton Dist., SC was apparently an heir to land of John Simpson. "We could not find a deed to John Smith for this tract, and wording of the deed indicates that she not only released her dower right, but interest in HER ESTATE in this land, the wording very different from wording in 1792 when land was sold where they lived. John Smith owned and sold several 100 acre tracts for which she did not join him, except on these two. He can be identified by witnesses, signature, and relatives. Grandchildren had first names of Simpson." When the Smith's left Pendleton District they sold 175 ac on Tugalo River, the upper part of a tract of 452 acres granted John Simpson 6-18-1788 in Pendleton District, to CALEB MAY of Spartanburg Co. 1815. The Smiths joined their children in Bedford Co., TN. Elizabeth died 3-6-1816, and John 3-12-1816, both were born in VA, if their youngest dau. RUTH SMITH BROWN's 1880 census return is correct. John Smith lived somewhere in NC 1774-1785 - from childrens' births. He was granted 640 acres on Broadmouth Creek, waters of Saluda River 1785, by WILLIAM MEDLING. Three Smith children married children of WILLIAM O. MEDLIN.

BURFORD - Mrs. W.S.Parks, 3437 Sophia, Memphis, TN 38118 wants to correspond on the lineage of DANIEL BURFORD b. before 1756 King William Co., VA, whose sons were:

January 6,1976,No.481

There are records extant even from the burned counties in Virginia, although digging is difficult. From the record group called "Public Service Claims", Virginia State Archives came evidence that a JOHN BUNDURANT of Buckingham County, VA put in a claim. Court Booklet pages 1, 23, 28, 36. Certificates - 2, lists page 1. Commissioners Book I, page 192 (8-1-1783), Book II, page 166 (8-24-1783).

Claim of JOSEPH BUNDURANT of Buckingham Co., was found in Comm. Book I, p. 192.

In the VaAr files called "Petitions" found JOHN BONDUANT, Buckingham County in H.D. [House Document?] Oct. 6, 1778 #720 THO. BONDURANT of Buckingham in the same place. "Petition of sundry freeholders of the County of Buckingham" was a request to cut part off of Buckingham and place it in Bedford. Both John and Thomas Bondurant signed. A petition 11-23-1780 signed by Buckingham freeholders again shows John Bondurant's signature. Although there were numerous petitions from Bedford County 1770s-1780s no Bondurants signed as freeholders until 1784.

The Vestry Book of King William Parish 12-9-1749 shows two vestrymen called "Joseph Bonduran and Jean Bonduran" yet they signed as JOHN BONDURANT and JOSEPH BONDURANT. Both signed as late as 12-28-1750, but following this entry was a list of property owners in the parish which contained NO BONDURANTS!

WALTON - MOSBY - BONDURANT HELP came also from Mrs. Ervil Norton, One Woodbridge, Hobe Sound, FL 33455 who has contributed abstracts from some Kentucky records.

Lincoln County, KY, marriage bonds. JOHN PETER BONDURANT to SUSAN-NAH DAMRON, widow of GEORGE DAMRON, and daughter of JOHN THOMAS, SR. and ANN THOMAS. Sept. 28, 1791 [?]

Green Co., KY, deed book 2, page 49, March 19, 1799: "Whereas MY WIFE PATTY BONDURANT died in the year 1794 entitled on the death of her mother MARTHA WALTON, to 1/7 part of residue of the estate of THOMAS WALTON, deceased, agreeable to his last will, dated August 26, 1771, consisting of negroes and personal chattels; whereas I JOHN P. BONDURANT of Greene Co., KY had by her TWO CHILDREN, WILLIAM and GEORGE BONDURANT, so I hereby relinquish all my claim to such children. [He had the right of courtesy.] Adair Co., KY, Will Book A, page 224. Will of JOHN P. BONDURANT: Legatees: wife SUSAN all property, and at her death to be divided between WILLIAM BONDURANT and SAMUEL DAMRON. Signed 11-11-1807. Executors were Susan Bondurant and RICHARD GENTRY. Witnesses: Robert T. Damron, George W. Damron, John T. Damron.

This provides a necessary connection between the Walton and Mosby line, with Thomas Walton. In addition a later suit by the Mosby children was filed to obtain a part of the slaves and personal property which John P. Bondurant was relinquishing to his sons William and George Bondurant in the 1799 deed of gift.

WALTON ADDITIONS AND CORRECTIONS - come from Mr. Britain Walton, Box 205, Edenton, NC 27932 for Mr. Stone's query, and my answer published in PUZZLERS 477.

"I have examined the will of THOMAS WALTON (1703-1772) and my data from the will does not show a Patty or a Martha as a dau. I do show a POLLY (which is normally for MARY) and she married a MOSBY. Either I miscopied or someone else did, but I do not think I could mistake Polly for Patty. Of course a Martha could have died before the two wills were written. Thomas had another daughter and five sons. On three of the sons I have little or no information and MARTHA WALTON BONDURANT could be grand dau. of Thomas through one of the sons. Right now I would say you are on the wrong track. Concerning the counties you mention: ALBEMARLE lost some of its early records and no one knows why; CUMBERLAND retains all its records; BUCKINGHAM has none prior to 1869-burned three times I believe; BEDFORD has theirs. I do not see how anyone can show information on a JOHN BONDURANT of Buckingham County, and I can't see how anyone can find the grave site of Martha Walton Bondurant. My suspicion is that she moved with her father to KY or TN and is buried on the property where she lived and died, which by now could be under an interstate highway, parking lot, or a shopping center.

ADDITIONS: Edward is an old given name in this lineage and there was one before the Edward [Walton] who died in 1720. There are two presently living in Cumberland County, father & son, and the old home still has the logs in the walls but during the generations it has been boarded in. I had a delightful visit with them last October.

The Deputy Clerk at Cumberland Court House, VA, is ELIZABETH WALTON, wife of the younger Edward, and for a small fee, she might send you a copy of the will of Thomas [Walton], recorded 4-27-1772....

How do I know about the Waltons? I've been researching them for seven years—have been to 50 Virginia county courthouses plus many libraries and I claim to know more about the early ones than anyone."

Changes in the Editor's Note on the previous query: THOMAS WALTON, baptized 2-20-1703, born 2-6-1703/4 [1704], will recorded 4-27-1772, not date of death. He m. 1734, said Mr. Walton, not 1732. Mother was MARTHA COX, whose will was recorded 8-27-1798, not death date. Father was EDWARD WALTON, JR., born ca. 1670, not 1655, m. ca. 1698, d. 5-25-1720, not 7-27-1720 New Kent Co., VA. Edward Walton, Jr.'s wife was ELIZABETH MASON, who d. 5-15-1717, not 4-5-1717 in New Kent Co.

EDITOR'S NOTE: Thank you for the corrections!
Martha Walton Mosby served as executrix of her husband EDWARD MOSBY's estate 1769 in Cumberland Co., VA. They married 1755 there and had children. She married later JOHN P. BONDURANT, who appears

She died after 1840 leaving a husband and children:
Juliet Emerline James
John J. Martha
Agnes m. GARDNER David Lee
William H. Stanhope
Several of the descendants settled in Carroll Co., TN.

PREVATT - Mrs. Wayne Pressnell, Box 841, High Springs, FL 32643 asks data on THOMAS PREVATT b. ca. 1780 probably in SC, d. 1837 in Duval Co., FL. He m. MARY STUDSTILL 1801, Camden Co., GA at her parents' home. Who were her parents? Who were his parents? Was he a son of JAMES or of JOHN PREVATT, listed 1790 SC census in Beaufort District? Where in SC is the Prevatt Cemetery? Was there a Primitive Baptist Church in Beaufort District?

EDITOR'S NOTE: All Baptist churches prior to about 1820 or later in the south were "primitive" -- the Missionary Baptist doctrine was to split existing congregations in two. Those who held to the Baptist beliefs on which those congregations were chartered then were called the Primitive Baptists, while those who followed the new and very controversial ideas of missionaries and a paid clergy became congregations who called themselves Missionary Baptists. Therefore you must seek BOTH Missionary and Primitive Baptist ancestors in congregations which were simply "Baptist" prior to the schism.

MACKEY - Mrs. Hoyt B. Price, Box 400, Hamilton, AL 35570 needs data on ALEXANDER MACKEY b. ca. 1770 NC, d. intestate 1840 in Muscogee Co., GA. He m. MARY ?, b. NC. Their children: George Braxton b. 1808
Sarah b. 1809 m. Mr. PARKER
Mary Ann b. 1811 m. Mr. PARKER
John Floyd b. 1813 m. LOUISA F. MORRIS
Elizabeth b. 1818 m. Mr. WEBSTER
Alexander C., b. 1823 m. ABIGAIL LAMBERTH
Joel Crawford b. 1820

George B., Elizabeth Webster and Alexander C. were later in Tallapoosa Co., AL. Mary Ann and Sarah Parker continued to live in Muscogee Co., and Russell Co., AL. Will be glad to exchange information.

EDITOR'S NOTE: Columbus had vigorous newspapers in 1840 when Mackey died; have you read them for his obituary? If not they can be found at the COLUMBUS ENQUIRER office, perhaps at the Bradley Library, and on microfilm through inter-library loan from the University of Georgia Library, Athens, GA 30602.

FURLOW - Ms. La Vona Furlow Purcell, 3764 Townsend Dr., Dallas, TX 75229 would like to know the parents and grandparents of OSBORN S. FURLOW b. 1807, m. SARAH ANN BUNCKLEY or BRINKLEY 1831 in Greene Co., GA. He had brothers JAMES THOMAS and GEORGE W. FURLOW, and sister HARRIETT FURLOW. Were there others? Known ones moved to Columbia Co., AR by 1857 from Greene and Tallapoosa Cos., AL.

EDITOR'S NOTE: The list of persons eligible for the 1805 Georgia

FAMILY PUZZLERS 16 January 6,1976,No.481 FAMILY PUZZLERS

Land Lottery, compiled 1802-3, shows all the Furlows were in Greene County, most married, except for a William Furlow of Chatham Co., GA. David, James, John, Margaret, and William Furlow of Greene Co., GA are on the list. Perhaps one is the parent you seek.

CARROLL - CARRELL - Mrs. Martha A. Pyatte, Rt.3 Box 262, Newland, NC 28657 wants the parents of SARAH CARRELL or CARROLL, b. 1-20-1835 d. 1-18-1910 buried Bethany in Pickens Co., GA where she lived.

Sarah married CICERO TAYLOR and their children were: Linda Laura Mary Charlie Done Rose Florence Felix (twin) Felier (twin) Lula (twin) Sallie (twin) Roxie

m. KIMSEY WOOD m. ELIAS ALLRED m. BENSON KEETER m. LULA TAYLOR m. BUD BARRON m. WILL CAGLE m. HENRY ALLRED

m. ANDY MULLINAX m. TOMMY CAGLE m. LEMMY CAGLE m. WILSON ARCHER.

Sarah Carroll's mother was a CLAYTON from Cherokee Co., GA. Sarah's brother CHARLIE CARROLL fought in the Civil War. Her sister married ANDY WORLEY and reared her family at Sharptop, Cherokee Co. Were Sarah's parents JESSE CARROLL b. 1800 NC, and MARY CLAYTON?

EDITOR'S NOTE: Again you should go to the regional and local papers seeking an obituary. Although Georgia did not take state-wide death records until January 1, 1919, the newspapers are often helpful.

HOLT - Mrs. John W. Reid, 2304 Whitney St., Houston, TX 77006 seeks data on DIBDEL or DIBDALL HOLT, his brother JOHN and sister SARAH who was the wife of HECTOR TRULY (d. 1761). Who were the Holt parents? The Holts and Sarah Truly's family of 6 left Amelia and Brunswick Cos., VA 1773, moved to the Natchez District.

EDITOR'S NOTE: Have you seen the translations of Spanish records on the District which the Mississippi Archives has? Or the index to Adams County, MS court records which antedate the formation of the Mississippi Territory; this is also in the hands of the MS Archives. The Spanish were quite detailed in recording names and prior homes of "foreigners" who were moving into the area.

BIBLE RECORD

Mr. James P. Miller, 2455 NW 168th St., Opa Locka, FL 33055 has contributed Xerox copies of the family Bible record of JAMES HAIL of Hancock Co., GA ca. 1810. Handwriting and faded copy make it very hard to read. The volume now belongs to William Earl Wooten, c/o Mrs. Vann Wooten, Quitman, GA. No date of publication, printer or Bible version was shown.

EDITOR'S NOTE: Mr. Miller asked how to obtain mortuary schedule records on two family members. WILLIAM MILLER, d. Upson Co., GA 10-22-1849 His son WILLIAM MILLER died Oct. 30, 1859 in Sumter Co., GA

The DAR Library, 1776 D Street NW, Washington, DC has the original copies of the Georgia mortality schedules for 1850 and 1860 in which you should find both Millers' deaths. Schedules are arranged by county, so you would either have to look for yourself, or have someone transcribe the information for you. According to NATIONAL ARCHIVES MICROFILM PUBLICATIONS, 1974 edition, there are 30 rolls of microfilm (T655) "Federal Mortality Census Schedules 1850-1880, and Related Indexes in the Custody of the Daughters of the American Revolution." Presumably you could purchase from the National Archives microfilm copies of the mortality schedule for these two counties and read them yourself.

The 1786 act provided that FOUR COPIES of the annual personal property tax list were to be prepared by each tax commissioner and delivered by the last day of May of each year.

- (1) Tax commissioner retained one copy
- (2) County Court Clerk received one copy. "The list in the clerk's office shall serve for laying the county levy, and fixing the poor rates, and be subject to the inspection or examination of every person who may choose to examine the same."
- (3) After being certified as correct by the county court clerk, a copy was given the High Sheriff of the county to aid him in collecting the taxes.
- (4) The solicitor received the last copy, which was admitted as evidence by the general court for the purpose of tax suits.

Land tax list was also to be delivered by the tax commissioner to the clerk of the county, "noting the ALTERATIONS, alienations, divisions and additions that may have taken place in the preceding year, within his district, to enable the clerk to adjust his book of the land tax, and the solicitor to adjust the equalizer's books; and the book containing the land tax, together with the annual returns of the several commissioners lodged in the clerk's office, shall be subject at all times to the inspection of every person, in like manner as the list of taxable property, and the said commissioners shall also deliver to the sheriff an exact list of taxes due from all and every person or persons for land within his district to enable the sheriff to proceed in his collection."

WHAT WAS A TAX DEFAULTER? Many counties published lists of tax defaulters in the newspapers. In all counties lists of defaulters were part of the report of the tax commissioners. A defaulters was a citizen who FAILED TO MAKE HIS TAX RETURN ON TIME. He may or may not have failed to make a late return or pay his annual tax. If he made the tax return late a penalty for late filing was levied against him, just as is done today. Should the citizen fail to PAY his tax, his real and/or personal property was subject to seizure by the county sheriff and sale for unpaid taxes.

In examining the original land tax booklets at the Virginia State Archives, usually a section following the regular land tax enumeration is marked "Alterations." These alterations serve as a check list of sales and exchanges of property. The following records were abstracted from the original Land Tax Books of Buckingham County, VA, a burned county. All were for BONDURANT/BUNDURANT men. For this county only the Alterations Book for 1783-7 was available, and by 1788 the county is found divided into two commissioners districts which I have labled A and B. The 1791 return seems to show that the A and B districts were reversed in naming. Under the year of land tax is given the acres of land each man reported, and district (if any)

Section IX. And be it further enacted, That nothing in the said act contained, shall be construed to prevent the several county courts from causing lists to be taken of ALL FREE MALE TITHABLES, BETWEEN THE AGES OF 16 AND 21 YEARS, and of imposing taxes upon all such, for the purposes of COUNTY or PARISH LEVIES. Some counties, which were named [included Buckingham and Bedford] were to appoint two commissioners, i.e. divide the tax districts into two portions, rather than county wide.

VIRGINIA'S EARLY TAX LISTS

Virginia's method of taxing for state, and for county purposes was a holdover from the Anglican parish system, in which local needs were met by tithes paid by citizens to the local vestry. The vestry in turn provided necessary welfare payments, supervised land line processions, etc.

After the Revolution tax laws were quickly enacted to make more uniform the method of taxation, but to provide "county levys" as well as state taxes. Those persons who held grants from the Fairfax heirs were also ordered to pay the quit rents to the State of Virginia until the confiscation of the property by the state could be adjudicated.

Because the laws guide in using the tax lists effectively, here are abstracts taken from the published laws of Virginia. Original tax lists for both real and personal property have been preserved, even for burned counties, and are in the custody of the Virginia State Archives, Richmond, VA. These have been microfilmed, we are told.

In order to illustrate the contents and usefulness of these tax lists, abstracts which I made years ago of Bondurants in Buckingham and Bedford County are presented in tabular form. They will, I hope, save some other Bondurant researcher days of abstracting! It happened, as well, that an out-of-state owner of land is also shown in the lists!

From Hening's STATUTES AT LARGE OF VIRGINIA, Vol. 11, pp. 112-29.

An act to amend and reduce the several acts of assembly for ascertaining certain taxes and duties, and for establishing a permanent revenue, into one act. October, 1782

Section IV. Dear Mr. Winn,

Thank you for yours mailed October 26. Yesterday I spent two hours in the Rowan Public Library; continued the attempt to solve your problems.

As you suggested, and as I had noted, I finished the copying of the material in Folder 17, Winn, Thos. of Loudon Co., Va. and Winn, Thos. of Clark Co., Ky. I simply copied what I found in that file that was not marked with my identification mark. It seems to be re your origins as you request.

After spending $3.70 at the xerox machine, I spent another hour searching the indexes of our many Virginia books.

I selected the two pages I am sending as the best sources. We have four large books of Swem's "Virginia Historical Index." The best method I have found to locate the many pages indicated Is to write Virginia State Library, Send a reasonable deposit and request a statement of the cost beyond that amount. These code numbers well take this one for an example:10 W(2) 135 which translated means simply vol. #10 of the second series of Wm. and Mary Quarterly, page 135. They xerox that page and mail it to you.

Greer's Early Virginia Immigrants, as you can see, lists your early immigrants. The second name, I suppose, was the shipmaster(or possibly the wealthy trader) who brought these persons to Virginia.

As to the state of your account: As of October 8, after mailing to you, a package on which the postage was 562, your balance was 56.40

Yesterday two hours time $4.00 Today stapling and letter 2.00 Yesterday xeroxing $3.70 Todays postage $ 9.70-6.40 3.30 due me plus postage on this package ...?...

Sincerely,

Mrs. W. C. Taylor Mrs. W. C. Taylor

Felix Moore 502 Taylor Ave. Bastrop, La.

Dear Mr. Moore,

I am doing some Copeland research and need a little help from you. My g. grandfather was Wiley B. Copeland. Amanda (Mandy) Moore was one of his daughters. I am trying to find out who her childern were by Charles W. Moore and Pody Oliveaux. I visited your father a few years ago in a nursing home in Bastrop. He told me he thought you had a Family Bible that belonged to his mother (Mandy) with names and dates that could help me. Some one told me Mandy has a Oliveaux daughter still living. She is Alice, married to Charley Wynn, lives near Tallulah. Can you tell me how to get in touch with her? If you do not have this Bible, can you tell me who has it? If you do have it will you please copy anything that can help me. I do not have death and birth dates of Mandy's father, mother, brothers and sisters. I do not know who all of her childern were and who they married.

Will you please let me hear from you and give me as much information as you can. Maybe you know someone that knew about these Copelands that could help me?

Sincerely,

nancy

P.S. My father was Samuel Copeland, his father was also Samuel.

RAYVILLE, LA. FEB. 22 1970.

DEAR MR. LANDRUM:

I WAS GOING THRU SOME OF MY RECORDS THIS AFTERNOON AND FOUND SOME 1850 CENCUS RECORDS AND IN THEM I FOUND AMBROISE OLIVO. I WILL GIVE YOU ALL OF HIS LINE ON BACK NOW AS I FOU ND HE WAS SON OF EUSTACE, HIS MOTHER WAS JUST GIVEN AS EUALIE, BUT I MAY FIND HER LAST NAME IN SOME OF MY PAPERS. HE WAS 15 YEARS OLD AT THAT TIME. AND THERE WERE SEVERAL BROTHERS AND SISTERS, CATHERINE, JOSEPHINE, THERESE AND ADOLPH WHO WAS ALSO 15 MUST HAVE BEEN TWIN OR COUSIN, LATER ON IN THE 1880 CENCUS I HAVE HIM MARRIED TO A SARAH A. CHILDREN ZELMA FRANCES PAUL ALLEN, ALEC. ANNA,

NOW: EUSTICE WAS SON OF PIERRE AND MARIANNE RICHE, PIERRE'S PARENTS WERE PIERRE AND MARIE MADALINE CABLE, PIERRE'S PARENTS WERE LAURENT OLIVO, AND DAME HELENE ROBERT, MADALINE CABLE WAS DAUGHTER OF LEONARD GAFFELL (CABLE) AND CATHERINE WOFF (BOLF) SHE WAS GERMAN AND CANE OVER ON ONE OF THE PEST SHIPS IN ABOUT 1721( MRS. FORSYTHE HAS LUST PUBLISHED THIS BOOK? AND I FOUND HER FAMILY IN IT, IT SEEMED AS THO HER FATHER HAD DIED, BUT IN ANOTHER BOOK , I THINK I HAVE SEEN SOME DOCUMENTS SIGNED BY HIM. EUSTICE WAS BORN 1783. AND HE IS BROTHER TO SUSSANNE WHO WAS MY GRANDMOTHER MANY TIMES BAK SHE MARRIED LOUIS EPINET. IN 1784-6/? IN HOPE THIS WILL HELP FILL IN YOUR OLIVO LINE, THES AFTERNOON I WALKED DOWN TO THE OLIVO (OLIVEAUX) PLOT JUST BELOW MY HOME, AND WHILE MANY GRAVES ARE THERE FEW OF THEM ARE MARKED, HERE IS WHAT I FOUND: GEORGE OLIVO, BORN NOV 12 1865. DIED 1954 AGED 89 YEARS, MANDY OLIVO BORN JUNE I 1876 DIED OCT 30 1950 SON JAMES G. BORN 1900 DIED 1918 VIOLA, DAUGHTER OF F.O. AND AMANDA OLIVO, B, AUG 17 1896 D. JULY 8 1900. FRANK OLIVO, DIED JULY 26 1967 AGED 93 YRS, II MTS, 7 DAYS, ELLA OLIVEAUX B. MAR I 1906 D. AUG. 26 1967/ THERE WERE ALSO TWO OTHER GRAVES MARKED BUT WERE "THARPS" THESE FAMILIES WERE RELATED THEU MARRIAGE AND LIVED ON THE LAKE LONG YEARS AGO,

GOT NICE LETTER FROM MR. FORSYTHE SEVERAL WEEKS AGO, AND AM TRYING TO GET SOME OF MY MATERIAL TYPED UP FOR HIS INSPECTION WHEN NEXT I GO DOWN THERE, DID I TELL YOU I HAD SON LIVING IN WESTWEGO? HAD PLANNED TO BE DOWN THERE DAY AFTER MARDIGRASS, BUT SOMETHING CA CAME UP AND DIDNT GET OFC.

BACK TO MADALINE CABLE, SHE MARRIED TWICE AFTER PIERRE DIED, IN 1744 SHE MARRIED A JACQUEZ CAVE (CAVET) AND THEN A JACQUEZ DUCOSTE, HAD CHILDREN BY ALL OF THE HUSBANDS, BUT DON'T HAVE ALL OF THEM AT THIS TIME. I FOUND SOME FOR CAVET BUT FAILED TO COPY THEM, RE. THE HARDESTY'S AS I TOLD YOU, I KNEW ALL OF THEM WHEN I WAS A CHILD, BUT THE NAMES OF THE GIRLS YOU GIVE ARE NOT THE ONES THEY WE WERE CALLED BY ONE WAS CALLED "SCRAP" IF I EVER HEARD HER NAME I DOWN REMEMBERIT, ANOTHER WAS MOLLIE, AND THE OTHER WAS FANNIE. ONE OF THEM MARRIED A GORDON MCCORMIC, AND AS I TOLD YOU HAS DAUGHTER IN MANHAM I GOT HER MARRIED NAME THE OTHER NITE, BUT AM NOT SUER I WENT I AM RIGHT, THINK IT WAS GIVINS OR GOINGS, WILL BE SUHE AND WRITE IT DOWN NEXT TIME. HAVE TALKED TO SEVERAL OF PEOPLE AROUND MY AGE AND ALL OF THEM REMEMBER THEM, AS FOR THE JUSTICE'S WILL HAVE TO HAVE MORE DATA ON WHICH ONES YOU WANT. I KNOW OF JOEL WYNN, AND AM SURE CAN FIND OUT ALL YOU NEED TO KNOW ABOUT HIM, I THINK I KNOW A "GAL" WHO MARRIED POSSIBLY HIS SON, AS HIS NAME WAS JOE WYNN, BUT HAVE A GOOD FRIEND THAT WAS RAISED UP THERE AND SHE KNOWS ALL OF TEM.

BACK TO THE HARDESTY'S, THEY MAY BE BURIED AND THE LITTLE CREEK CHURCH NEAR ALTO, BUT NOT SURE, THERE IS THE BAPTIST AND PRESBYTERIAN CEMETARY, AND COULD BE IN ANY OF THEM . WILL CHECK FOR YOU IF YOU WOULD LIKE .

fortunate Charles I.; for there is extant in his family a receipt of the date of the very year in which his majesty suffered, signed by a deputed person on behalf of the exiled prince, his son, from which it appears that George Winn contributed, with his brother Rowland, the sum of 2000 guildors (a sum, perhaps, in those days not inconsiderable, and certainly not advanced without sorious personal risk), towards the support of what might have been considered a hopeless cause. In the December following the Restoration, the title of Baronet was conferred by Charles II. on his fall-fully highest, as Hig George Winn, of Neatell, in the es, of York. #### ELIZABETHANS AT HOME the people were more or less dependent on the squire or lord of a great house. Long since, the fine old Roman roads had fallen into decay, but they were still used because there were no other main roads. Indeed, most of the roads to villages were mere tracks over which a noble's coach and heavily laden wagons had to be dragged through sheer force by many horses. If bridges were needed at rivers and streams, they had to be maintained by ecclesiastics or the private persons who made frequent use of them. The parish church or the great house, therefore, was likely to be the center of a community. The same was true of the manor house of a country squire of some consequence, and the stately avenue of trees leading to his house often connected it with the church. When a two-storied manor house was made of stout timber, covered with whitewashed plaster, roofed with tiles or slate, and supplied with many glass windows, it was usually a source of as much pride to the villagers as to the owner. With possessive admiration they would gaze at it set in its garden surrounded with high thatched walls, and they would have heard of its lofty, spacious rooms with their pattern of oak wainscoting.

In the town of Conway, Wales, is a rather modest house known as Plas Mawr (Great Mansion) that was once the great pride of a small village with but few inhabitants, as it is now the pride of a town with many people. When it was built, there were wide stretches of gardens about it instead of the cottages which now press close to its walls, and in the day of its pride it faced the Conway River, with landscaping extending far enough away to give vista and privacy. Although the first servants' quarters (later replaced by the Keeper's House at the new entrance) and stables and outbuildings have disappeared, the house itself has the warm, inviting appeal of a home once loved by those who lived in its charmingly arranged interior. The first owner, Robert Wynne, was born in 1520, and according to Norman Tucker, a former Curator of the Cambrian Academy of Art now established in the home, Wynne was an Elizabethan adventurer descended from an illustrious family. While his house was being constructed, Wynne made use of abandoned abbey buildings extending to the very site of his new home, for the tops of blocked-up arches show on either side of the door leading from the terrace of the present entrance to the banqueting hall, an imposing room added later to this "mansion." The house has two dates in its plasterwork-1577 and

If a guest of the sixteenth century rode to the original entrance of this house, he dismounted from his horse and gave it in charge of a servant, who led it down a cobbled passage (dividing into two almost equal parts the lower floor of the house) and into the upper courtyard and the stables beyond. Meanwhile, the guest could walk down this cobbled passage to the original entranceway at the left, where a servant would escort him past the "small" kitchen to one of the spiral stairs. If he was not led up the stairs to the reception room above, he was likely to proceed along the passage and through a door into the banqueting room. Should the person be a member of the family, he might prefer to enter the living room, now called the Queen's sitting room because of the royal initials E and R over the mantel. In this case he would turn right off the cobbled passage into a hall leading past another spiral stair and past the "still" room to the sitting room situated on a corner of the house. If a servant was sent to the great "west" kitchen to give orders for the preparation of some special dainty, he turned left at the sitting room, passed the pantry, and entered the kitchen. So carefully was the first floor planned that one could also enter the upper courtyard easily and quickly from kitchen, sitting room, or banquet hall.

ELIZABETHANS AT HOME

The banquet hall was thirty by twenty feet and thirteen feet high. On its dressed stone fireplace is the date 1580. The Wynne arms were in the center of the chimney breast and, when painted in correct heraldic colors, showed a green field with golden eaglets and silver fleurs-de-lis on black. On either side were Tudor roses—white superimposed on the red. Close to the ceiling were red shields with silver stags' heads and silver lions rampant at the base, but they have now long since lost their glowing colors. The outlines and the initials "R. W." are as clear, however, as the building date on this fine, dignified structure. Of almost equal interest in this room is the ceiling with its attractive symmetrical design culminating in several Tudor roses. Mullioned windows light the room pleasantly, for the lozenge-shaped panes include some of the original glass of soft green hue.

One may leave the banqueting room by way of a passage to the "small" kitchen, or through a door opening on the terrace of the lower court, or through still another door to the upper court. In the "small" kitchen the first thing to attract attention is the huge fireplace with its beautiful arch, making the room warm and cheerful. In front of it a large wooden cage is fastened close to the ceiling between stout oaken beams. Such a cage is known as a bread safe or bakestone safe, and is still used on farms far out in the Welsh hills. Since the kitchen fireplace backs up to that of the banqueting room and since it is so convenient to this great dining hall, it must have been a busy place indeed when a large company enjoyed the hospitality of the master's good food and wine.

Crossing the cobbled passage to the entrance at the right, one reaches what is now called the "still" room. The porter of the entrance gate may once have occupied this room. Later, when the main entrance was built opposite the banqueting room, this little "still" room adjoining the sitting room and close to the kitchen was most convenient for a lady who liked to spend much time concocting medicines and perfumes and sweet waters. The sitting room still retains the spirit of the welcoming host and hostess who talked away many pleasant hours with their guests made comfortable on stools and benches before its great fireplace. The royal coat of arms on the chimney breast flaunts the Tudor rose and portcullis, and is supported by a Welsh dragon. The low plaster ceiling, richly and freely ornamented, and the floor of stone flagging even now give the room an intimate quality. In the plaster wall at right angles to the fireplace is a great recessed window with Robert Wynne's initials and coat of arms very large at either side of it. The date of this room is shown below the heraldic emblems, "15" on the left and "77" on the right.

Around the corner from this sitting room was the bolting room for the sifting of flour; it also served as a pantry, and its twelve-by-twelve feet of space must have been crowded with activity. Adjoining it was the large "west" kitchen, opening on the upper courtyard. In this room was always much running to and fro, for the preparation of food was as important as the serving of it. Here bread was baked in ovens on either side of the great fireplace over nine feet wide, and here the "cradle" spit with its supporting irons held game and fowls as they were roasted for the master's table. In spite of its size, this kitchen was not large enough to serve the needs of the household when the banqueting room was added to the house; hence the "small" kitchen.

If one climbs the spiral stair off the passageway from the sitting room, one comes to another passageway connecting two bedrooms, and a locked storeroom directly opposite the head of the stairs. These three rooms are just above kitchen, pantry, and sitting room on the floor below. The bedroom over the "west" kitchen is called the Wynne room because of the shield, which is a quartering of four shields, over the fireplace. The date 1577 is also prominently displayed. On either side of the fireplace are closets with small windows. Perhaps the most debatable thing about the room is the use of the "bear and ragged staff" design in the plasterwork, since both the Earl of Leicester and the Earl of Warwick used such a device, and Wynne may have used the design to flatter one or the other of these prominent Elizabethans, just as he used the Queen's initials over the sitting room fireplace. The room is large and light and cheerful, and the master of the house must have found it warmer and more comfortable than any of the other chambers. The other bedroom is also large and cheerful, and with its outlook over the river and gardens it must have been considered fine enough to house the Queen. Indeed, it is now called Queen Elizabeth's bedroom. Its fine oak screen and low ceiling designed with heraldic devices are its outstanding features.

The other spiral stair leads to another wing of rooms very similar in size to those in the wing just described. Although one is now called the Council Room and the other large one the Lantern Room, with a small one between these called the House Keeper's Room, they must have been bedchambers, the small one being used by the housekeeper. Connecting these two wings with their four spacious chambers is a large room now called the Reception Room. It may very well have served as a withdrawing room or presence chamber. Directly over the "small" kitchen, cobbled passage, and "still" room, it looks out toward both the upper court and the river and is well lighted by large windows. Both stairs led to it by means of short passageways, and when guests filled the house, it may well have been crowded in spite of its commodious size. The ceiling is so designed as to set off the date 1580, and discerning guests sitting on the seats that are still around the wall could have studied the structure of the ceiling and the details of the chimney breast if they felt time heavy on their hands. A fine Tudor rose encircled by the Garter reveals the work of a craftsman who knew his flowers better than his alphabet when he decorated the open space above the fireplace.

ELIZABETHANS AT HOME

The room might also have served for devout Catholics to gather in secret to hear a courageous priest as he presided at the mass services. Although the spiral stairs provided easy access to the room, they also permitted hasty departure, and the great windows looking out far over the landscape would make it difficult to be surprised in the daytime. Moreover, there were lookout windows in the high staircase tower extending well above the upper courtyard; these gave a fine view of the whole countryside. Between the end wall of this reception room and the end of the bedchamber now called the Lantern Room is a space that might have been used for a secret hiding place or priest's hole, and since this space was seemingly provided for in the actual building of the house, one can scarcely doubt that it was intended to serve such a purpose. The very name of the Lantern Room also may have some significance, for in the fine oriel window of this bedchamber, a light was once kept burning all night to light the terrace below. Examination of the priest's hole today shows how one of the joists could well have been movable, enabling a man to climb from a ladder through the entrance to the hiding place; then he could have replaced the floor covering to make the ceiling look intact. Though the owner, Robert Wynne, was presumably buried in the Protestant Church, there were strong rumors of his Catholic inclinations, and one feels that both the so-called Reception Room and the priest's hole may well have been carefully planned for religious purposes when this part of the house was built.

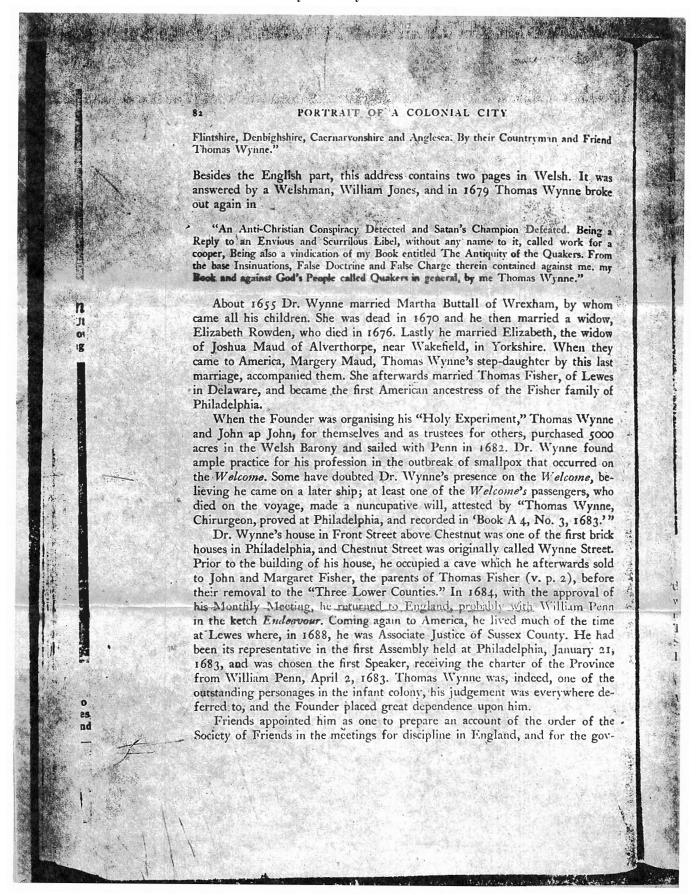

The country gentleman, like his rich city cousin, usually built his house symmetrically around three sides of a courtyard and divided the family living quarters from the kitchen and servants' quarters by a large hall. The best of such houses included a chapel. If after inheriting such an estate a gentleman wished to add new rooms, he would probably include a matted chamber, a study, more servants' quarters, and more bedchambers, some of them provided with sitting rooms. The number of servants would vary according to the owner's wealth or inclination, ranging from thirty to a hundred and thirty, but most of them would be women—ladies' maids, needlewomen, laundresses, dairy maids, poor relations such as widows, spinsters, or elderly women who would rather be waiting maids than go into service. It took many women to manage a country estate,

RACELANDS

(Prince George County to Dinwiddie County included land grant to PETER WYNNE)

COL. WILLIAM WYNN home:

If the traveler taking a tour of old placed in Dinwiddie wants to find RACELANDS he must return to the Court House village, travel about ½ mile North on US 1, turn right on State 141, continue East  $6\frac{1}{2}$  miles and then NW on County #670 for about a mile. The house stands by an old-fashioned, tangled garden filled with native and imported trees and shrubs and faces a field that once was a celebrated race track. The rear portion of the house, much older than the front, is one of the oldest buildings in the county. It served as a tavern in the merry stagecoach days and was a place where travelers rested and horses were changed. The property later owned by MARY WYNN GOODRICH who sold it to WILLIAM WYNN. After 1839 it came into the possession of JOHN M. WYNN and it was later possessed by MARSHALL MONCURE. whose son, AMBLER MONCURE long made his home there. WILLIAM WYNN was renowned throughout Virginia as an owner of fine horses. A note of tragedy creeps into the pleasant annals of RACING BILLIE and his horses. The story goes that after one of his daughters was found dead in the house, COL. BILLIE left Racelands for a distant state. Then it was JOHN M. WYNN who succeeded him. MARSHALL MONCURE married JOHN M. WYNN s daughter. Troops passed this way during the Revolution and the War between the States.

From the Moncure Family History:

they had 2 hildren:

- 1. HENRY WYNNE MARSHALL born 1866 died 1867

Jones? The other known children were, Willis; William & Peter Winn. (R. B., Fort Walton Beach,

CHAPTER XII

CONCLUSION

S I have led up to the advent of Glyndwr with a rough outline of Welsh history prior to his day, I will now cast a brief glance at the period which followed. English people have a tendency to underestimate, or rather to take into small consideration, the wide gulf which, not only in former days, but to some extent even yet, divides the two countries. They are apt to think that after the abortive rising of Glyndwr, provided even this stands out clearly in their minds, everything went smoothly and Wales became merely a geographical expression with an eccentric passion for maintaining its own language. As, in the introduction to this book. I had to solicit the patience of the general reader and crave the forbearance of the expert for an effort to cover centuries in a few pages, so I must again put in a plea for another venture of the same kind-briefer, but none the less difficult.

The ruin left by Glyndwr's war was awful. It was not only the loss of property, the destruction of buildings, the sterilisation of lands, but the quarrels and the blood-feuds which the soreness of these years of strife handed down for generations to the descendants of those who had taken opposing sides. And then before prosperity had fairly lifted its head, before bloody quarrels and memories had been forgotten, the devastating Wars of the Roses were upon the country, and it was plunged once more into a chaos not much less distracting than that in which the preceding generation had weltered.

Though, by a curious turn of events, she ultimately gave to England a Lancastrian king, Wales most naturally favoured the House of York. Edmund Mortimer, uncle to the young Earl of March, had shared the triumphs and the perils of Glyndwr's rising. The blood of Llewelyn ap Iorwerth flowed in the veins of the Mortimers, and their great estates lay chiefly in Wales and on the border. The old antagonism to Bolingbroke's usurpation, and the sympathy with Richard and his designated heir that half a century before accompanied it, were still remembered. The Yorkists, however, had no monopoly of Wales,-Welsh knights had fought victoriously in France under Henry V., and Marcher barons of Lancastrian sympathies could command a considerable following of Welshmen. The old confusion of lordship government still retained half Wales as a collection of small palatinates. Once more the castles that Glyndwr had left standing echoed to the bustle of preparation and the stir of arms, and felt the blows of an artillery that they could no longer face with quite the composure with which they had faced the guns of Henry the Fourth.

It was not so much the actual damage that was done, for this war was not so comprehensive, but rather the passions and faction it aroused among the Welsh gentry of both races, though this new faction no longer ran strictly upon racial lines. Nor, again, was it the amount of blood that was shed, for this compared to Glyndwr's war was inconsiderable, but the legacy, rather, of lawlessness that it left behind. Sir John Wynne of Gwydir, in the invaluable chronicle which he wrote at his home in the Vale of Conway during the reign of Elizabeth, draws a graphic picture of North Wales as Henry the Seventh found it. Sir John's immediate forbears had taken a brisk hand in the doings of those distracted times, and there were still men living when he wrote who had seen the close of the chaos with their own eyes, and whose minds were stored with the evidence of their fathers and grandfathers. Harlech in these wars stood once more a noted siege. It was held for the Lançastrians by a valiant Welshman against the Herberts, who made a somewhat celebrated march through the mountains to besiege it. The stout defence it offered inspired the music and the words of the Welsh national march, "Men of Harlech,"-as spirited an air of its kind, perhaps, as has ever been written. The Vale of Clwyd, the garden of North Wales, was burnt, says Sir John, "to cold coals." Landowners who had mortgaged their estates, he goes on to tell us, scarcely thought them worth redeeming, while the deer grazed in the very streets of Llanrwst. For two or three generations the country was infested by bands of robbers who found refuge in the mountains of Merioneth or the wild uplands of the Berwyn Range, and fought for the privilege of systematically plundering and levying blackmail on the Vale of Conway and the richer meadows of Edeyrnion. Sir John's grandfather found it necessary to go to church attended by a bodyguard of twenty men armed to the teeth. "The red-haired banditti of Mawddy" kept the country between the Dovey and Mawddach estuaries and inland nearly to Shropshire in a state of chronic terror. The Carnarvon squires cherished blood-feuds that almost resembled a vendetta, laid siege to one another's houses, and engaged in mimic battles of a truly bloodthirsty description. The first Wynne of Gwydir left West Carnarvonshire and preferred to live among the brigands of the Vale of Conway rather than among his own relatives, since he would "either have to kill or be killed by them." To try and combat these organised bands of robbers, Edward IV. instituted, in 1478, the Court of the President and Council of the Marches of Wales, with summary jurisdiction over all breakers of the peace-provided always that they could catch them! The legal machinery of the lordships was wholly ineffectual, for though each petty monarch had the power of life and death, the harbouring of thieves and outlaws became a matter purely of personal rivalry and jealousy.

But this epoch of Welsh history ended with the advent of the Tudors, which is in truth an even more notable landmark than the so-called conquest of Edward I. Wales since that time had been

BETSEY WYNNE'S FAMILY

The Wynnes came originally from Gwydir, and traced their descent from Owen Gwynedd, prince of North Wales, who died in 1438. Early in the fifteenth century the first Richard Wynne was born, and flourished. He bought Capel Porthew, in Montgomery. He married and begot two sons: Richard, who was born in 1582, and married Alice, daughter of Thomas Spurstow of Spurstow, Cheshire, by Catherine his wife, and John, born in 1553. Richard succeeded to Capel Porthew and remained all his life in Wales, whilst John went to London to find his fortune, become famous as an historian, and received a baronetcy in 1611. He kept for his arms as baronet his father's arms he had borne as Esquire; Ermine, on a fesse vert, three eagles displayed or, and for crest, an eagle displayed or, which shows the Wynnes must have been of good local standing. Crest and arms were both borne by all the descendants of the two brothers.

Sir John Wynne had three sons, each of whom in his turn succeeded to the baronetcy; Sir Richard, his eldest son, was one of the grooms of the bedchamber to Charles I when Prince of Wales, and accompanied him to Spain.* He wrote an Account of a Spanish Journey of Charles I which was published in Thomas Hearne's tracts, and thereafter was shown much favour by Queen Henrietta Maria, whose treasurer he became. He died childless, and was succeeded by his brother Owen, who at the restoration became cupbearer to Charles II, but did not long survive his new honour, dying almost immediately, before the end of 1660. Brunelli, in his Casanova Loved Her, makes the not unnatural mistake of confounding him with another Owen Wynne,† who was an under-secretary of state under

* He was a member of the House of Commons Committee which met on Nov. 30, 1640, to discuss the accusations against Strafford, with thirty of the Lords.

† This Owen had two sons and three grandsons: the first, Richard, born 1718, in 1764 published a new translation of the New Testament, and in 1758, on the death of Samuel Hassell, was instituted rector of Ayot St. Lawrence, near Welwyn, Hertfordshire. His wife Elizabeth died on April 18, 1786, aged 59, and he followed her to the grave in 1799. (Brunelli states (quite without foundation) that this was Betsey's father.) Edward, the second of this Owen Wynne's three grandsons, was born in 1734 and died in Chelsea on December 26, 1784, whilst John, the third, became first a printer and then a soldier. He wrote a History of the British Empire in America, published in 1770, The Prostitutes and Evelina in 1771, a History of Ireland in 1772, and in 1788 L'enfant du basard. He died in that same year and neither he nor any of his brothers is known to have had any children.

Charles II and James II. What relations the two Owens were to one another I have been unable to determine, and I also find it difficult to discover where George Wynne of Nostel (now spelt Nostell) Abbey, whom Brunelli gives as another of Giustiniana Wynne's ancestors, comes in, unless he was one of the ten sons of the prolific baronet-historian.

Sir Owen the cupbearer was succeeded by his only son Richard, who died childless. Richard was succeeded by his first cousin John Wynne, son of Henry, tenth son of the first Sir John. This last Sir John Wynne of Gwedir died in 1719, aged 91, and without heirs; on his death the baronetcy became extinct, and the estates passed to Sir Watkin Williams, who thereupon assumed the additional surname of Wynne.

The owners of Nostel are still Wynnes, only they spell it Winn, and since Richard Wynne was of Folkingham they were probably related.

Richard, in Capel Porthew, meanwhile had by Alice Spurstow, his wife, seven children; three boys, Thomas, William, and Richard, and four girls, Damaris, Catherine, Eleanor, and Priscilla. Thomas Wynne went to London and became a Turkey Merchant, marrying 'one Mistress Wyche, neice to Sir Cyril Wyche' and dying in 1644 at the age of 40. He had three children: Thomas, who went to Virginia 'where he lived, married and had issue'—possibly flying thither from the violence of the Civil War; Jane who married Alexander Meres, another Turkey merchant; and Damaris who married 'Bridgman of Essex'.

William died unmarried, and of his sisters Catherine died unwed, Damaris and Priscilla married Turkey merchants, whilst Eleanor married Abraham Reynoldson, who was Lord Mayor of London, 1648. Eugenia Wynne, on January 23, 1804, notes in her diary how she sat next 'a Mr. Reynardson' at Lady Lowther's, 'he entertained me all dinner in explaining our relationship. His grandmother was a Wynne of the same Welsh family from which we are sprung. His arms are quartered with ours.'

Richard Wynne, who is described as 'of the City of London, Hambro' merchant', married Joyce, daughter of Sir Anthony Biddulph, another Hamburg merchant, 'uncle to Sir Theop'. They had two children: Richard, who in May 1696 married Sarah, daughter of Richard Young and relict of one Bannington, and Elisabeth, who married Sir William Massingberd of Grimsby, Lincoln. The elder Richard died in 1697, aged 78 years and 7 months, and his son, who presumably must have succeeded him in the business, seems quickly to have amassed a fortune and to have retired young, for he acquired the property of Folkingham or Falkingham in Lincolnshire, either shortly before or directly after his marriage. Possibly if the Nostell Wynnes were cousins he was visiting them there when his sister Elisabeth met and married her Sir William, and this induced Richard to settle in her neighbourhood. At all events he quickly became a figure of importance in local politics, being 'elected to serve' as member for Boston in the Parliament of 1698, and again in that of 1705. He remained member for the said place until his death in 1719, and was sergeant-at-law in 1713. In 1702 he bought Bedwell Park, Hertfordshire, from Sir Henry Atkins, presumably requiring some country residence nearer Westminster than was his Lincolnshire estate. He died in October 1719, and was buried in a vault in Essendon Church near Bedwell. He left two sons: William who died unmarried, and another Richard; also two daughters, Elizabeth, wife of William Tate of Mitcham, Surrey (who was still alive in 1763), and Susanna, who married Richard Love of Baring Farm, Frockfield, Hants.

Richard, who is styled no longer simply 'of Folkingham' but 'of the Castle of Folkingham', married Susanna, only daughter of James Church; she died in 1734, leaving him a childless and disconsolate widower. To dissipate his affliction for the loss of his lady', as Lady Mary Wortley Montagu put it in a spiteful letter to her daughter, Lady Bute, he decided on a continental tour and arrived in Venice early in 1735. There, Lady Mary continues, 'he was introduced by his gondolier (who are as industrious as the drawers at London)' to a lovely pseudo-Greek girl, Anna Gazzini. Her father, Messer Fillippo, is described as 'a nobleman from the island of Leukas', and in Count von Rosenberg's letter to von Kaunitz he talks of 'Count Gazzini'. But Brunelli shows that this nobility sprang into existence on the legitimization certificate of Anna's daughter Giustiniana in 1745, and proves furthermore that Fillippo Gazzini was not Greek at all, and had left his Ionian island for the first time some years after his daughter Anna's birth, which had occurred in 1713. Mr. Wynne (Lady Mary spells it 'Wynn') was reputed to have at least £2,000 a year, and this income was lavishly expended on the purchase of Anna's charms. Nor did the English sovereigns fail in their effect, for on January 26, 1737, Giustiniana, daughter of Richard Wynne and Anna Gazzini, was baptized in the Church of San Marmola. Three years after this birth Richard married his mistress, whom Baron Ernouf, in his Notice sur la vie et les écrits de Justine Wynne, describes as a catholique enragée'. They were wedded on September 26, 1740. She bore him three more daughters: Mary Elizabeth in 1741, Tereza Susanna in 1742, and Anna Amelia who was born in 1748 and died in 1750; also two sons, Richard in 1744, and William in 1745. In 1741 Maria, Anna's sister, no doubt spurred thereto by her sister's wealthy conquest, married Giovanni Giacomo Vanest. She was still alive in 1785, being nine years younger than Anna.

Brunelli gives a charming picture of the young Wynnes and of their parents; of the gouty father who, as his son was later to recount, was for the latter part of his life completely crippled; of the reformed light o' love, strict and sententious as ladies with a past are apt to be; of the lovely Giustiniana, with her sensual nature and her precocious intellect (she devoured Santi's History of the Council of Trent at the age of 13 with enormous avidity and disastrous results) and her passion for La Fontaine; and of the small, black-eyed brothers and sisters. Richard Wynne died in April 1751 'in the City of Venice in Italy'. His memorial tablet at Essendon states that he was buried, with his father and brother, 'in the vault-feet west of this tablet', but Brunelli insists he died a Catholic and was interred in Italy. As his widow had no difficulty in obtaining his inheritance for her children, it is unlikely he turned Papist, for the Penal Laws, however leniently administered, were still in force, but it is still more unlikely that his body was conveyed across Europe. For it was not until some months after his death that his wife set off with all five children and trekked to England, in order to claim their inheritance. Lady Mary Wortley Montagu states that 'Mrs. Wynne felt it necessary to prove the marriage' before the girls could get £1,500 or the boys the estates and the rest of the invested £40,000 to which they had succeeded. The Earl of Holderness, in 1761 Secretary of State under Lord Bute, had been left the children's guardian, and he, on their arrival in England, showed them every possible kindness and secured for them the carrying out of the will, but he insisted the boys must join the Anglican Faith, to which Mrs. Wynne very reluctantly consented. After the latter, as Lady Mary writes, 'had stayed there [in England] one year, being tired of the place where she knew nobody, nor one word of the language, she returned hither [to Venice]'. It was on their return journey from London that Giustiniana, aged 15, first met Giacomo Casanova, at the house of Mocenigo, the Venetian Ambassador in Paris. She afterwards, as Brunelli shows, became the 'Mlle X.C.V.' of his Memoirs.

Once back in Venice, the Wynnes took up their residence in the Santo Apponal quarter, where they took a house 'next to the Palazzo Tiepolo, at the Tragetta de la Madonetta'. Brunelli describes how, whilst they were here, William Smith, the English consul, became an admirer of Giustiniana's, whilst the English Resident, Sir John Murray, fell for the mature charms of Mrs. Wynne and obliged his wife to receive her and 'the three graces' (her daughters). Smith was a friend of Horace Walpole's, and the widower of Mrs. Tofts, a celebrated opera singer upon whom Pope once wrote an epigram. He was a connoisseur, though Walpole unkindly said of him 'he has a fine library of which he knows nothing at all but the title pages', and Miss Berry relates how he 'engaged Canalletti for a number of years to paint exclusively for him at a fixed price and sold his pictures at an advanced price to English travellers'. It was he who introduced Canalletti to England and to George II, to whom, shortly before his death in 1760, he sold his furniture for a large sum of money. Murray, who was later English Minister in Constantinople, and who died in Venice in 1798, is described by Lady Mary as 'a scandalous fellow, despised by this government for his smuggling, which was his original profession'.

Giustiniana would have nothing to do with the aged Smith, but fell madly in love with Andrea Memmo, a young Patrician, whose mistress she became after both her mother and his had refused to consent to their marriage. Mrs. Wynne became suspicious of her daughter's 'affaire' and on October 1, 1758, carried off all her children to England, thinking they would be safer and more manageable under their guardian's eye. They stopped en route in Paris, and Lady Mary writes to Lady Bute, 'the fine ladies of whom I have spoken to you are, so I am told, in Paris, and perhaps they will have their reasons for stopping there'.

She spoke with more truth than even she perhaps knew. At first Paris was one long enjoyment for Giustiniana, who was beset with admirers; Prince Dolgorouki, Prince Demetrius Galitzine, the old 'fermier général' La Pouplinière, Tomasso Farsetti, and, for the second time, Casanova, who became, so Brunelli says, 'a sort of confidant to the whole of the Wynne family', even young Richard, now rising 15, having 'recourse to him for a loan to enable him to escape the effects of an amorous misadventure'. (Casanova says, 'le jeune homme était constitué pour les excès honteux; car des l'âge de 14 ans il était d'un libertinage effrêné'.) After a while, when Giustiniana found herself with child by Memmo, and was in despair, she too had recourse to the gallant adventurer. He first produced his famous drug 'Aroph', but this, as indeed was only to be expected, had absolutely no effect, and he then hid her in a friendly convent until her son was born, and disposed of, in May 1759. But although the true reason for her disappearance had only been guessed at, the Wynnes had during their stay occasioned so much scandal, so many lawsuits, and such ribald laughter, that on Giustiniana's return to the bosom of her family, the Duc de Choiseul requested them to leave Paris, which they did with alacrity and without demur.

In London Lord Holderness received them with customary kindness, and, having sent Richard and William off to Cambridge, he provided Mrs. Wynne and her daughters with a house, and promised that when Lady Holderness returned to town she should present them all at Court. But Mrs. Wynne made herself very tiresome to her children's guardian, and was continually squabbling with him, both about religion and other matters, and Giustiniana became a great deal too intimate with Lord Thomas Robinson (afterwards 2nd Lord Grantham, 1738–86), so at last Lord Holderness abandoned his guardianship, and in 1760 all the Wynnes went back to Padua.

In 1761 Giustiniana married Count Fillippo Orsini von Rosenberg,

Austrian Ambassador to the Venetian Republic. Rosenberg was an old man—older even than William Smith—for he was 70. He claimed to be descended from the Orsini* and was a familiar figure at the Austrian court His nephew, Prince von Rosenberg, was the great friend of Joseph II the most famous upholder of Casti against Mozart and d'Aponte. Filippo von Rosenberg had served as Imperial Ambassador at Petrograd, and came to Venice in July 1754. He met Giustiniana probably through Memmo, who, though he was now married to Elizabeth Piovane, and already a very prominent figure in Venetian public life and politics, yet saw his former mistress occasionally, and did his best to help her in such ways as he could. Rosenberg and Giustiniana were married swiftly. and with some secrecy, but in spite of all precautions the news leaked out and soon came to the ears of von Kaunitz+ himself, who at once asked for an explanation. Poor von Rosenberg spent the few remaining years of his life (he died in 1765) gallantly struggling to placate his famous chief and obtain his wife's recognition at the Viennese court. But no one could be admitted to the presence of the Holy Roman Emperor (or Empress, as was now the case) unless they had their full thirty-two quarterings. and poor Giustiniana sent in vain to Lords Sandwich and Stormont, and to the King of England himself, for proofs of the Wynnes' nobility. The family's antiquity and gentility they admitted willingly enough (Brunelli quotes their letters), but further than that they would not go, and Giustiniana's advent ended her husband's career, for Kaunitz's suspicions of her position accelerated von Rosenberg's recall in 1764. He and his wife retired to Klagenfurt, where his numerous relatives treated her badly, although 'the charms of her conversation procured her a number of agreeable acquaintances', and she remained in the little town for five years after his death, 'postponing her departure from day to day'. Only at the beginning of 1770 did she finally leave Klagenfurt for Venice.

Meanwhile Richard and William had gone back to Cambridge in 1761, and in 1765 Richard came of age and succeeded to his father's estates. He at once, for reasons that are not given, but were presumably financial—he must have owed Lord Holderness a considerable amount—sold Bedwell to Samuel Whitbread the brewer, and the 'consideration for the lease' is given as £8,000. In 1807 Samuel Whitbread's son sold it to Sir Culling Smith, and within the last thirty years it has passed back into the hands of one of Betsey's direct descendants: Sir Francis Fremantle.

William Wynne seems to have gone to the Continent as soon as he came of age, and to have reached Venice shortly after. In 1770

* Baron Ernouf states, 'Justine était par sa mère attachée à l'illustre maison des Orsini', which is of course entirely erroneous.

† Anthon Wencelaus von Kaunitz Rietberg was Maria Theresa's Principal Minister of State,

Richard married Agathe Camille de Royé, or Royer; but about this marriage nothing further can be ascertained, except a strange remark of Eugenia's, about her sister Mary, 'I have often noticed that such persons as she is, generally expiate by their misfortunes their parent's guilt', which sounds mysteriously as though Richard had married his Agathe Camille not a minute too soon.*

Richard Wynne kept in touch with his sisters, and especially with Giustiniana, who was both very fond and very proud of him. Her first literary effort was written for him and entitled, Concerning the sojourn of the Count and Countess du Nord, in Venice, in January MDCCLXXXII being a letter from Madame la Comtesse des Ursins et de Rosenberg, to Mr. Richard Wynne ber brother, in London 1782. This was published in Venice, and the 'Count and Countess du Nord' were the Grand Duke Paul (afterwards the mad Emperor Paul I) and his wife, who were travelling about Europe. (In Paris they had met the de Bombelles, afterwards so closely connected with the Wynnes.) This most successful pamphlet was first published in French, and ran within the year into three editions in Italian, the first being limited and not for sale. In the following year, 1783, the Comtesse de Rosenberg paid a long visit to her brother. She was joined in England by her last and most faithful lover (Count) Benincasa, whose career, even for the eighteenth century, is strange and varied.

Brunelli insists that 'Giuglielmo Wynne', Richard's brother William, 'had died in 1769, when still resident in the parish of San Marmola'. But this is far from the truth. William Wynne was still alive and capable of playing the wicked uncle in 1799. His daughter Augusta (whom Brunelli constantly confounds with Richard's eldest girl, Mary) was, as Ziguri, quoted by Brunelli, justly remarked, 'full of intelligence, but very wild'. She married Vittorio Correr in 1783. They had one son, Giacomo, who married Maria Baldassare and had two daughters, both of whom died without issue. Augusta became an opera singer of no mean talent—Betsey heard her in London soon after her arrival in England—but Correr's position cannot, as Brunelli puts it, 'have been of the most enviable'. He adds that she acquired a certain reputation as a blue stocking and 'became a member of the Academy of the "Uniti" in 1790, when she took the place of Teresa Venier'.

* I like to think Richard Wynne's wife was a daughter of Joseph Nicholas Pancrace de Royer, who was born in Burgundy about 1700, and died in Paris on January 11, 1755, and was of noble birth. In 1725 he settled in Paris as a teacher of the harpsichord. In 1753 he became musician in ordinary to the King, buying the place of Maître de Musique de la chambre du roi from the Baron de Bury. In 1741 he was conductor at the opera; in 1743 inspector, and in 1748 director and lessee of the concerts spirituels. He composed several operas and ballets, one book of sonatas (1740), and one book of Pièces de Clavecin, 1741.

THE WYNNE DIARIES

Richard's two sisters Mary Elizabeth (Bettina) and Tereza (Tonnina) both married, the first one Nicholeto, the other 'the ugly Catterini', and by the time the Richard Wynnes came to Venice in 1790, there were quantities of Italian cousins to whom Betsey is constantly referring. Old Mrs. Wynne (Anna Gazzini) was still alive in 1770, and the 'old uncle' lived on into the nineteenth century.

Soon after Justina's birth in 1786 Richard Wynne sold Falkingham to Sir John Guilbert—Eugenia records meeting in 1803 'Sir John Guilbert's tutor, he who was concerned in making so good a bargain for him when he bought my father's estate for £90,000'. The Wynnes seem to have left no traces at Falkingham; not so much as a memorial tablet there concerns them, nor are there any entries in the parish register. The reason for selling it seems to have been Mrs. Wynne's health. She was always delicate, and after Justina's birth seems to have become more or less a permanent invalid. They travelled about England first, trying to find a place which would suit her, before essaying the Continent. Betsey writes of 'Watcomb' in England, which she remembered, and Eugenia of meeting, after her marriage, an old woman who had known her at Weymouth as quite a tiny child. The Countess of Rosenberg had left them before the sale of Falkingham, and an enchanting picture of Richard Wynne in sporting dress with horses and dogs, now in the possession of the Honourable Mrs. A. Campbell, was painted before they left their home in Lincolnshire.

Sometime in 1788 the Wynnes, having disposed of all their English properties, left England permanently, and came first to Venice, to stay either with or near Giustiniana. Evidently Richard had very little hope of his wife's recovery, and Dr. Bognolo, or Boniolo, who attended her, 'is alarmed at her state and knows not what to think of it', as Giustiniana wrote. They did not stay long in Venice, but went to Abano to take the waters there. Richard Wynne was suffering severely himself from the gout, and about this time made his will, which was to prove such an unfortunate one, so far as his family were concerned. For, as Eugenia wrote at the time of his death, 'the great misfortune is that my poor Father's will was made in the year '88, at which time he thought of living and dying abroad. He has left Mama only £500 and £150 for each of us per annum'. Mrs. Wynne, 'if they were to follow the will exactly would not be entitled to keep anything of the furniture or plate, in short, no trifling thing whatsoever, which would be a very hard thing upon her and us all'.

It was during this first visit of the Wynne daughters to Padua that Mary met Francesco Montalbano, whom she married very early in 1789. Their only son, Pietro, was born in the last month of 1789, and in 1818 married Maria Romieri, and died childless. Mary's sad story is glimpsed in this volume, and there is news of her in her brother-in-law Thomas Fremantle's letters to his wife. In 1814, when his ship was off Trieste, he went up to Conegliano and visited her. She was then living with her son and writing 'very sensibly', but her family had suffered much from the French. Fremantle gave her 'in all about £50', but she 'worried him for £500' which he refused, adding to his wife, 'I am sure I have done honestly and even generously by her, and after all there is no end of such affairs in this country of Italy'. She inspired Peter von Winter's opera Maria von Montalban, written in 1798.

Mrs. Richard Wynne did not, as will be seen in the second volume of Elizabeth's diary, die in 1790 (as Brunelli suggests). On the contrary, the grateful Richard 'dedicated an inscription to Dr. Bonioli to express his gratitude for his wife's recovery', and she actually survived him a few months. He died at Bath on October 31, 1799, and is buried in the Abbey, where his memorial tablet may be seen, and she in London on November 12 of the same year. After his death 'a wretch that I fain would not acknowledge for my uncle', as Eugenia sternly says, 'wrote to Bankes The Wynne girls' guardian, and a 'very old friend' of the younger Pitt, whom Eugenia was to meet in his house, Kingston Hall, Dorset] to send him money to defray expenses, as he was coming to England to enter into possession of his brother's (poor Papa's) fortune that belongs all to him'. But he seems to have done nothing further until after Mrs. Wynne's death. In her résumé of the events between the autumn of 1799 and the summer of 1800, Eugenia writes: 'Soon after my poor mother's death, Mr. William Wynne's threat was put into execution. He arrived in England with his adviser and assistant, a disgrace to the cloth he wears, the greatest villain on earth, Monseigneur Banola, Bishop of Famagusta. I was then at Kingston Hall. The Bishop wrote to me assuring me my uncle's claim was well founded, but wishing to come to a compromise. I declined all interference. Then I received many threatening and insolent letters and left them unanswered. I could not, however, help feeling uneasy at times lest there should really be some foundation in his pretences, but he soon found the nullity of them, and was involved in great distress through the arrangements of the bishop, who made him sell his annuity for six years and thus repaid himself the money he had advanced for this expedition. The end of the business was a begging letter from my uncle to whom I sent money before he left Yarmouth. I have since received many more. The Bishop remained longer in England, and wrote to propose me a match with a Venetian nobleman.' Needless to say, Eugenia would have nothing to do with such a proposal.

Her numerous love affairs are described in the second volume of these Diaries, and in the third will be related her meeting, at the age of 26, with Robert Campbell of Skipness, who 'draws well, writes bouts rimés, in short has a thousand ways of making his company desirable, but I wish that he did not take so much snuff". He had other and more serious faults, and his behaviour cannot have been all a girl, however broadminded, could wish, but marry him she would and did, in spite of all opposition, in 1806. They had numerous children, and lived in the remoter parts of Scotland until Campbell's death.

Harriet, whose son James Hamilton so carefully preserved her diary, was survived both by him and by a daughter, Emma, who died unmarried. Richard, her third child, was drowned young in the Bay of Biscay. Justina married James Finlay, a Writer to the Signet, and died after a long illness in 1814. Her portrait hangs beside that of Harriet, both 'by Mr. Rayburn', as Elizabeth called him, in the National Gallery of Scotland.

The family trees given here are Wynne, Correr, and Montalbano. Those of Elizabeth's husband's family (Fremantle) and of Robert Campbell's descendants will be provided in subsequent volumes.

SIR JOHN WYNN OF GWYDIR

EMYR GWYNNE IONES

THE announcement early this year of the sale and proposed restoration of Gwydir Castle* near Llanrwst aroused a good deal of interest at the time both in the future status and past history of one of the most famous of the historic houses of Wales. In its heyday, during the sixteenth and the greater part of the seventeenth century, Gwydir played a dominant role in the social history of North Wales, when it was the home of the powerful Wynn family.

Sprung, so they claimed, from the royal stock of Owain Gwynedd, the Wynns had their roots in Eifionydd, the region above Criccieth, and their association with the Llanrwst district and the Conway valley dated from the early years of the sixteenth century, when young Meredydd ap Ifan ap Robert, weary it is said of the bitter internecine strife which ravaged Eifionydd in the unsettled days after the Wars of the Roses, migrated to the eastern limits of Caernarvonshire, where, amongst the bondmen of Dolwyddelan, he hoped to find peace and security.

The subsequent purchase of Gwydir in the upper valley of the Conway gave Meredydd the desired nucleus of a landed estate, and here, on the Caernarvonshire bank of the river at the foot of the wooded Carreg y Gwalch, his son, John Wynn ap Meredydd, built in 1555 the forerunner of the present house—solid, spacious, and comfortable, as befitted a man who was fast rising to prominence in the social and administrative circles of the county. Here, too, was born two years earlier the latter's grandson and namesake, John Wynn, the principal architect of Gwydir's greatness and the subject of the present notice.

His father Maurice, who was the first of the family to adopt the surname Wynn, gave John an education that fully equipped him for social leadership, sending him first to Oxford where in 1570 we hear of him as a student of All Souls, and thence to the Inner Temple to acquire a smattering of law. It was Maurice, too, who arranged in 1576 that highly advantageous match between him and Sydney, the daughter of Sir William Gerard, Chancellor of Ireland. There seemed indeed little more that a young "gentleman from Wales" could have wished for.

When in 1580 his father's death recalled him from London to take charge of the estate, John Wynn was just 26—"a tall black man, well set and broad in the shoulders." For the next half century he practically dominated North Wales, grasping at every office which might help to swell his own importance or benefit his family. He represented his county in the Parliament of 1586, was a member of the Council of the Marches of Wales, and held the post of sheriff a number of times both in Caers vonshire and Denbigh, while in the Commission of the Peace his vowas always prominent above those of the rest of his colleagues.

Much of his success was doubtless due to the efficiency with which conducted his affairs; and nowhere is this more amply manifested the in the numerous memoranda included amongst his personal papers. List indeed escapes his attention: observations on points of husbandry, not for the guidance of his legal agents, and sometimes a piquant little desuch as a list of purchases to be made in London—a pair of fine ruboots, a pound of tobacco, gloves for a friend.

No less striking is his versatility and resourcefulness: preoccupied he was with county business and with the cares of a growing est Sir John could still find time to devote to ambitious schemes for develop his country's resources. At one period we find him keenly interested project to manufacture Welsh friezes in the vale of Conway, suggest the importation of Irishmen for the purpose; at another it is the Angle copper mines that occupy his attention; and if only he had had his with Sir Hugh Myddleton of New River fame, the reclamation of Tramawar separating Caernaryonshire from Merioneth might well hanticipated the efforts of Alexander Maddocks by a couple of centur

Welsh literature again found in Sir John a liberal and enlighte patron, and it is evident from his correspondence that he was well ver in and a discriminating judge of the works of the bards. In 1621 instance he sends a fellow squire a "cywydd" of Howel Coetmor's, comending it to him as a worthy example of the work of that "notable barwho, he adds rather significantly, was unfortunately "metamorpholinto an Englishman denying his own country." Edward Kyffin's trantion of the Psalms evoked his lasting admiration, while to his encourament was due much of the literary work of his kinsman, Thomas Wiliof Trefriw, whose Latin-Welsh dictionary he sought to get publis during the author's lifetime.

Of course, the social advancement of Gwydir always came first, an was to that end that he sought for his sons English brides coming framilies of rank and influence. Drawing, no doubt, on the valu contacts he had formed during his parliamentary days, he succeeded the exercise of considerable patience and diplomacy in matching his eldest sons John and Richard, the former to the daughter of a prosper Northamptonshire knight related to a Lord Chancellor of Ireland, the latter to the daughter of Sir Thomas Darcy of Isleworth in Middle One fastidious gentleman with whom Sir John had dealings hedge the idea of dispatching his child to a place so remote and inaccessib Gwydir, evidently regarding Wales as Ultima Thule. But Sir John n have hastened to assure him that his house, despite its situation, s creditable standard of taste and progress in that country.

SIR JOHN WYNN OF GWYDIR

In education for instance: ignoring the Welsh foundations at Hawarden, Ruthin, and St. Asaph, Sir John sent his eldest son John to Bedford Grammar School to learn "the precepts of religion, Latin, grammar, Greek and Hebrew, instrumental and vocal music, French and Italian." Owen and Robert went to Westminster School but were removed to Eton when the plague broke out in London; while for the youngest sons the training provided at the Free School at St. Albans was so "profitable" that Sir John could assuredly "think his money well spent."

The expense involved must have enforced a severe strain on Wynn's resources, especially in lean years when stock prices fell and the rents failed to come in as usual. Moreover Robert and Henry were continually writing home for something or other—rugs to cover their beds or new winter suits. And how often did they complain of the meagre allowances which their father sent them—at most times barely sufficient to procure necessities, and rarely indeed leaving them with a surplus to "bangell away."

A niggard in some respects Sir John may well have been, but when the prestige of Gwydir dictated he could afford to be lavish. Fifteen-ninety-seven finds him devoted to plans for extending his town house at Caernarvon, making "a square stair to go up to it" in the latest style; that same year he was completing the outbuildings at Gwydir, and in 1604 erecting a new summer residence on the heights above Llanrwst for which he ordered the finest glass then procurable.

The entertainment of discerning guests demanded this display of architectural taste; moreover the often unheralded visits of important government officials on their way to or from Ireland rendered Sir John constantly apprehensive of his personal appearance and of the quality of his board. Choice of apparel had to be meticulous with every deference shown to London fashion; for a man who valued his reputation would have none of your Caernarvon or Conway tailors. And so orders would be sent to London for a new gown for Mistress Wynn, taffeta for daughter Bess, and for the master himself a "blacke sateen doublett with a wroughte velvett breeches," a riding coat lined with silk, a pair of Spanish leather boots. Even in the choice of a "green glass" for his sight there had to be a painstaking inquiry as to "sundry fashions of them."

No less important were the larder and the wine cellar. As winter descended upon the countryside bringing to the table once more the inevitable salt meat, the arrival of the carrier from Chester with a boxful of oranges, sweetmeats, and some pickled quinces was a much applauded event. Occasionally, too, the consignment would include some novel surprises—a recipe for making French bread—"savourie and light of dyeting" which son Owen had found so sustaining on his many sea voyages. As for wine, there was no need to go further afield than Conwor Beaumaris for choice Claret or Rochelle.

Then to while away the long winter evenings there would be a ga or two of backgammon, or Mistress Wynn perhaps would oblige with tune on the virginals or the bass viol, while Sir John might have fou diversion in his library perusing the latest edition of Camden's Britta or Raleigh's Chronicles newly ordered from London. We might evhave found him indulging in tobacco then coming into vogue in the socircles of North Wales. In 1604 he is instructing his London agent be sure to purchase a few ounces notwithstanding its prohibitive profithe best was 10s. an ounce), and for the remainder of his life the carrifrom Chester or London seldom failed to bring him a supply of this no product from the colonies.

Polished, urbane, and with more of the courtier about him than t Welsh country squire, Sir John had indeed little cause to worry about impression he made on his distinguished English visitors. His neighbo and fellow-countrymen, on the other hand, knew only too well that und neath the substantial veneer of English culture there smouldered contin ally that same tempestuousness as had plagued his ancestors in Eifion -that self-confessed "choler where unto I was much subject." Tyrann and overbearing in his behaviour towards his weaker brethren, he re roughshod over everything and everyone who prevented him from sa fying his lust for land and power. Success appears to have turned head and in 1615 he was sharply censured and heavily fined by the Cour of the Marches for oppressing the tenants of the Crown lands in Llysfa And well might the inhabitants of Nant Conwy have dreaded th recurring bouts of "choler." To rich widows and promising you heiresses the tranquillity of the valley offered little hope of security as le as the Gwydir retinue included so many idlers in search of a comforta livelihood. And Wynn himself was on one occasion arraigned bef the Court of Star Chamber on the charge of (amongst other alleged en mities) kidnapping a wealthy widow whom he forced to marry his youn brother Richard. Whether this charge was substantiated we can with certainty say; but the fact remains that long after his death th persisted a tradition in the Llanrwst neighbourhood that for his oppr sions Sir John's spirit was condemned to lie under the waterfall of Rhair y Wennol-"there to be punished, purged, spouted upon and purific for the questionable deeds done in his lifetime.

But it was proper pride in his achievements rather than any concern his soul that the old knight must have felt at the close of his long care. Before he died in March, 1627, he had enjoyed the profound satisfactic of seeing Gwydir reach the peak of its prosperity and influence ar establish itself as a veritable clearing-house and 'change in North Wales-receiving the latest intelligences from the metropolis, Parliamentary reports, notices of Court activities and of the fluctuations of the land market—in fact all news calculated to have any bearing on the fortunes of the Wynns and their kinsmen. He had moreover assured for his line a secure niche in the annals of his country; and it was with an eye calmly fixed on posterity that he set out in his celebrated History of the Gwydir Family to extol the virtues of his ancestors and in particular to uphold the excellence of his stock, for in his philosophy "a great temporall blessinge yt is and a great harts ease to a man to finde that he is well dissended and a greate greef it is for upstarts and gent of the first head to looke into their dissents."

W. H. DAVIES AND HIS FAMILY

LAWRENCE W. HOCKEY

DURING the eighteen-sixties, young Francis Davies and Mary Ann Evans, of Pillgwenlly, Newport, Mon., fell in love and married. Mary Ann was three years older than Francis, and was the daughter of Ann and Gomer Evans, who were Welsh. Francis was the son of Francis Boase Davies, master mariner, and Lydia Adams Davies. Captain Davies was a native of Cornwall, and his wife came from Somerset; but they had settled in Newport and kept the Church House, a small public-house in Portland Street, situated near Holy Trinity Church, whence its name.

Young Francis Davies was a moulder by trade, an occupation requiring great skill and considerable judgment in its practice; so that he may be regarded as a man of sound intelligence and good practical ability. In physique, he was slight, "his body small"; and he was of a quiet and retiring disposition—"his voice was low and seldom heard."

Mary Ann Davies was a woman of great charm and liveliness. In stature, she was short, neat, upright, compact, well built and well proportioned. In facial appearance she resembled an Indian squaw, with black, rather coarse straight hair, broad forehead, high cheekbones, fine dark eyes, strong chin and jaws, and fresh complexion. Her face gave the impression that she could be very pleasant and gracious if she wished, or very determined and obstinate when necessary. She was a woman of character, with a will and a mind of her own. Though she could not

Their fame rests on no outstanding achievement. It is standing achievement. It is mainly attributable to the personality of Sir John Wynn. created baronet in 1611.

He wrote the History of the He wrote the History of the Gwydir Family, assessing his family's worth, and this was complemented by the fortuitous discovery in 1789 of a mass of documents in a "paper room" which stood over the main gateway at Gwydir. The period

Despite indications of parsi mony there are signs that Sir John could also be generous. The future Archbishop of York, John Williams of Conway, found in Sir John a godfather who encouraged him in his early career—a kindness the early career—a kindness the prelate never forgot and he took a keen interest in the careers of his patron's sons. Archbishop Williams at the time of his persecution found a home at Gwydir, a place which always stood high in his affections.

FAMOUS FEUD.

Sir John married Sydney, daughter of Sir William Ger-rard, Lord Chancellor of Ire-land, who bore him eleven sons and two daughters. Though his sons when in London found occasion to complain

Though his sons when in London found occasion to complain that their allowances from home were inadequate, Sir John proved a devoted parent.

A strong strain of family invalidy is noticeable among the Wynns. Much of Sir John's time and energy was expended in establishing the Wynns of Gwydir as the paramount house of this part of North Wales. Not a few feuds resulted. Two of his disputes which attracted attention were those with the Bishop of St Asaph. Dr. William Morgan and the Bishop of Bangor, Dr Lewys Bayly, at one time a close friend

The founder of Gwydir was John Wynn ap Meredith who was Henry VIII's steward of the Abbey of Aberconwy at the time of the dissolution, which doubtless accounts for the mullions and other fragments of monastic masonry featuring in portions of the house. It is, however, his grandson, Sir John (1553-1627) who remains the conspicuous character. Many will be familiar with the portrait de-picting him with white beard and ruff, like Santa Claus in fancy dress. Despite the bene-volent impression the eyes are shrewd.

DOMINEERING

People were led to believe that he oppressed them (writes Philip Yorke in his Royal Tribes of Wales) and bequeathed to posterity the legend that Sir John's spirit was imprison-ed under Swallow Falls where ed under Swallow Falls where it is being purged of its misdeeds. This does Sir John less than justice. A fairer estimate is that of Sir John Ballinger. Who describes him as "aggressive, proud, domineering, more dreaded than beloved, yet a great personage." He could not have been devoid of worthiness for in real life he served as a Justice of the Peace. Deputy "I will find them nouseing upon my lands about Llanrwst and Trevriw," he wrote.

Early education at the Temple Early education at the Temple gave him a knowledge of law which he found helpful in disputes with neighbouring squires, for he had a litigious disposition. That he did not hesitate to be unscrupulous when occasion required is proved by a receipt for $230 with when occasion required is proved by a receipt for £350 with which he bribed a Groom of the Bedchamber to obtain for him a "pardon" when he incurred the displeasure of the Council of the Marches in 1615

DEVOUT SIDE

He seems to have had nis devout side for he kept a chap-lain at Gwydir and drew up a lain at Gwydir and drew up a list of rules governing his behaviour. "My penny rent this year cometh. I thank God, to £1,437." he noted in 1607 "God grant me grace to use God's gifts well"

Richard's youth is not recorded, and I have not yet found the date of his birth (about 1626), but he was old enough to have a captain's commission in the royal army when he assisted his kinsman. young Col. Roger Mostyn, to defend Flint Castle in 1646. This seems evident from a letter which Major David Pennant wrote the following March to Richard's father with regard to "certain bonds or warrants of contributions due to Captain Wynn when he served in Flint Castle."

Though Richard was Sir Owen's only son, he was not

Richard had already served as a Member of Parliament for Caernaryonshire from 1647 to 1653, and was again elected to the Cavaller Parliament in which he served from 1661 to his death. His name appears in the municipal records of Denbigh.

Many of his letters to his wife, mother and friends are in the National Library of Wales and throw quaint sidelights on the period. After riding to his wife's home at Chirk he tells his mother (Lady Grace) that he had "only three falls" and brags that his man had experienced "five or six—testimony to the state of the highway in 1655! Two years later he wrote his mother sending her "some hare's wool to make a morning petticoat and a waistcoat." When in London Richard seems to have

The young Cavalier MP was living beyond his means, to judge from correspondence between two of his uncles, Henry and Maurice Wynn. The birth of a son and heir gladdened Sir Richard- and his wife. Llanrwst register records the baptism of John on October 22, 1667, but the child was buried on the January 28, following. # LOVE MATCH

Richard fell in love with Sarah, a daughter of Sir Thomas Myddelton of Chirk Castle, an appealing little lady whose face looks ingenuously from the most artistic of the brasses in the Gwydir Chapel of Llanrwst Church. Despite the amount of the dowry, it seems to have been a love match and Richard, after waiting a year, informed his mother that if nothing came of it he was resolved to "tie himself to a single life." They were married June 13, 1654, and soon after this Richard began to take his place in county affairs, the more so. possibly because Sir Owen's health was failing. In 1658 Richard was high sheriff of Caernarvonshire — the year Cromwell died.

Though two doctors diagnosed Sir Owen to be suffering from "scurvy mingled with dropsy." Richard found time to get involved in the Booth Rebellion which broke out on August 1, 1659. Sir Thomas Myddelton raised a force for the exiled king and had drawn his sword in Wrexham market place and proclaimed Charles II king. It was premature. and after General Lambert's Roundhead's had scattered Sir George Booth's royalists, Sir Thomas fled (overseas. it is thought) and Richard, who had evidently been at his father-in-law's side at Winnington Bridge, escaped home, when he was followed by Parliamentary horsemen.

SAD END TO YOUNG SIR JOHN'S GRAND TOUR OF CONTINENT

SIR JOHN WYNN, junior, was such an insipid reproduction of his aggressive parent that it is ironical that he bears his name. John was the eldest son (but not the eldest child) of Sir John Wynn, first baronet, and Sydney, his wife, daughter of Sir William Gerrard, John junior was born about 1584; his sister Mary, who married Sir Roger Mostyn was two years older.

Young John was sent to Bedford School in 1597. Here he was taught "the precepts of religion," Latin grammar, Greek, Hebrew, French and Italian, with music as (one suspects) a pleasing deviation.

Board and lodging for the year cost £13 23 3d., and the boy had "his own bedding and his own silver spoon." He was a student in Lincoln's Inn in 1601, warned by his father that ne "would not have nim home until he was called to the Bar." Two years later his studies were interrupted by a five weeks fever which cost £20 in doctors' fees.

The marriage was not a success. The reason is not obvious. Sir John senior, a man not easy to satisfy, thought well of his son's bride, describing her as "a good, gentle soul" and "sensible and willing to please," adding that she would "soon acquire the Welsh brogue." He could not understand what defect his son found in her.

John junior evidently practised as a barrister for there are references to his attending to legal matters When not in London he dwelt at Llanfrothen. A letter addressed to him there in April 1612 arrived from his father, who was lodging at the White Hart in London whither he had gone in connection with his baronetcy. Its chief interest lies in Sir John's comment that he had reached London "after eleven days travel."

REPROACHES

The estrangement between John and his wife's family is reflected in an undated letter from Lady Cave who wrote to John not merely reproaching him for "speaking against her" but also reproving him for "riding by the house when she and

STRICKEN WITH FEVER

His passage by sea held unusual interest for the young Welshman. The Genoese coast, he thought, "resembles that bit of Ardudwy which looks towards the sea, but is ruder and higher than the Welsh coast and lacking in pasture and corn." After seeing Rome and Pisa he resolved to visit Lucca, "a little republic in Tuscany." He was stricken with fever and in 11 days was dead. His companions were several English merchants and the loyal Williams.

On his deathbed young Sir John begged his father's forgiveness for crossing to Italy against his commands. Also (with typical Wynn appreciation of family merit) he left instructions for an elaborate tomb with Latin epitapn to be erected in the Church of St. John, where he was buried.

Before leaving home Sir John made a will (it is among the Wynn Papers at the National Library of Wales) but he also made another on his deathbed. As might be expected litigation between Sir John senior and Lady Cave resulted.

By NORMAN TUCKER

In 1604 he neared his coming of age, and both father and son indulged in the time-honoured Wynn practice of seeking a desirable bride with a desirable dowry. Had the astute Sir John detected a weakness in his offspring when he warned young John against "entering madvisedly into matrimony or suretyship?"

About this time John received a knighthood. Details are lacking and the news came to Gwydir in a letter in June 1813 from his brother, Richard who merely commented that after his father left London "My Lord got him (John) knighted." It was evidently a transaction in which finance rather than fame was the determining factor.

The new Sir John at this point resolved on a grand tour of the Continent as became a man of fashion. Having been seen off by brother Richard and a group of friends he crossed to Calais, where he was well entertained by the Governor-Richard, who imparted the information in a letter to Gwydir added that John had made the crossing without being sick.

This was to Sir Francis Aungier, Master of the Rolls in Ireland, thereby introducing a seemingly irrelevant "Lady Aungier" into the Wynn correspondence.

Young Sir John justified his travels by asserting that it was "for the good of his country"—though he does not explain how this could be. One of the merchants who befriended the dying man. Richard Alline, writing from Pisa to the bereaved father, stated that John died on August 25, 1614 "His death," writes Alline. In the latterpart of 1618 Sir John removed Henry to London to "gain his seniority" at the Temple.

Henry paid 3s. a week for his chamber but the start was not propitious. The room was "a long, dark, melancholy hole with one little window," he writes home, and "the very timber is decayed and the plastered roof hangs down as though hung about with painted cloth."

Sir John's next move was to arrange a suitable marriage. A Lord Keeper fell into disgrace which were assembled to participate in an expedition against Spain. The next letter is from Catord where Parliament was forced to assemble on account of the plague.

His next place of abode is at Farington and he informs his father that Turkish pirates had taken Lundy Island, and carried off men and women from the Isle of Wight The manner in which several of the Wynn brothers move from place to place indicates he severity of the epidemic.

Occasionally the letters contain touches of ingenuousness which indicate that the ambitious young M.P had not wholly outgrown his youth. In 1624 he writes home complainin, of the smallness of his allowance. Then he tells his father proudly that Sir Richard had taken him to the palace of Nonsuch when Lord Keeper williams was temporarily in residence. "My Lord Keeper asked my brother where I was and sent for me to his table, and made me honoured and drank to me, and asked me many things."

EVENTFUL TIMES

The times were eventful. In 1623 Prince Charles and Buckingham made their abortive visit to Spain (accompanied by Sir Richard Wynn) to try to arrange a marriage with the Spanish Infanta, and Henry from the Middle Temple sends home news of Richard's arrival in Madrid. In February 1624 King James opened his last Parliament Among the Members was Sir Richard Wynn who had as companion his 21 years old brother. Henry, now Member for the shire of Merioneth.

From this time Henry's letters home are full of interest. He seems to have been more mentally alert than his eldest brother, more observant, and kept his father well posted. He perpetuated the "bull" of Sir Peter Mutton's that he had "heard before he was born that stamps were used"—"at which," adds Henry, "the whole House laughed and hissed."

SIEGE OF PREDA

Following the death of King James the next year Henry informs Sir John "My Lord Keeper (John Williams of Conway) preached the King's funeral sermon." The Thirty Years Warwas naturally in all men's thoughts and Henry reports that "Breda still holds out"—the seige at which Sir Thomas Wynn of Melai was slain. By June he has to report that "a third of London is down with the plague" and a fast was to be proclaimed. He gives an account of the opening of Parliament.

He informs his father that "the Bill concerning Welsh cottons has been passed," and, writing from his brother Richard's home in Brentford where he had gone on account of the plague. he refers to the thips and retired to the Buckden palace of the Bisho; of Lincoln, Henry seems to have stayed for a time at Gwydir for he found it safe to return from home to the Temple by the following February.

KING'S COMMAND

Interest in Henry's letters home begins to wane when he finishes with politics and settles to his legal profession. He was still in a position to impart news of interest and in August he drew attention to the breach between King Charles, and the King of France. whose sister Charles had married. "The French priests, women and all, are discharged from the Queen's service by the King's command," but his Majesty had bestowed £11.000 in money on them and £8.000 in jewels. Henry also mentions that "The English and Dutch fleets under Admiral Lord Denbigh have taken Spanish goods to the value of £14.000."

During the Civil War Henry seems to have maintained touch with London as in 1644 a letter's addressed to him in the city as if he still had chambers in the Temple When Sir Richard died in 1649 Henry attended the funeral at Wimbledon. A note shows that in 1658 his chamber was at Fistree Court. Middle Temple

The following year he was at Watstay, possibly in connection with the marriage of his son, Sir John Wyun, to the heiress of that place Some of Henry's successes are outlined by Askew Roberts in his edition of the History of the Gwydir Pamily. He was judge of the Marshalses. Prothonotary of the Marshalses. Prothonotary of the Marshalses. Prothonotary of the Marshalses. Prothonotary of the Marches A monument was erected to him in the Temple Church He died in 1671 at the age of 68 and is buried in Ruabon Church.

Thomas Pennant refers to the great monument of Henry Wynn esq.,' but comments that "his attire is that of a fanatical preacher." It is paradoxical that despite his legal achievements Henry's appeal is found in his informal comments on great events — uivialities which find no place in orting which find no place in orting which histories.

A homely understudy of the elegant Sir Richard, Owen was perhaps the more genuine character supervised the Gwydir affairs with an efficiency which would have earned his father's approbation.

Much of his early life was spent in London. After attending Westminster School there was talk of his serving under a merchant of the Staple but nothing came of it. He acquired practical experience in legal and business affairs and attended to many of his father's Owen soon established himself as a man of consequence in North Wales, adeputy lieutenant for Caernarvonshire, and a commissioner to receive compositions for knighthood. He was no stay-athome. That year he was in Caernarvon in August, in Denbigh in September, and in London in November.

Following the fall of Chester in 1646 the Roundheads swept into North Wales, crossing the Conway by Llanrwst bridge. Their general Thomas Mytton. was evidently entertained by Owen as he issued him a warrant of protection "on pain of death." It is signed from the home of Owen's son Richard, Caemelwr. As Gwydir had been gillaged by royalists after their defeat at Denbigh Green in November, the family home may have been rendered untenable. Owen suffered a further blow when Sir John Owen vindictively sent troopers from Conway to drive off all the Gwydir cattle.

An unsolicited testimonial comes from Dr. John Williams, then in the dual role of Lord Keeper and Bishop of Lincoln Sir Richard told his father "My Lord Keeper is wonderfully desirous to make a fortune for brother Owen." The Bishop himself informed Sir John that Owen was "the sole object of his worldly cares." Williams confirmed this by endeavouring to arrange a match between his sister Elen and Owen. Some six years before a Dr. Bailie (it was alleged) had lent him £50. Dr. Bailie died and his widow, failing to get the £50 (a debt which Owen denied) intimated that Prince Rupert might have this sum for the King's cause if he could collect it. Owen received several peremptory demands to hand over the money to the imperious Prince's chaplain. Finally Rupert's secretary curtly intimated that Owen's refusal was interpreted to mean that he was "not well affected to the cause." and that if he still refused "all your friends must give you for a lost man in your fortune."

However, Rupert's march through Lancashire ended dis-astrously at Marston Moor after which defeat the Prince had weightier matters on his mind than extracting £50 from reluc-tant Owen Wynn

There is an interesting sequel. The next month Bodvel wrote that Sir Owen's "effigies" had been sent by carrier The "engravening" cost £5 and the brass £2 16s. This evidently refers to the brass portrait now in Gwydir Chapel which Pennant in c. 1770 found trampled underfoot 26-6-69

It was a time when religion in its most bellicose aspect was much in men's minds. Europe was rent asunder by the sanguinary strife between Protestant and Catholic known as the Thirty Years' War and England could not be indifferent for King James's daughter was the wife of the Protestant King of Bohemia and King Christian of Denmark was James's brotherin-law. "Bands of starving soldiers infect the country, ill-fed and ill-paid, whilst the Emperor's troops are in good order and condition The princes of this nether part often consult together but have done nothing of note. Indeed their first business is to get drunk."

Maurice. according to the Llanrwst register, was baptised on July 4, 1597. He died in 1.70. At the age of 18 he was bound apprentice for nine years, his master promising hat if he behaved himself "well and honestly," he should trade for himself during the last two years Maurice took full advantage of this to encourage commerce between North Wales and the Continent.

SALE OF LEAD

tage of this to encourage commerce between North Wales and the Continent.

SALE OF LEAD

Sir John had evidently developed the lead mines in the Conway Valley to a greater extent than is realised for Maurice's letters contain a number of allusions to the sale of his lead. "Melt all the ore into lead." he advised. "The 70 tons should make at least 20 tons of lead." Realizing the war-shortage. he begged his father to send him £200 and as much lead as would make the sum u, to £600. On another occasion he expressed thanks for the 24 tons of lead and 70 of lead ore. If Dutch vessels visited Beaumarish ercommended that his father should sell them lead and ore Maurice's vision was not restricted to the output of his father's lead mines which he urged his father not to stop working as the price had risen and. he could find a ready market. He advocated shipping Welsh cloth to Germany. Food was scarce and grain was needed, while any man who brought beef from Ireland would "make good store"

He requested Sir John to buy 10 barrels of butter at Chester fai: and to ship this to him. Butter was scarce in Lisbon and sold at 9d. a pound.

The fact that he was involved in a legal dispute with the Earl of Northumberland over land near Wrexham indicates that he was not easily overawed When his brother Sir Owen died, the widow, herself a capable business woman, was quick to appeal to Maurice for advice

NOT AFRAID

Sir John Wynn, one gathers, must have been a patriarch whose wish was not disputed. Maurice seems to have been the only son who had the temerity to speak his mind or to offer his irascible parent advice When in Hamburg he did not hesitate to tell Sir John that he did not give him money enough to trade as a merchant. Again he complained that he was "worse off than the poorest man's son" because his father "would not give him means suitable to a gentleman."

But he is most outspoken on religious matters. Sir John would have been complacently satisfied with himself after giving Llanrwst almshouses (named "Jesus Hospital") and a free school, but Maurice wrote exhorting is father to keep a preaching minister at home to preach the word of God every Sunday, adding that he believed it "to be of more service to God" to provide a preaching minister than to found ten hospitals."

Treasurer to the high and mightie Princess Henrietta Maria' 1966

All who have visited the parish church of Llanrwst must have had their attention attracted by the unusual appendage known as the Gwydir Chapel which has been added to the south side. It is self-explanatory. It would have been erected "To the Glory of God" as was customary; indubitably it was also to the glory of the Wynns of Gwydir. One almost hears a fanfare as one reads the mural memorial's grandioquent passages:

"The boast of heraldry, the pomp of power" was never more artistically displayed than in this building; it is hard to escape the conclusion that Sir Richard had a mausoleum in mind. Yet he is not interred here. At his own request he was buried in the 'Chapel of Wimbledon." During the sixteen intervening years the whole pattern of the country's life was changed by the Civil War. Sir Richard might have been planning a resting place for the future when the illustrious line of the Wynns would be continued indefinitely. No soothsayer predicted that within thirty years of his death the marriage of a nephew's daughter, would end the association of the Wynns with Gwydir.

MARRIAGE MARKET

Though Richard may not have acquired his father's sterne: traits he had inherited old Sir John's ambition. He was admitted to Lincoln's Inn in 1606 and two years later entered the service of the Lord Chamberlain. In 1614 he aspired, to be Caernarvon's knight of the shire though there is no official record of his becoming an M.P. on that occasion. Subsequently he served in several parliaments for various places, becoming M.P. for Liverpool in 1640, a post he retained until his death.

In 1615 Richard wrote his father saying that although he would not marry without Sir John's consent, he hoped that he might both please his parent "with regard to the portion," and himself with regard to the lady.

and himself with regard to the lady.

He had been sizing up possible brides Sir Edward Lewi's sister was not in the running because she was sickly and twenty-nine; Sir Thomas Myddleton's daughter was not eligible because her father was held "in slight esteem": as for Mistress Fiennes who would inherit £6.000 on her grandfather's death, he would not marry her if she had three times as much Knighted in 1616. Sir Richard was married two years later to Anne, eldest daughter of Sir Francis Darcy of "Brainford" as he called Brentford.

LOOKS AND CHARM

To judge from Jansen's portrait Richard's success at court must have depended largely on his good looks and charm. He wa. not built in heroic mould. Chosen to accompany Prince Charles and the Duke of Buckingham when they went incognito to Spain in 1623 (an experience which would have excited many a young courtier) he deemed it his "ill fortune" to be sent on this dangerous and expensive journey, but "as a subject and servant he must needs obey"

By the irony of fate the vessel in which he sailed was called the Adventure! He returned in safety, both he and his servant "lean as hotten herrings." and he vowed that Castile and Arragon were "not worth the worst county in Wales."

On the death of his father in 1627 Sir Richard succeeded to the baronetcy and two years later he was appointed Groom of the Bed Chamber, with "continual access to the King and Queen." This was followed by his appointment as treasurer of the Queen's household. Probably it was this new honour which turned Sir Richard's mind to the erection of his chapel at Llanrwst. It is said to have been designed by Inigo Jones, and, indeed this is not improbable.

Jones, and, indeed this is not improbable

Sir Richard's official position would bring him into contact with the great architect who designed the Banqueting Hall in Whithall from which King Charles stepped for his execution. The following year the bridge at Llanrwst was built. Despite these tangibl. re-minders of his presence. Sir Richard seems to have devoted remarkably little of his time to his family home. He was "spending half a year at court." he wrote about this period

NOT SPECTACULAR

It is a prosaic record of an eventful day in Richard's life. His term of service in the Long Parliament was not spectacular. He remained in charge of the Queen's affairs—doubtless it suited Parliament to have this arrangement. When Sir Richard died at the age of 61 in July 1645 his funeral at Wimbledon was attended by his brother, Maurice, who informed Sir Owen (now the baronet) that "most of all their countrymen were there and many Englishmen."

THE LAST OF THE WYNNS OF GWYDIR Mairice

THE last of the Wynns of Gwydir, Sir John Wynn, the dwydir, Sir John Wynn, the fifth baronet, was not literally "of Gwydir." He succeeded to the baronetcy in 1674 on the death of his cousin. Sir Richard the fourth baronet, but the Gwydir estate was inherited by Mary, Sir Richard's only daughter, and with her marriage to Lord Willoughby, later first Duke of Ancaster Gwydir ceased to be the home of the Wynns.

Sir John was born in 1628 and thus would have been old enough to have participated in the closing stages of the second Civil War. This supposition is strengthened by his association in 1654 with a group of exacquation of the second of the enough to have participated in elsewhere

John seems to have inherited his famous grandfather's flair for profitable investments. He led a gay life, according to Philip Yorke in The Royal Tribes of Wales, and he moved in high society. Maurice Wynn in a letter written in July 1659 mentions that "Sir John had purchased the Bishop of St. Asaph's lands in Maelor," which implies that Sir John had obtained his knighthood from the Lord Protector He seems to have accrted the new regime for his name appears among those of the Commissioners of Array charged with raising men and horses a few weeks before the landing of Charles II

"MARRIAGE TO HEIRESS

He appears to have been on terms of close friendship with his cousin Sir Richard. Sir John sends two mares to Gwydir in 1662 and subsequently there are references to oysters sent to Sir John by Sir Richard who also made him a present of half a buck. This makes Sir John's later treatment of his cousin's fatherless daugh ter harder to understand

On the death of his father Henry Wynn, he acquired his parent's home of Rhiwgoch in Merionethshire, and by his marriage to the heiress of Eyton Evans he found a delightful home. If Sir John indulged in any business transactions they would have been in the nature of real estate, but his marriage to Jane Evans must have been his most profitable investment. Her father, Eyton Evans, called his stately home "Watstay," because Wats Dyke ran nearby, and this name was retained until the end of the century. Llwyd refers to Watstay in 1699, and the Wynn Papers invariably use this name. Ultimately however Sir John changed it to Wynnstay by which if is now known

WEPT BITTERLY

Robert, the fourth of Sir John's sons, was educated at Westminster and St. John's College, Cambridge. The expense of "a young gentleman living in a very good sort" were £20 per annum, diet costing about 5s. a week. John Williams, the future archbishop, was at St. John's and befriended "Robin", keeping Gwydir informed about his progress. Robert's studiousness was commended. At one time there was a suggestion troublesome cough. He had tried without success to persuade him to live in the country. Finally Ellis consented to return home provided he could have a coach as he "could not endure travelling in a horse-liter." But the journey proved too exhausting and he died on the way. Sir Roger Mostyn informed Sir John that Ellis had "died at his lodging at a town called Heywood." His body had been brought by coach to Mostyn. Knowing that it would be a sorrowful sight to his parents at Gwydir. Sir Roger arranged for Ellis to be buried in Whitford Church where his epitaph may be seen.

"God has been pleased to take the best of Sir John's many sons," wrote Sir Richard.

William though not spectacular, gave a good account of himself. He was admitted as a student to Cambridge University in 1611 Subsequently he obtained a post with the Master of the Wards and Wardrobe. He was able to write home that he was "respected" because the Master knew about Sir John, and also "knew Sir Richard well."

THE INHERITANCE

Twice William contemplated standing as Member for Caernarvon borough but withdrew. He married Jane, daughter and heiress of Thomas Lloyd of Gwern-y-Brechtyn and settled at Garthgynan where he died in 1664 after serving for many years as Protonotary for North Wales. It was William who was indirectly responsibility for the preservation of the Wynn tradition—on the distaff side.

His heiress, Sydney (named, surely, after William's mother) wed Edward Thelwall of Plasy-Ward Their heiress, Jane, became the wife of Sir William Williams, bart, of Llanforda. When William's nephew. Sir John (5th baronet), of Wynnstay, died childless in 1718/9, the inheritance passed to Jane's son, who assumed the name of Sir Watkyn Williams Wynn, bart. And the prestige which once belonged to Gwydir was transferred to Wynnstay.

The Wynne Family and Kinsmen Association

TO: All Win, Wine, Winn, Winne, Wyne, Wynn and Wynne genealogists. FROM: Your new Editor, Dennis Ray Wynn

37 Lakewood Drive Lake Dallas, TX 75065

SUBJECT: The Alpha Paper, a publication of The Wynne Family and Kinsmen Association.

On occasions I have been sent a quantity of genealogical material with a request for me to reciprocate with any pertinent material that I might have. Quite often I have not been able to assist that person even after spending several hours searching. It leaves me with a feeling of regret to be able only to send a thank you note after the other person has gone to the trouble of sending me their material at their expense.

Too few persons can be helped immediately on an individual basis although it is essential that this avenue of communication be maintained.

RESOLVED; A newsletter will be published on a bi-monthly basis and distributed to current paid members.

Members will wish to keep this publication for research purposes. Each issue will contain one census. For example, the complete 1850 Federal Census for Virginia (Winn/Wynn and variant spellings only).

There will be a classified ads section.

There will be a "Bits and Pieces" section, Abstracts of Land Patents and Grants, Wills and Administration, marriage records, cemetery records excetra. All good documentation and reference material.

An effort will be made to publish the organized material of the association.

Members will be encouraged to publish the vitals of their own personal genealogy in the newsletter.

This is your publication, sensitive to your needs and wants. Your suggestions, material and support is essential.

Send your check to the editor. Five dollars for six months and ten dollars for one year, membership and publication included.

Back issues will be $2.00 each for new members and $3.00 each for non members.

No Winn/Wynn researcher can afford not to sample the benefits of The Wynne Family and Kinsmen Association, nor can an association of our size afford to have any unhappy members.

A FREE TIP: I recently paid $15.00 for a 10 page report titled WYNNE 1550 - 1800 by Jeanette H. McCall. This material was old hat but worst of all it contained many errors. Not recomended by this editor.

The association will purchase and review published material for the benefit of members whenever possible.

Alpha means beginnings.

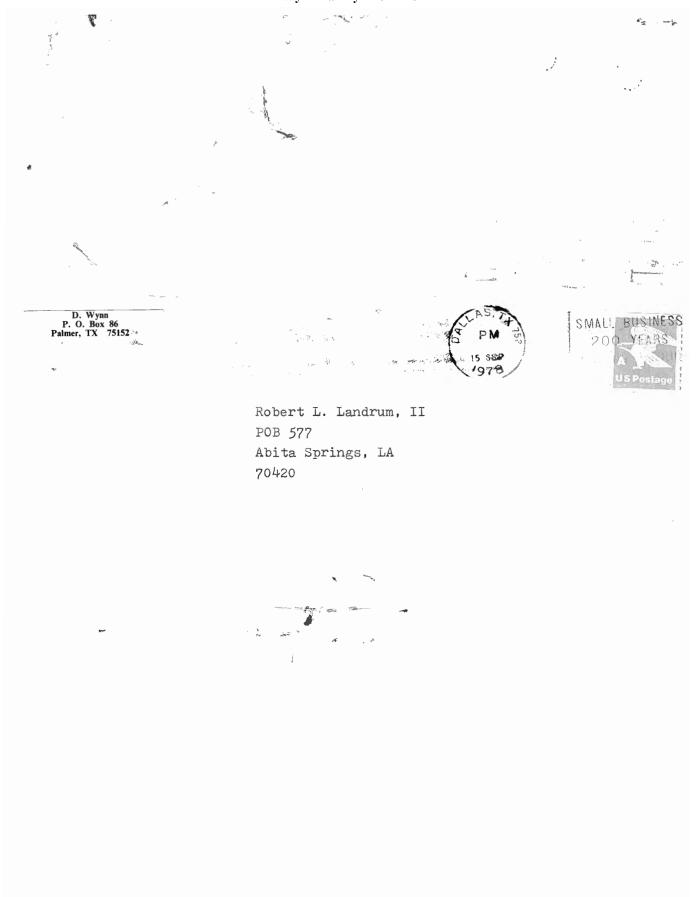

Cordially,

Dennis Bay Wynn

The following was sent to me December 5, 1968 by Mrs. Oren Wright of Coffeyville, Kansas. No source was listed.

From a very remote period the Wynne, Wynn, Winn family are seated in Wales; from Wales many have gone to live in far distant lands. The derivation of the name from Dictionary of Names, by William Arthur Gwynne, Guinee, and Winne (Welsh) from Guyn, white. It seems that this name came about because of the fair hair and blue eyes of the Wynne clan.

From Annals and Antiquities of the Counties and County Families of Wales, by Thomas Nicholas, M.A., Ph. D., F.G.S. 1872, Vol. I, page 418.
Wynn, Sir Watkin Williams, Bart, of Wynnstay, Denbighshire, Lineage.

This ancient and noble family unites the principal line of Owain Gwynedd, himself, directly descending from Rhodri the Great, King of North Wales, and subsequently of all Wales, who died in a battle against the Danes, invaders of his country, A.D. 876. The first of the line of Wynn who adopted and settled that sur-name was John A. P. Meredydd A. P. Jevan, who was called John Wynn. The family were long seated in Eifionydd Cawnowonshire. Meredydd AP Jevan, father of John Wynn, was the first to remove to the Vale of Conway, having purchased there the lands of Gwydir, a place which eventually became famous as the principal seat of the Wynns. The family in its various branches exhibited the primitive features of a clan, and they were collectively called Tulwyth Sion AP Meredydd, "The family or clan of John AP Meredydd". The grandson of John Wynn was Sir John Wynn of Gwydir, Kt. and Bart., b. 1553, d. 1626, historian of the house. (Baronage created June 20, 1611, extinct January 7, 1719.)

Arms: There are 20 arms to Wynn, 13 to Wynne, and 2 to Winn.

John Wynn 5th Baron, died in his 91st year without issue (1718-19) and the barony became extinct. He left the Wynnstay estate to his kinsman, Sir Watkin Williams, who adopted the additional surname of Wynn. The house and estate of Gwydir, however, remained in the descendants of the 4th baronet, Sir Richard Wynn whose only daughter Mary married(1678 - d.1689) Robert 16th Baron Willoughby de Eresby (afterwards created Marquis of Lindsay, and Duke of Ancaster) the estates were conveyed into that family in which they remained till 1895 when the present Earl of Ancaster disposed of the whole property. The mansion, some heirlooms and a small portion of the estate, purchased by his kinsman, Earl Carriggton, who through his mother, the daughter and co-heiress of the 22nd baron of Willoughby is a direct descendant of Sir John Wynn.

Sir John Wynne (born at Gwydir in Caernarvonshire (1553-1626) wife Sydney d. of Sir William Gerard. They had eleven sons and two daughters.

The eldest son of Sir John Wynn, John, died leaving no children.

The baronetcy passed to the next son Sir Richard Wynn, who built beautiful Gwydir Chapel in Llawrevst Church (1633) - wife Anne d. of Sir Frances Arci of Isleworth - no children.

The next surviving brother of Sir Richard, son of John, Owen became 4th baronet and died without male issue. The baronetcy then passed to Sir John Wynne, 5th baron, whose father, Henry, was the younger brother of Owen - married the heiress of Watstay near Ruabon, and changed the name to Wynn-stay.

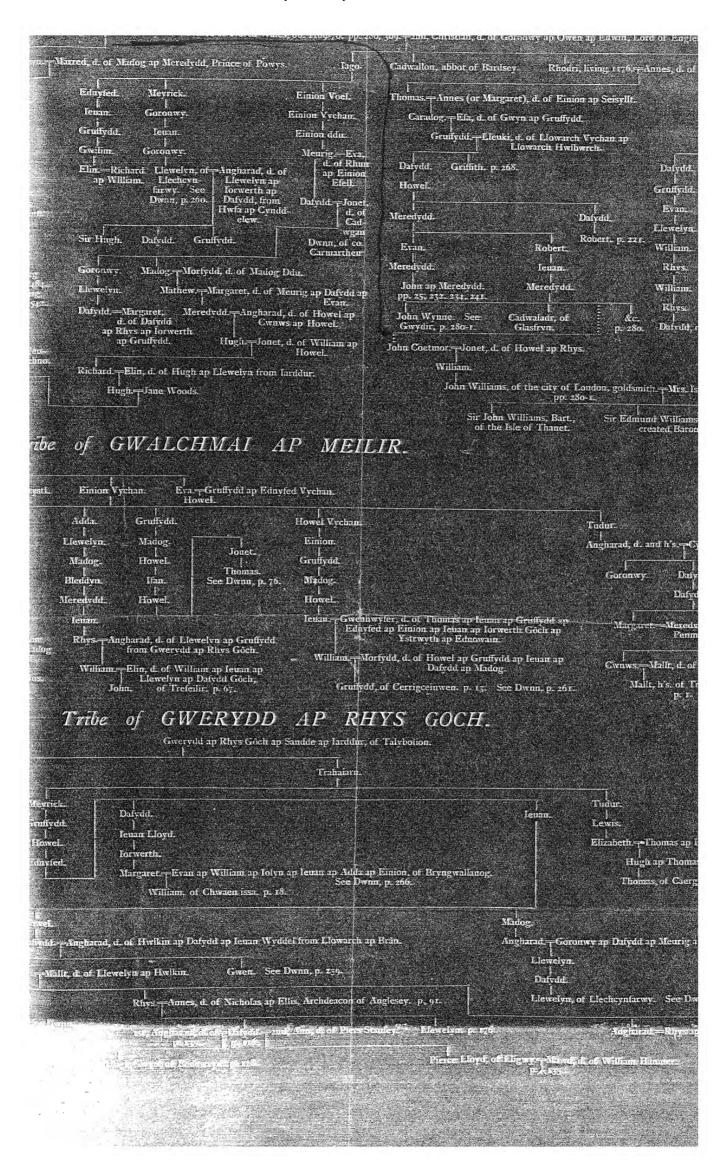

It is said that there are two portraits of "Wynne" at Wynnstay by Allan Ramsay and another by Hudson at Penriarth (Peniarth).

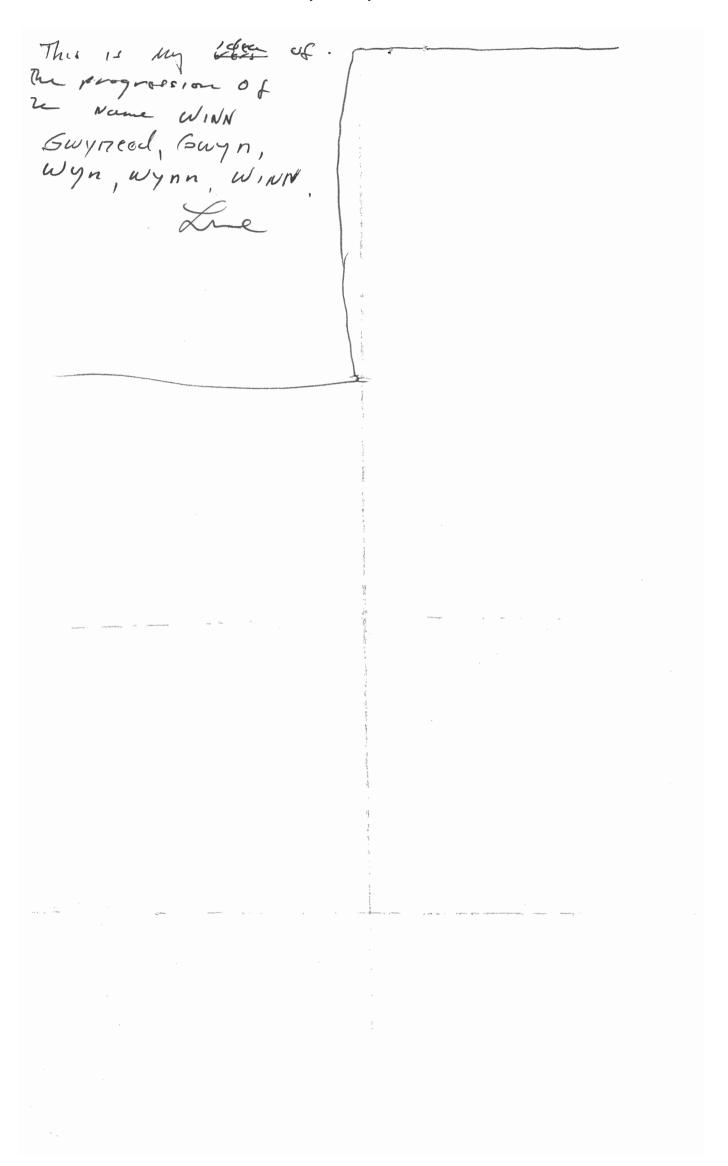

Sir Watkin Williams Wynne (3rd Baronet) (1692-1749) whose original surname was Williams was the grandson of Sir William Williams, being the eldest son of Sir William Williams 2nd baronet of Llanforda, near Oswestry, by his 1st wife Jane, daughter and sole heiress of Edward Thelwal of Plesyward, near Rutlin, Denbigshire. This lady, his mother, was a great grand-daughter of Sir John Wynn of Wynneximy: Watstay, which he changed to Wynnstay. He died without issue (1719) leaving his estates to Watkin Williams, who assumed the arms and name of Wynn and because the real founder of the great house of Wynnstay (born 1692) buried at Raubon Church - m. twice - 1st wife died without issue (1748) was Ann, heiress of Edward Vaughan and owner of the Glandlyn, Llwydiarth and Llangedwin estates (which since his daughter's marriage have formed part of the Wynnstay estates). His second wife was Frances, daughter of George Shakerly of Hulma - Cheshire. They had two sons; the eldest, Sir Watkin Williams Wynne - (1749-89) succeeded his father as fourth baronet.

Watkins William Wynne (fourth baronet) had three sons, Sir Watkin Williams Wynne, 5th baronet, Charles Watkin Williams Wynne and Sir Henry Watkin Williams Wynne.

He prefaces it modestly enough in the following verses;

Could we reach family authorities, (certainly abundant) much would be known on the subject in general, and I when that will be the case.

Manley Pryce, who died a bachelor some few years since. His father, Sir John Powel Pryce, married a Manley of Manley. This gentleman was accustomed to follow his hounds many years after he had totally lost his sight, and would run the risk of some dangerous leaps. The grandfather (Sir John Pryce) to the last Baronet was a gentleman of worth, but of strange singularities. He married three wives; his first, a Powel, the grandaughter of Sir John Powel, one of the Justices of the King's bench, (in the reign of James the Second) who eminently signalized his integrity and resolution in the case of the seven Bishops. To the memory of his second wife, a Morris, Sir John Pryce wrote an elegy of a thousand lines, still extant; in which he affirms, that with his latest breath he would lish Maria's name. But he forgot his vow, and was soon smitten with the charms of a widow Jones. This lady would not give her hand to Sir John until he had entombed her predecessors, who had, till that time, lain in state and chemicaly preparations in his bedchamber. He survived this wife also, and on her death writes to Bridget Bostock, 2

We had a later instance in Martin Vanbutchel's wife, (the spring-band and garter man) pickled by William Hunter, and more highly preserved by an epitaph of great humour and of fine taste and latinity, attributed to the first perhaps of our modern Physicians.

the Cheshire Pythoness, to this purpose; "Having received information by repeated advices, both public and private, that you have of late performed many wonderful cures, even where the best physicians have failed; and that the means used appear to be very inadequate to the effects produced, I cannot but look upon you as an extraordinary and highly favoured person. And why may not the same most merciful God, who enables you to restore sight to the blind, hearing to the deaf, and strength to the lame, also enable you to raise the dead to life? Now having lately lost a wife, whom I most tenderly loved, my children an excellent stepmother, and our acquaintances a very dear and valuable friend, you will lay us all under the highest obligations; and I. earnestly entreat you, for God Almighty's sake, that you will put up your petitions to the throne of grace on our behalf, that the deceased may be restored to us, and the late Dame Eleanor Pryce be raised from the dead. If your personal appearance appears to you to be necessary, I will send my coach and six with proper servants to wait on you hither, whenever you please to appoint. Recompence of any kind that you could propose, would be made with the utmost gratitude; but I wish the bare mention of it is not offensive to both God and you."

MR. MARTYN,

Mr. Boyer was nether knowen to hym, nor he to Mr. Boyer; ergo, yf that had not beene, he had contynued styll Vycar of Llan Rhayder. I know you do not forgett what was objected against hym and hys wyf to stopp his last translation, and how that my certyfycatt and my frends quitted hym of that imputation, and so made hym prevayle; for the whch, both they and I wear worse thoght of by those we have good cause hyghly to respect.

I labored, as yf hit had had beene to save the lyf of on of my chyldren, to end the cause of dylapidations between hym and my coosin Dd. Holland; knowynge hit wold have beene his great hynderance to be so matched att first dashe. How sufficyent a man, how well ffrended, and what a toothe-man in hys suets my cousin Holland ys, every man that knowethe hym, knowethe that also.

My L. of St. Assaphe I knew to be but poore (hys translation havynge stood him in muche) yett wylfull and heddy to run into law suets; therefor I was as muche trobled to reclaeme hym to reson and consyderation of hys owen estate as I was to bringe the adversse part to reson and conformyty. My L. Bushopp's cheefe lyvynge was the tenthe of the Paryshe of Abergele, where my coosin Holland comandeth absolutely. Yf they had gone to suet of law, he would so have wronged hym in the gatherynge of the tythe, as hit shold have beene lyttell worthe unto hym. My self excepted, was ther on Jent. in the contrey wold once have shewed hym self for hym agaenst my coosin Holland? and that knew he well. But my L. can make use of Jent. when they serve hys torne, and after decarde them upon pretence of conscyence; weh, may appear by the coppye of hys letter unto me, whereof, I avowe on my credyt this ys the trew coppye. Thus much touchynge that matter of my desert; and now touchynge my tequest.

Mr. Sharp, my L. Chancelor's Chaplen beynge by hys L. collated parson of Llanrŵst, leased hys benefyce to on Rob'. Gwyn of Chester, who appointed a ffrend of myen, on Robt. Vaughan, brother to my brother Tho. Vaughan, his under farmor. Doctor Elice, somtyme a great comander in theese quarters, in favor of Doctor Meryke (who rewarded him wth. a township of teythe whear his mansyon house was in Spytty) dyd geeve lev to dysmember the parsonadge of Llan rŵst of Tybrithe tythe, and to joyne hit to Corwen. Whearuppon, pyttyinge to see Llan rŵst churche dysmembered by unlawfull practyse, acqueanted my L. of St. Assaphe, that I ment to stand for the right of Llanrwst agaenst Doctor Meryke, wth. an intent to do more for that churche, as I then made knowen to my L. The suet prooved, by Doctor Meryke's weywardnes and hope in his fautors, more chardgeable and troblesom then was expected. Wheruppon I eftsons acquainted my L. Bushop, that I ment to buy Robt. Gwyn's lease into my hands, that, surrendringe hit, Mr. Sharp (in consyderation of my great chardge in the suet) myght grant me a lease of the lyvynge for iii lyves, the only mean in som part to quit my chardge; weh. he promysed me to confyrme, and that hit should be the fyrst of all other that should receve confyrmation. Havynge to my chardge and troble compased Robt. Gwyn's lease of 10 years, and by surrender of the same gott a new lease of three lyves of Mr. Sharp, I sent hyt to be shewed my L. by my servant Wm. Lloyd; who then seemed to myslyke hit, and answered doutfully touchynge the confyrmation, wth. all chidd Mr. Sharp in suche sort, as givynge cause to have my lease new made, he made me pay 10l. more then was att fyrst, by reson my L. Bushop had chidd hym. In end, hearynge of a Chapter appointed for the confyrmation of the other leases, I sent myen also by my son Mostyn, and my letter to my L. the contents whearof you shall fynd in my Lord's answer. To w<sup>ch</sup>. I received this answer, w<sup>ch</sup>. whether hit be fyttynge my desert ys your's to judge, as also to expostulat wth. hym, beynge oure ffrend, common to us bothe.

I am not of nature to put up wronge; for as I have studyed for hys good, and wrought the same, so lett my L. be assured of me as bytter an enemye (yf he dryve me to hit) as ever I was a stedfast frend; nether ys he com to that heyght, or wantethe enemyes, that he may say, Major sum, quam cui possit fortuna nocere. For as Honores mutant mores, so mores mutant honores. I am ashamed for hym, that he hathe geeven herby cause to his enemyes and myen to descant of his ungrate dysposition ever aggravated towards hym. Hys answer att lardge I pray you retorne me, yf nothynge els.

Your lovynge ffrend,

GWYDER, this xiijth of Marshe, 1603.

John Wyn,

of Gwyder.

He promysed me an adowson of the lyvynge by Tho Robts, when he denyed the confyrmation. I sent unto hym the same man, wth. in too dayes after for the same, and my coosin Elice Vaghan wth. all; and he denyed me eny, saynse he had provyded no preferment for his wife, and that he myght overlyve Sharpe, and have that lyvynge in Comendam. So, to conclude, I must have nothynge but a scornefull, chetynge letter, in leu of all my good indeavors.

No. IV.

Bishop Morgan, to Mr. Martyn.

SALUTEM IN C.HRO.

I Fynd that Mr. Wyn hath acquaynted you with the unkyndnes web, he conceaveth in me; and I am glad to have so indyfferent an arbytrator. Hys requeste was, that I wold confyrme a Lease for three lyves upon the Rectorye of Llanrŵst (being a presentative benefyce, fytt to be some preacher's lyvynge) at the yearelye rent of 50l, the thynge being worth 140l, and beinge of my patronadge. Thys requeste much perplexed my mynde, for that yt greved me to denye Mr. Wyn anye thynge, and my conscyence reclaymed agaynst the grauntynge of thys thynge, being so preiudiciall to preachers, speciallye to the next incumbent and to the church yt self, web, wanteth competent mayntenance for preachers.

To com to the pleasures that Mr. Wyn dyd unto me, they are not so greate as he accounted them; for I payd for hys time upon Wybernant, and hys uncle Robie. 40l. or more att one tyme, beinge a greater some then they had of anie of the other tenantes that held lyke landes in that township. I pray God forgeve Mr. Wyn hys harde dealynge wth. these tenantes, whose tenementes he could not covett wthoute impiety. In measurynge of Pant yr Helygloyn, I had lesse then some affyrmed to be due unto me, and more then others wyshed; in leue wheareof I was to erect a stone wall, or a dytch of earth, betweene me and hym to my greate charges.

Jeuan Meredydd and I weare ffrendes, when, upon Mr. Wyn hys request, I gott to hys brother Robt. Wyn his nowe wyf; web, caused such hatred and sutes betwene me and the sayd Jeuan, that yt cost me from 60l. to 100l. more than I had. Mr. Wyn in deed procured to me two commyssioners, Mr. Morys Johnes once, and Mr. Morys Lewys, an other tyme; and was my dayseman to ende that cause. I sustayned all those broyles and obloquyes for hys sake and hys brother's.

He wrote unto me allreadye, that yff he had not bene, I had contynucd yet Viccar of Llan Rhayadr. How much he ys deceaved herein, youe and others do knowe. But yff I had contynued Vicar of Llan Rhayadr, I had bene in better case then nowe I am. I had testymonials inough bysydes that weh. he procured; and I had prevayled, yff I had had none, as my Lo. of Canterburye and my L. Treasurer beleved. Yet I confesse that Mr. Wyn thearein shewed greate love (as then I thought) to me; but (as nowe I fynde) to hym selfe, hopynge to make a stave of me to dryve preachers partryges to hys netts. I thanke Mr. Wyn for hys paynes in daynge betwene me and Mr. Holande; although he gott me but 150l. wheare I shold have had 1000l. But I may not requite this paynes with the spoyle of anie church. Yt seemeth that Mr. Wyn thynketh that I do but pretend conscyence. But I assure youe, in verbo Sacerdotis, that I think in my harte, that I weare better robb by the hygh waye syde, then do that web. he requeasteth. And I knowe that as to serve an errynge conscyence is a falt, so to do agaynst conscyence, though yt be errynge, ys a synne. Yff my ffathere and mothere weare lyvynge, and made the request that Mr. Wyn maketh, I hope that I sholde have the grace to say them nay. I fynde farther that Mr. Wyn is in two errors; the one ys, that I promysed to hym a confyrmatione of that Lease; and the other ys, that I promysed hym by John Robtes an advowson; wheare in truth I promysed neather of both, but told Mr. Wyn that I wold be veary loath to confyrme anie Lease upon anie presentatyve benefyce; that I wold do for hym as much and more then anie other; and that yff I wold confyrme anie such, hys shold be the fyrst. I neaver confyrmed anie, nor meane to do. But the Chapter and I graunted, not iij lyves, but one lyff, not upon a presentatyve benefyce, but upon an impropriatione, weh. is a dyvydent amongst manie, and can not be occupyed by anie of us, for that we are farr of, and thearefore must be letten for one terme or other; and the incumbe ys for the church, and not for a lay man. But Mr. Wyn, thoughe he knoweth that theare ys dyfference betwene grauntynge a lease of oure owne and confyrmynge the lease of an other man; betwene a presentative benefyce and an impropriatione; betwene one lyff and iii lyves; betwene a publyke use and a pryvate, styll exclaymeth, that I have confyrmed a lyke lease, and wyll not according to promyse confyrme hys. My answeare to John Robtes was, that a Bushopp's advowson wold not bynde the successor; and when he asked, whyther Mr. Wyn shold have yt, yff yt dyd bynde, I told hym, that, yff yt dyd bynde, he shold have yt and myne eares also; for that I dyd well knowe that yt can not bynde. And when he cam next to aske, yf I wold graunt yt de bene esse, whyther yt wold bynde or not, I told hym, I wold not, and that yt was no part of my promyse or meanynge. John Robtes mystooke my wordes concernynge my wyff; for I dyd not say that she must be fyrst provyded for, meanynge that I wyll gett for her anie such lease. For though she be my wyff, and thearefore one flesh, yet shall she be neaver provyded for by me rather then by such leases; I wyll not spoyle ye. church. Thys was the effect of my then speach. whearby Mr. Wyn myght have understoode that nothynge dryveth me to thys resolutione, but my conscyence. Of my Commendam, I dyd and do say, that yff I weare so lewde as to confyrme all the leases in the Diocesse, yet I wold not be such a foole as to confyrme anie, before I weare better provyded for my Commendam. Yff I dyd, tell Mr. Sharpe, that he shold do well to leave hys lyvynges to hys successors as ffree as he founde the same. I dyd but my duetye. Yff thys weare not a case of conscyence, you shold not neede to perswade me to gratifye Mr. Wyn; for hys owne requeste ys of greate force wth. me. Youre two reasons, or rather hys reasons (for he used the lyke in hys letters to my selfe) do lytle move me. For yff I shall fynde hym as bytter an enemye, as ever I founde hym my frende, yt wylbe a comfort to me to suffer in so good a cause. I knowe that God, whose church I wold defende, ys able to defende me agaynst all enemyes, and wyll defende me so farr, as he shall see yt to be expedient for me; that Mr. Wyn can not kyll my soule, nor do to my bodye more then God wyll permytt. And my confydent trust ys, that God wyll not permytt anie thynge to be commytted agaynst me, but that web. shalbe for my good, eather in thys worlde or in the worlde to com. And yff dyverse men wyll dyversely descant of thys unkyndnes;

What? ys thys to move a man that shold be setled in conscyence, to do agaynst conscyence! I knowe that some do blame me in hys presence, and blame hym and commende me in his absence. And yt may be that others do use me in lyke sort. Inconstans et mutabile vulgus. Auxilium meum in nomine Dni.

Thus resolved to do neather thys nor anie other act that shalbe prejudiciall to the church,

I rest,

Amicus usque ad aras,

Willm. Asaphen.

SALUTEM IN C.HRO.

SEEINGE you can better agree wth. my tithe in Langustenyn then wth. me, and have, as I heare, taken order for the gatheringe of it; I am loath to contrarie you therin, soe that you send me money by this bearer for the same, although I knowe my tithe to be worthe twise as much as you pay for it. But I pray you to cause the tithe of Bodescallan to be gathered in kind; for yor cosen Hugh Gwynne Gru: hath written to me that he would tithe it in specie this yeare.

GOOD Mr. GWYN.

You needed not this paynes to remoove anye conceite of myne. Before y<sup>r</sup>. letters, I never heard of your refusall of Subscription unto myen certificate; and now havinge heard of it, I conceave no woorse of you then of a very wyse and sufficient gentleman, whose love in anye good and honest cause I shall be glad to deserve. Touchinge my certieficate, I did sufficientlye knowe, y<sup>t</sup>. no one man in my countrey subscribinge wold much further me, nor anye one man wantinge wold anye thinge hinder me. I am farr from imagininge y<sup>t</sup>. a gentleman of your place and woorth eyther doth flatter me, or expect benefite by me. You have no cause to use y<sup>e</sup>. one, and I have no meanes to afforde y<sup>e</sup>. other; for as you truelye write, all I have is litle enough for y<sup>e</sup>. support of mye owne estate.

I have gotten of late a small benefice, weh, will do well, being ioyned to my place in Cambridge; and therefore if your Worshippe could procure me for this yeare's rent but 7l. before hande, I would give William Lloyd a generall acquittaunce for this yeare; or if I have two yeares more to expire of my lease (as indeede I do not knowe) I would be contente to take 12l. for both yeares, if your Worshippe could procure me soe much. Howesoever I must and will acknowledge my selfe æternallye bounde to praye for your Worshippe, for your Worship's kinde love and care of me this last yeare; and soe desiringe oportunitye to make uppe my gratefull wordes wth. thankfull deede, I committ your Worshippe to the Almightie's tuicion.

DICUT WOOR

Doe undersand by yo'. Ires that you purpose to send yo' sonnes to this universitye, soe soone as you cane be resolved in what colledge, and wth. what tutor to place them. Ffor my part I hould S'. John's colledge to be omni exceptione majus; not inferior to any colledge for the bringinge up of yonge gentlemen, but the ffyttest and best house that you cann send yor, sonnes unto. And for the choise of a good tutor (yf I may presume to advice you) yor, beast course wilbe to cause yor, good brother Mr. Rychard Gwyn for to commend them by his ltres unto Mr. Dr. Clayton, the master of our colledge, whoe, I ame well assured, will at my cosen Rychard his comendacione be redie to nominate suche a tutor for them, as will for his sake be verie respective and carfull of ther good.

Touchinge the proportione of allowance that wilbe requisyte for them, I can say lytle; ffor I doe not know whether you will have them to be in the ffellowes' commons ore not, of web. rancke yf it be yor. pleasure to have them to be, then cann you allowe noe lesse then threescore pounds yearly for bothe, ov. and besyde the apparell; but yf you purpose to have them to be in the schollers' commons, then halfe the former allowance will serve, ther apparell beinge noe part therof. The tuicione for every ffellow comoner is 4lb. per annum, and a pentioner paythe 40s yearly to his tutor for readinge to him. Ffurther it wilbe requisyte that they have beddinge, wth. such furniture as shalbe needfull, sent from home. And when they doe come, they shall find me redy to the uttermost of my power, to performe all good offices towards them. Yf my cosen Mr. Owen Gwyn had not beene a discontynewer from the colledge, he, I conffesse, might have donn them greater pleasure then I can doe; but howsoever yf my cosenes come to St. John's, they shall want noe ffrends in the howse. And thus humbly takinge my leave, I rest ever,

RIGHTE WORSHIPFULL,

MY dutie remembred. I hope by this time your wor. hath received two letters, answeringe in effecte those doubtes propounded in your letter, weh. I receiv'de by this bearer. Since my last ill newes, there hath happen'd here noe occurrence worthe the relatinge; our feare is noe lesse, and the daunger noe more then it was at firste. Sithence your son's goinge into the countrey (weh. was at this daye se'nighte.) I have heard in a letter from my curate of his well doinge, his abode beinge within a mile of my poore benefice. When he returnes unto the colledge, I will putte that stratagem in practice, weh. you mencion in your letter, and send your wor. the coppye of his theame. For my likinge of his proceedinges, bona fide I like his learninge well for his yeares; his witte better, especiallye when yeares of discretion shall season it. If I listed to find faulte (althoughe truelye no greate cause) I doe sometimes call more egerlye on him to keep his studye, weh. nowe (his gaudye dayes beinge spent) we may more boldlye doe then heretofore; and he muste (as surelye he dothe) daylye amend. Scholler he is for Mr. Price his place; and so is my man to, Mr. John Lloyd's sonne, for one Sir Dolben's. His tutour, I hope, doth certifye the receipte of such thinges as the bearer broughte him; onlye his token, beinge five shillinges from my ladye, I have taken uppe, and will deliver it to him at my nexte goinge to my benefice. I doe hope our colledge shall meete agayne before Christmasse; for as yeate there is more causeles feare then apparent daunger of any infection. Thus with my heartiest comendacions and 153

bounden dutye to my good Ladye, I commend both your Wor. to God's protection.

Your Wor. in all dutye,

No. X.

John Williams (Abp.) to Sir John Wynn.

RIGHT WORSHIPFULL,

MY moste true love ever remembred. My coz. Robin, who wth. the helpe my serchers hath furnishte you for your provision, doth promisse me to sende you at this time a complete note of his former expences. My mechanique buisinesses at the Fayre are such as I cannot take that paynes therein I otherwise wolde doe. Truelye I cannot excuse either him or his brother, for absence from theyre studyes at extraordinarye howres, or any neglect of theyre Tutor's lectoures. And yeat they are nowe (as formerlye they were) my under-neighboures.

How the projecte of hasteninge his beinge felowe failed, I liste not to enquire; but I am sure, after your departure there was nothinge donne.

And the yssue noe other, but that the Juniour Proctour was sharpelye rebuked, that he, contrarye to the statute, wolde offer to bringe in one by his Majestie's mandate. Who replied, He never went about any such matter; as resolved, if once he hadd showne himselfe in the buisines, to effecte it, or have line in the dust for it. Marye, he added, that if the youth himselfe compassed any such matter, he thoughte that he hadde deserv'de that favowre at the Colledge, as to accepte thereof without such grudginge.

What you were enformed of my troubles and oppositions wth the heades of our colleges, I knowe not; but this I am certayne, I rest much obliged to your Wor. for your most kinde and lovinge counsaile, wth could proceede from noe other heade, then that well-springe of your former and never-failinge affection. But Mr. Th. Edwards my felowe could have gonne nere to enforme you of all the buisines.

The opposition twixte the maisters of Colleges and the bodie of the Universitye, we is the companye of our Regent and Non-regent Maister of Artes, hathe beene soe longe a foote, as any Cantabrigian can enforme you thereof; but it is most of all perceived in that twixt the vice-chauncelour and the proctoures, whoe are in a maner Tribuni Plebis, and represente the bodye, as the vice-chauncelour dothe the heades of Colleges. In former yeares, as the vice-christ were allwayes grave old men and Divines by profession (noe yonge, servinge-man lawier, as this yeare) soe the proctours for want of other meanes did over-shoote themselve soe farre in takinge of under-hande considerations; as that lienge allwayes in the vice-chaunceloure's lurche, they never durste shewe themselves either for the maintenaunce of theyre owne places, or the statute-freedom of the Universitye.

My selfe being by God and my good Mr, soe well provided for (to myne owne contentement at leaste wise) as that my mynde scorn'de to be obnoxious to any man for the leaste bribe or fee due by statute, grewe by soe much the more boulde to stande upon myne owne place and the libertie of the Universitye graunted in statute, and consequentlye to overthwart the new-fanglednes of this vice-chr. endevouring by all meanes possible to reduce our Aristarchie to a Monarchie (as they terme it) but, as we understand, an absolute Tyrannie.

This was soe well taken for the firste parte and moytie of the yeare, that not onelie the Mres. of Artes, who graced me with as many and those extraordinarye favoures, as they laded my adversarye with shame and ignominie; but the heades of Colleges themselves encouraged with all applause my just and academicall cariage and proceedinges. For you must knowe Dr. Cowel and Dr. Clayton, the two greateste maisters in towne, and my extraordinarye deare freyndes to be as yeat alive; in whose places .... ded two other, defective, thoughe not in affection, yeate in pare ..... action.

Afterward falls in the interim our Heade-shippe of St. John's, in w<sup>ch</sup>. busines I, servinge my turne abroade, with the good opinion conceiv'de of me at home, was thoughte to have donne such service, as procur'de the hatred of two of the cheefe m<sup>res</sup>. Dr. Carye beinge one of them; who, as they thinke, hadd it not been for me, hadd gott the maistershippe of St. John's. There was the first oportunitye the vice ch<sup>r</sup>. hadd againste me.

In the weeke of this, falls the death of the L. Treasurer and Chauncelour; by consequence greate canvasinge who should succeede him. All the heades (two excepted) expectinge bushopricks and deanries, came upon the Archbp. of Canterburye. My selfe, still reposinge greate trust in the bodye of the Universitye, and fearinge if his Grace were our Chauncelour, any complaynte of the Vice-chaunc. wolde be hearde against me, who was, both for my buisines of Llanrhayader, and this late of our maistershippe, growne more distastefull unto his Grace, putt all my force togeither, and by many voices, against the heades, chose the L. Privie seale twice to our Chancelour; thoughe I knewe Googe the vicech<sup>t</sup>. to be a servant to his nephewe the L. of Suffolke. You see then a second oportunitie for the Vicech<sup>t</sup>. to ioyne wth the heades to putt somme disgrace upon me.

And yeate all this while, thoughe buisines were in hammeringe, nothinge coulde be donne, while it was terme time, and that the mrs. of Artes hadd occasion of meetinge, my strengthe encreasinge still in the bodie. After the Commencement, all occasions of meetinge for this yeare ended, the
